Two Battleships To Go Down Ways In June, a Month Before Schedule

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Legislative and executive machinery churned in high gear to turn defense billions into arms yesterday as the speed-up program brought practical results—advancement of the launching dates of two powerful battleships.

Announcement that the 35,000-ton dreadnaught Washington, first battleship addition to the Navy since 1921, would be launched June 1, came as President Roosevelt revealed he would discuss the defense situation in a "fireside chat" Sunday night at 9:30.

The other battleship, the North Carolina, will be launched June 13.

Developments of the day were:

The Senate unanimously passed the second part of the President's emergency preparedness program, a $1,473,756,728 naval appropriation bill, after but 90 minutes consideration.

Plan Mass Production

Secretary Morgenthau announced that warplane construction will be standardized, to speed up construction, by means of patent pooling. He named a board of design experts to choose types for mass production in many factories at the same time.

Attorney General Jackson said President Roosevelt had prepared months ago to take care of "fifth-column" activities, and urged citizens to help by reporting to the Federal Bureau of Investigation "acts, threats or evidence of sabotage, espionage or other disloyal activities."

The House Military Affairs Committee favorably reported legislation empowering the President to embargo the export of strategic and critical materials not produced in quantity in the United States, such as manganese, rubber, chromium, and so forth, and also pig iron, and steel and iron scrap.

Industrialists Pledge Support

More than 60 industrialists, members of the Department of Commerce Business Advisory Council, called on President Roosevelt to pledge him their full cooperation in the defense effort.

A special House committee speedily gave unanimous approval to the President's proposal that the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization be shifted from the Labor to the Justice Department, to afford more effective control of aliens in connection with possible espionage or sabotage.

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, suggested creation of a "League of American Nations" to strengthen ties with other countries of the Western Hemisphere in connection with war events.

Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, asked Congress to expend the powers of the RFC to become a "defense financing corporation" if necessary, with authority to make loans for purchase of raw materials plant expansion and extension of working capital to industry.

May Bill Comes Up Today

House leaders announced that the May bill will be brought up today. It would suspend legal restrictions on totals of Army planes and pilots, and limits on construction and employment of civilians. It will be followed tomorrow by a similar bill

G.O.P. Begins 'Smokeout' On Third Term

Roosevelt Asked To Declare Himself In Sunday's 'Chat'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Opening flares in a determined Republican third-term "smoke-out" were lit yesterday.

G .O. P. interest centered on the President's fireside chat on the state of the Nation Sunday night.

The speech will provide another opportunity for the President to declare his third-term intentions.

With the Republican convention only three weeks away, some Republican leaders echoed Alf M. Landon's demands that he do so forthwith.

Said Representative James W. Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, more sympathetic with the President's foreign policies than any other Congressional Republican:

"The Landon statement was absolutely sound. I think the President should announce what he intends to do. It would make it much easier to put the question of national defense on a nonpartisan basis."

Said Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher and candidate for the Republican nomination, following a

House Passes Relief Bill, For 8 Months

$1,111,754,916 Voted, With Rider Barring Aid to Communists

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The House last night passed by a vote of 354 to 21 the 1941 relief bill permitting the employment of 1,950,000 persons on WPA during the eight months beginning July 1, compared with an average of 2,042,000 in the current year.

Adopted after five days' debate, the bill embraces President Roosevelt's recommendation that $975,650,000 be granted the WPA now, to be spent by March 1, 1941, if necessary.

In addition, other funds for relief purposes are included in the measure, bringing the total outlay to $1,111,754,916. This sum is $14,300,084 less than the President requested, and $543,075,084 less than the grant for the entire fiscal year 1940.

Of some 73 proposed amendments, only a handful were adopted—and none that involved any change in the overall appropriation.

However, President Roosevelt won another major victory in elimination of a provision limiting the Federal contribution on all WPA construction projects to $50,000.

'Ask the Commissioner'

McCoach's Car Blocks Exit, So Police Tag a Truck Driver

In its most authoritative tone, the police radio barked yesterday: "Scout 12, Thirteen-and-a-half street entrance to District Building blocked."

Two policemen responding found a long limousine parked between "no parking" signs. It bore D. C. tag No. 2—Commissioner McCoach.

The officers were more than nonplused for a moment—but only a moment. One of them jumped from the scout car and approached a Virginia motorist who had just driven up a few moments before.

"Move on, you've caused enough trouble," he told the Virginia driver. "Those signs say you can't park and they mean what they say. Go ahead."

The Virginia driver moved. Farther down the street was a light delivery truck—privately owned—parked double. The driver was given a ticket. Behind the District Building, jamming the entire street, were eight double-parked cars—all belonging to the District government. They didn't get tickets.

"What about the Commissioner's car?" the policeman was asked. "Doesn't it rate a ticket?"

"Ask the Commissioner about that," he responded.

"And what about all those double-parked cars behind the building—are they within the law?"

"No—of course not."

"Do they get tickets?"

"Not from me," grinned the policeman. "Have the newspapers take a picture of them—but I'm not touching them."

"Maybe that truck driver needs the money he'll have to post on that ticket," observed a bystander.

"Yeah, maybe he does," said the truck driver, and he drove away.

Advance Slowing, Berlin Reports; Reich Columns Move on Calais

Berlin, May 23.—German reports from the Western Front indicate greater Nazi successes in the direction of the drive for the channel than in the battle against the main French armies further south.

The Allied forces in Belgium and along the coast above Abbeville have been placed in an increasingly dangerous position by further German pressure, it is declared, and the fall of Boulogne is believed to be imminent.

(The Associated Press reported from Berlin that the German high command said the Nazis "probably" had taken Boulogne. In London, British officials admitted Allied troops were fighting a heavy battle with German soldiers "in and around" Boulogne, 26 miles from the English port of Dover.

Admit Temporary Setbacks

Against the French, apparently trying to re-establish communication with this other Allied force which Berlin considers doomed, the Germans admit some temporary setbacks.

In Flanders the Germans admit that their attack along the upper Scheldt River is gaining ground only slowly, with the Allies strongly resisting in this sector.

The battle for Valenciennes is still undecided, with the French Ninth Army surrounded on all sides and credited with making a desperate stand, conceding ground only inch by inch. In Normal Woods southeast of the city the Germans claim to be mopping up the Frenchmen caught there when the Reich armies broke through in this sector.

The Cambria sector was the scene of bitter struggles yesterday. Strong Allied tank units are said to have been momentarily successful in trying to crash the German lines between Cambria and the Somme but to have been finally repulsed.

North of Cambria the Allies staged another heavy tank attack supported by their air force. The Germans met the attack with bombers and fighter planes which, aided by anti-aircraft guns, are supposed to have inflicted heavy losses, firing a great number of enemy tanks.

Concentrate on Pocket

The Germans are concentrating even greater masses of their aircraft on the narrowing "pocket" in an effort to sow confusion and wreak havoc among the British, French and Belgian forces crowded into that area. Flight after flight of Nazi planes swoops low over enemy lines, machine-gunning troops on the roads and dropping heavy-caliber bombs on camps.

The French city of Lille is understood to have been particularly heavily punished by this aerial offensive, with heavy casualties on the civilian population as well, the French having had no time to evac-

The War Today . . .

GERMANY'S LEGIONS were on the Straits of Dover last night, only 26 miles from England. Hitler's mechanized hosts had battered their way to Boulogne, on the channel.

ENGLAND PREPARED to meet an attack on her shores. She rushed troops to her southeastern coast and hurriedly threw up sandbagged machine gun nests. She watched Ireland, fearing an attack through there.

ELSEWHERE, THE GERMANS seem to have been checked. France claims to have dented the German salient at Amiens, retaking suburbs of that French city. The German spearhead here has been reduced to a thin, motorized line according to Paris.

THE FRENCH ADMIT, however, that Nazi reinforcements are filtering through the hole made by the German thrust in this sector.

IN THE NORTH, the French claim success in a drive to Cambrai, while in the South, Paris declares a German attack in the Sedan sector, at Attigny, was repulsed.

Italy Waiting Till Nazis Win Channel Ports

Won't Enter War Before Die Is Cast For German Victory

By Herbert L. Matthews
Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 23.—The Italians today were watching, with apparent confidence in the Germans, the great battle for the Channel ports, and until it ends no one expects Italy to make a move.

There are, indeed, no tangible signs of any intention to intervene after that, but the country has been psychologically prepared to expect war in the near future.

Commentators, including Virginio Gayda, are toning down their previous predictions and telling their readers to be patient. Signor Gayda admits that the battle is still obscure and meanwhile one should be cautious in one's judgment, but certainly the expectation is that the Germans will crush the Allied forces which have been cut off and drive the British into the sea, if not across the Channel.

Meanwhile, the Italians are going to wait. They have already had some splendid opportunities to intervene, but the Duce withheld his hand.

London Admits Foes Have Cut Way to Channel; Ports Still Held

By Frank R. Kelley

London, May 23.—With a final thrust, Germany's armored hordes poured through a 15-mile gap in the Allied line, between Arras and Bapaume today.

This brought the war to Britain's front door as the Nazis reached the French channel port of Boulogne, where 115 years ago Napoleon gathered a huge army, only to find Britain's naval might barring his path to England.

Marauding Nazi dynamite and arson squads ran loose behind the Allied army, fighting with its back to the sea in Belgium and threatened its communications, while in front the Germans cracked through at Oudenarde, west of Brussels, and crossed the Allied defensive position on the River Scheldt.

Ports Still Usable

South of Boulogne, the Germans occupied Abbeville on the Somme Estuary, thereby severing the Allied northern and southern wings and cutting off the British expeditionary force in Belgium from its main supply sources along the French coast at Dieppe and Havre. Calais, Dunkerque, Ostend and Zeebrugge remain the B. E. F.'s only ports of communication with England.

Nazi bombers have badly damaged the French channel ports but authoritative British sources claimed at midday that these ports were still usable "at certain hours" and were by no means untenable. Calais was said to be "in danger." The Allies said they still held Zeebrugge and Ostend.

Above the embattled armies in Picardy and Flanders, trying to grapple with each other in the midst of pitiful millions of refugees, streaming along the roads, British bombers and fighting planes clashed with vastly larger Nazi formations and rained high explosives on the enemy's advancing troop columns.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill packed the blackest news that Britain has learned in this war into a two-minute statement in the House of Commons this afternoon. Gravely, Churchill reported:

"Too Early Yet to Say"

"The German armored forces which made their way through the breach in the French army have penetrated into the rear of the Allied army in Belgium and are now attempting to derange their communications. Abbeville is in enemy hands and heavy fighting is proceeding around and in Boulogne.

"It is too early yet to say what the result of this coastal fighting may be, but it evidently carries with it implications of a serious character. Meanwhile, Gen. Weygand, who is in supreme command, is conducting operations involving all the Allied armies with a view to restoring and reconstituting their combined fronts."

The minister of information, Alfred Duff Cooper, told a political

London, May 23.—The British government cracked down today upon suspected enemies within its gates. In a series of raids which resulted in the arrest of an undisclosed number of suspected "fifth columnists" or those who might be used as tools or dubes of the enemy. Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader and eight of his lieutenants, a member of Parliament and a former M. P., were taken into custody.

At the same time with the Allied armies struggling with the German invader for control of French ports across the channel there are signs of increasing concern regarding conditions across the Irish Sea where, in Eire, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of German diplomats and journalists.

Anxieties over fifth columnists at home and in neutral Eire found reflection today in the words of speak-

French Reach Amiens' Fringe; German Attack Held on Aisne

By Henry C. Cassidy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, May 23.—In a double counteroffensive on the Somme and Flanders fronts the Allies rallied tonight against the Nazi march to the sea, denting on top and bottom the German salient which extends across France like a pistol leveled at Britain.

The German salient, jutting west to the channel, thus seemed to be imperiled by an Allied pincers movement from north and south.

Only a thin line of German armored columns extended between the northern and central Allied forces through the hole broken between Flanders and the Somme.

Nazis Filter Through

The French military spokesman acknowledged, however, that through this hole additional German units had filtered today in the direction of the sea.

On the northern side of the salient, in Flanders, a pitched battle raged tonight with the Germans lashing back savagely at the Allied offensive.

Of the details of the fierce struggle on the southern side, little could be learned beyond the fact that the Germans had been pushed back at Amiens.

Amiens earlier had been reported held by only 5,000 Germans.

The Nazis, striving to divert pressure from their spearhead, attacked during the afternoon in the Attigny sector to the east but tonight's communique declared this assault already had failed.

This was the third great scene of battle—an offensive loosed by the Germans in the southeastern corner of their gouge into France, near where the Maginot Line is hinged to the lighter, northwesterly fortifications.

The French thrust against Amiens, was aimed at the southern side of the spearhead made by earlier German successes. This spearhead lances to the sea, menacing the Channel ports of Boulogne and Calais.

The easterly German attack on the Aisne was to the south of the point where the Maginot Line joins its now-pierced northwestern section, and was an action to cut behind that mighty fortification.

The action about Cambrai and Valenciennes—a 25-mile line roaring with flame—was the first taken by the Allies in an effort to bring two isolated forces together.

Big Guns Clear Way

The German assault on the Aisne was preceded by the thunder of heavy artillery. It was in this area—about 100 miles northeast of Paris on the south side of the river—where the French took their stand after the Germans struck through their northern defenses in the battle of the Meuse.

Here was the new and enlarged front as it was described tonight by the war ministry's spokesman:

It ran from Belgium south along the Scheldt River to Valenciennes. From there it turned southwest to Cambrai and west toward Arras and then southwest, cutting the Arras-Bapaume highway.

Then it dropped across the German wedge to the Somme River and ran east along the Somme and Aisne to Montmedy, forming, really, a second front.

Germans of Antwerp Sector Reach Ghent on Way to Coast

By Louis P. Lochner
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the German Western Armies (Friday), May 24.—Gen. Georg von Kuechlen, commander in chief of the German army in the Antwerp sector, said today that his force is aiming via Ghent and Bruges, to Ostend, Belgian port directly across from England.

At the same time Gen. Walther von Reichenau is pushing toward Calais and Dunkerque, two French ports opposite England, one of Kuechlen's adjutants explained.

[The United Press reported from Berlin that authoritative sources declare it is Hitler's plan, as soon as he gets a foothold on the Channel, to seek a separate peace with France. If successful, then he would make his attack on England.

[Both the French and British governments have publicly pledged themselves against a separate peace.]

Although a hot battle was raging only a few miles away, Kuechlen found time to receive me.

"A stern battle is on at Ghent," he said simply.

"But we are cutting our way to the sea and expect to be there shortly. Our enemies are resisting bravely."

"In addition we have inundations and other difficulties of terrain to contend with," Kuechlen added.

"Nevertheless the odds are greatly in our favor. Our task of the moment is to get the Ghent Canal in our hands. That will happen shortly."

BOOM OF DISTANT GUNS

SILENCED F. D. R.: A retired Army officer was lunching with some friends at a little German-type restaurant on Eleventh street.

A radio was blaring out some boogie-woogie music. The colonel tuned in on President Roosevelt's speech to the Congress.

But a waiter rushed up, right after the first burst of applause.

"You'll have to turn off that radio," he said.

"But I want to hear the President!" protested the colonel.

"Sorry," said the waiter, "but the boss says turn it off."

* * * *

They summoned the boss. He was obdurate.

"I don't want that radio on," he said, positively.

"You aren't a little pro-Nazi, are you?" inquired the colonel.

About 20 luncheers got up, canceled their orders and left.

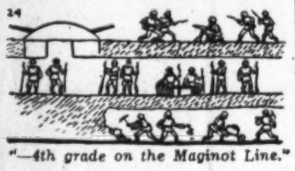
PRIZE PUN: After a week or so of acute war hysteria the Capital settled down to the long pull enough for Sir Willmott Lewis to coin an A-1 pun.

In an argument about liberalism, Jay Franklin asserted that a liberal always espouses forlorn hopes and lost causes.

"I see," said Sir Bill. "He's always for the under-dogmatism, eh?"



"—4th grade on the Maginot Line."

TOTS EMBATTLED, TOO. Even the fourth grade seems to be taking the war to heart. The b. g., who is 9 years old, revealed at dinner that her class is of the opinion that Hitler has tunneled under the Maginot Line.

"That's how he broke through," she said.

* * * *

At this point the b. b., who is in the first grade, chimed in.

"Yes," he said, "that explains why the Nazis are short of coal. They have all their coal miners at work tunneling under the Maginot Line!"

* * * *

FLYING SIEVE: Apropos of the new planes, one of the Senators on the military appropriations is telling privately an amazing bit of information gleaned by our military observers in England.

He reported that a big German raider plane, finally brought down by heavy antiaircraft, contained 10,000 holes where it had been pierced by machine gun fire, by actual count.

* * * *

Even if there was an error, and it was only 1,000 holes, the story is an astounding testimonial for the self-sealing gasoline tanks and the armor which protects the airplane crews.

Our Air Corps is tackling the problem of adding armor and self-sealing tank lining to planes now in production.

* * * *

G-2 ON THE JOB: Incidentally, it is the voluminous reports from American military intelligence officers in the war zones which have caused the disquiet at the War Dept.

* * * *

Their efficient day-by-day revelations have shown our generals that the new warfare is as different from the warfare of 1918 as the battle of Chateau Thiery was different from Gettysburg.

"—worshippers of the strong men."

FASCIST COLONELS? At a gathering of insiders this week a highly placed gentleman asserted that he could name 15 American colonels and generals of pronounced Fascist or pro-Nazi tendencies, much stronger than the traditional Army blood and iron.

* * * *

A high Army official, who heard this assertion, said the War Department is aware of this tendency among some officers, that Army personnel is constantly sifted for ideological vagaries, but that some slip through unscathed.

* * * *

MONROE REVAMPED? In the unofficial chatter which so often foreshadows officialdom's puzzles of tomorrow, the brainchild of our fifth President shows signs of an impending dusting-off, of providing new perplexities:

* * * *

1. MONROE TO THE BULGE?: One is the persistent talk of limiting the application of the Monroe Doctrine only as far South as the bulge of South America—that is, to the valley of the Amazon. This might (at least in German eyes) mean the end of the Monroe Doctrine.

* * * *

2. KING'S REFUGE? The other wild speculation involves the possible removal of the British capital and King to Canada—in which event the King would come under the protection of the Monroe Doctrine as it stands.

Both are exceedingly far-fetched—but they give you a rough idea of Washington's light conversation this week.

Indiana Cheats Contractors, Wire-Tapping Inquiry Told

Bielaski Charges They Must 'Kick Back' Funds to State Politicians; Minton Angrily Demands He Produce Proof

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Frank Bielaski, head of a New York detective agency, yesterday told the special Senate committee investigating wire-tapping that Indiana contractors are "kicking back" 10 per cent of their profits in the form of political contributions.

The charge, which led to angry cross-examination by Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, came after Bielaski disclosed that he had been paid by the Republican State Committee to investigate what he called "the 2 per cent racket instituted by Gov. McNutt."

Minton pointed out that no indictments had ever been returned in connection with investigations of the "2 per cent club" and then asked the witness:

"Did you know that the Republicans have 2 per cent clubs in Indiana?

Minton Demands Evidence

"No, I didn't," replied Bielaski, "but I know there's a 10 per cent club in Indiana—that's the kickback from contractors."

"You're under oath here," Minton shouted. "You tell this committee who paid 10 per cent and to whom it was paid. You put that statement into the record voluntarily. Now you back it up."

Bielaski said he believed he could place evidence in the matter before the committee. Minton demanded that the witness remain under subpena until he had done so, adding, "If such a thing were true, I would be just as interested as you in finding it out."

The committee's excursion into Indiana politics came early in Bielaski's testimony, which dealt chiefly with his alleged attempt to "frame" Democratic politicians in Philadelphia and his investigation, personally financed by Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, of corruption charges in Rhode Island.

Bielaski denied that checks totaling more than $7,000, which he received last year from Joseph N. Pew, jr., Pennsylvania Republican leader, were in payment for his investigation of prominent Pennsylvania Democrats.

Denies Pews's Involvement

The witness said he was paid by Pew for investigation of "an entirely different matter—pertaining to revival of the shipbuilding industry." He is "still interested in the merchant marine and subversive activities," the investigator added.

Bielaski insisted that he undertook his investigation of Pennsylvania politics at his own expense.

The committee will resume hearings at 10 a. m. Tuesday, when Gov. Vanderbilt is expected to testify.

A telegram received yesterday from Sevellon Brown, editor of the Providence Journal, denied that he or the Journal had been in any way responsible for the Rhode Island wire tapping. Mayor Thomas McCoy, of Pawtucket, asserted Wednesday that Brown was the "arch-conspirator" behind the wire tapping.

Chestnut Burr Drive Plan Laid

Hatch Bill To Be Reported Out Tuesday

Walter, of House Committee, Promises Vote on Measure

The Hatch bill to forbid political activity to State employes paid with Federal funds will be reported out of the Judiciary Committee Tuesday, Representative Walter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, high ranking committee member, said yesterday.

When Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, proposed that the committee reconvene today for further consideration of the bill, Representative Creal (Democrat), of Kentucky, pointed out that Celler's motion could not be acted upon because it was then past 12 o'clock, and a House rule forbids committees from meeting after noon without special permission.

Earlier in the morning, a motion to kill the bill lost by a vote of 14 to 8.

Amendment Weakens It

The committee yesterday approved one proposal which will apparently weaken the bill, an amendment permitting State employes, found guilty by the Civil Service Commission of violating the act, to obtain a jury trial on appeal to the courts. In this way, the entire case could be tried over again.

Under another amendment adopted yesterday, officers, directors or heads of any corporation or organization would be personally liable for prosecution if they wilfully violated the bill's prohibition against donations greater than $5,000 to political parties.

Dempsey "Has Faith"

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, yesterday urged his colleagues to sign what he called the "honor roll"—the petition discharging the Judiciary Committee of consideration of the bill. The petition now has 150 signatures of a requisite 218.

"I have faith in the sincerity of the people on the committee who tell me the bill is going to be reported out," Dempsey told reporters later, "but I also have regard for the ability of those who are trying to smother it."

round of Washington appointments:

"I think he should say Sunday night that he is not going to use the national defense program for his political advantage. The country is entitled to know."

Former President Herbert Hoover had arranged for a radio broadcast on "National Defense" at 6:30 Sunday night.

After arrangements for the President's speech were announced, the Republican National Committee postponed Hoover's radio time until 8:30 Monday night.

Informal explanation was that Hoover was offered a "better time" schedule Monday.

Informal belief was that Hoover, too, was awaiting an answer to Landon's third-term query.

Representative Wadsworth was reputed to be the next Republican on the White House calling list, but the New Yorker has received no invitation.

It was to confer with Wadsworth that the President postponed his appointment with former Gov. Landon and then scheduled the appointment again when Wadsworth couldn't be reached.

The New York Republican said the White House called his office while he was away and said it might call again.

Friends say definitely that Wadsworth will not take a Cabinet post if proffered one. New Dealers say no Cabinet job will be offered to Wadsworth or any other Republican—that all "coalition" talk comes from outside the White House.

Before addressing a National Press Club luncheon "off the record," Gannett received reporters at a downtown hotel, and "on the record" called Mr. Roosevelt's national defense conferences with Republicans a "smoke screen" to promote a third term.

"We are not at war, not in an emergency, and this is no time for a coalition Cabinet," said Gannett.

Landon, before leaving for New York, said he had his "private opinion" of President Roosevelt's reply to his third term query, "but I'm not saying what it is."

The President, through his secretary, said he had no time for "political statements," but thanked Landon for his suggestion.

The former Kansas Governor and 1936 Republican Presidential candidate lunched at the Capitol with 15 Republican Senators, guests of Senator Capper, Kansas' "favorite son."

Then he called at the State Department to discuss the European situation with Secretary Hull for almost an hour.

His tongue slipped with reporters later and he called the Secretary of State "President Hull."

"Well," he laughed, when questioned, "I have told my friends that if the American people had to choose between Hull and a Republican candidate, they would not make a serious mistake either way."

He told reporters he never had opposed Hull's reciprocal trade program and said America must be ready to take part in building up post-war international commerce once peace comes.

It should be obvious to all, Landon said, that the United States has an important interest in the economic stability. He said world stability depends on economic stability may depend on whether a post-war world continues to trade on a free basis or a large part of it on the "barter system."

There were increasing indications no Republican will be asked to join the Cabinet. But a Democrat who formerly aspired to the Navy post called at the White House yesterday—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, of Missouri.

Stark, a third-term advocate, is now in a sharp three-way race for Missouri's Democratic Senatorial nomination. He told reporters he knew nothing of the Cabinet post talk or of Secretary Edison's plans to vacate it to run for Governor of New Jersey.

Resignation of James H. R. Cromwell as Minister to Canada to run for New Jersey's Democratic Senatorial nomination meanwhile revived speculation on another potential Cabinet vacancy. Reports were that Secretary of War Woodring may be offered Cromwell's Canadian post.

As coalition talk dwindled, former President Hoover, in Boston, said the President not only has the right but has the simple means of obtaining Republican Party views on "transcendental questions of national defense, peace and war."

The "simple approach," Hoover said, would be to invite Senate and House minority leaders into conference to obtain the views of Republicans "as a party."

The Gallup Poll

Sentiment for Selling Airplanes to Allies On Credit Grows Since Lowlands Invasion

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., May 23.—The Nazi blitzkrieg with the resulting grave military situation in France has increased substantially the number of American voters willing to supply the Allies with airplanes on credit if they cannot pay cash.

GALLUP

When the Nazi invasion began, some leaders here suggested removing all bans on credit to England and France, while a few even thought we should give them whatever war supplies they need free of charge. Thus far the British have not exhausted their supply of money, but under the conditions of modern total warfare some observers feel Britain's ready cash may not last many months longer.

Credit Is Favored

The semifinal returns of a public poll begun May 15, five days after the Nazi invasion of Holland and Belgium, show that a slight majority of voters favor selling the Allies warplanes on credit, if they cannot pay cash.

"If England and France are unable to pay cash for airplanes they buy in this country, do you think we should sell them planes on credit supplied by our Government?"

Yes	51%
No	49

Nearly everyone approached on the issue had a definite opinion. Only 1 in every 16 (6 per cent) was undecided.

The results represent a growing trend of sentiment toward the granting of credit. In April when the public was polled on a similar issue, only 34 per cent were in favor of granting credit, 66 per cent opposed—a contrast to the much more even division of sentiment today.

Involvement Feared

Opposition to granting credit rests largely on the fear that loans, credits, or financial commitments may get the United States into war. Two voters in the poll expressed views typical of the whole opposition group when they said:

"If our money is over there, we will be over there, too" and "Loans were really responsible for getting us into the last war."

Others objected to sales on credit because the Allies "haven't paid their last war debts,' and because the United States needs warplanes and other materials here at home.

Among voters who think the United States should sell to the Allies on credit the principal reasons have to do with self-defense. "It is better to give them planes on credit," said one typical voter, "than to go to war ourselves." Others pointed out that if such credits "keep the Allies going, we may be able to stay out ourselves." Another group expressed the view that if the United States values world freedom it must be prepared to help pay for it. One voter added:

War Refugee Describes Horrors

Eyewitness Tells How Parachutists, Bombs, Took City

The first hours of the German invasion of Belgium, the part played by parachute troops, and the flight of the population of the Belgian capital and other cities to France, is described in the following eye-witness dispatch by a member of the United Press Brussels office who has just reached Paris.

By Gaston Derycke
By the United Press

Paris, May 23.—I have just reached Paris after a flight overland from Brussels along roads choked with millions of refugees. The sights I saw are almost beyond belief.

Since last week-end a tragedy of vast proportions has been under way day and night along the roads southward from the Belgian capital.

Thousands have lost their lives; families have been separated; motorcars and other vehicles have been abandoned; a whole population has been swallowed in a tide of spreading, stabbing war—a war without lines and apparently without organization.

Starts With First Bombs

Let me start with Friday morning, May 10. It is 5 a. m. I am awakened by the roar of violent explosions, bombs and antiaircraft fire.

I dress hurridly and run into the street.

German planes roar over, about 30 of them, circle a few times in leisurely fashion and then separate into formation to dive on the Evere Airdome and the Schaerbeek railway station.

"Perhaps it will not be so bad," I say to myself. "They are bombing only military objectives."

Then I remember that there are many houses, packed with civilians, right against the airdrome and the railway station.

I hurry to the bombed areas.

There I find many bombs have missed their marks. The houses have been hit. Some of them are on fire, others are masses of ruins from which firemen and volunteer workers are dragging bodies. I see the mangled corpses of women and children. Some of them are the victims of our own shrapnel.

Disguises Are Numerous

Air raid alarms are sounded almost every hour as the day passes.

Toward nightfall stories of the landing of parachute troops begin to circulate. They appear in the most unexpected places, in commandeered cars, on foot, barricaded in buildings. Stories circulate that some ofthem are captured on alighting disguised as civilians or as priests or even nuns.

During the night people begin leaving Brussels. Streets are crowded with motor cars.

On Sunday the news is worse. The main German forces are reported drawing nearer and our telegraphic communications are failing. I am ordered to Paris.

I search the streets until I find a taxicab driver willing to drive me and my wife toward the coast. The roads are jammed but we finally reach the sea at Coxyde along with thousands of other refugees.

The French frontier is opened Sunday night and the great southward trek begins.

We pass the night in La Panne and leave there the following morning at 6 a. m. by railway for Dunkerque, reaching the French channel port to find the railway station has been bombed. Again some of the bombs have gone wild and people have been killed.

Roads Packed With Refugees

From Dunkerque one must proceed as best he can. The roads are packed literally solid with refugees—thousands of automobiles and bicycles, horse carts, pedestrians carrying bundles on their backs. A motor hearse passes us filled with people and with others on its roof.

We manage to obtain an automobile but the gasoline situation always is critical. We pass garage after garage with placards reading: "No gas."

It is difficult, too, to find anything to eat. Food stores in many places have been stripped clean.

Our motor expires as we reach a village in Normandy. We have lost track of the time—perhaps it is Tuesday or Wednesday.

I run here and there begging for gasoline and finally encounter a man who can spare a few precious quarts, enough to carry us to Rouen. Much of the time the German planes are overhead but they do not attack us. As refugees we probably are more important to them alive than dead because we are choking the highways, tangling up military operations.

Traffic Inches Along

After Rouen the crush in the roads, if possible, is worse. Traffic is one solid, stumbling mass, inching along. Car after car fails for lack of fuel and has to be pushed aside. Soon the road literally is lined with abandoned vehicles. More and more people are walking. Old men and women are attempting to help the children. Soldiers, caught in the crush, plod along with us. Many women are broken by fatigue and fall by the roadside. The pace is so slow that cyclists dismount. Many abandon their machines.

Then more automobiles begin coming in from side roads. They inch into the traffic and bump each other front and rear in a solid line. Frequently the traffic is entirely stalled and we cannot move for hours.

Peasants with horses, who at first were making good time, fall out of line as the animals begin to drop from lack of food and water.

We pass through village after village where there is no shelter. We sleep in the car beside the road. One night it rained torrents but we did not even awaken.

Finally we abandon the car and walk to a town where we find a train leaving for Paris.

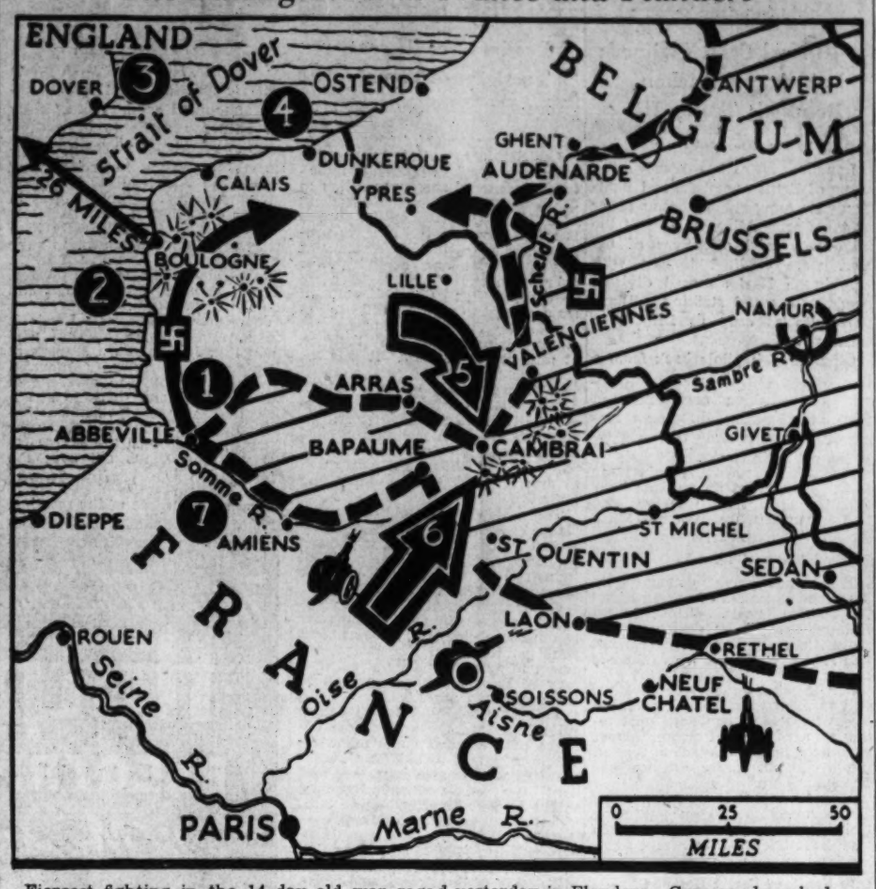
It is good to be here, but I shudder when I think of the roads from Brussels.

5,000,000 Believed Refugees

Geneva, Switzerland, May 23 (AP). Red Cross officials tonight said civilian refugees in France and unoccupied regions of Belgium probably numbered close to 5,000,000.

Count de Rouge, French secretary general of the League of Red Cross Societies, before leaving for Paris tonight, said France's refugee problem was "more critical than at any time in the last World War." Half the civil population of Belgium is on the march, he declared, but tens of thousands of them were caught in the war area.

The Battleground in France and Flanders



Fiercest fighting in the 14-day-old war raged yesterday in Flanders. Germans launched a new attack and recaptured Abbeville (1), 12 miles from channel, and Berlin said it was "quite possible" Boulogne (2) had been captured. Dover (3), England, and Dunkerque (4), France, were "effectually bombed" by power-diving Stuka bombers. The French, pocketed with their British and Belgian Allies, used tanks, planes, motorized units and artillery in a see-saw battle (arrow, 5) with the Germans along a 25-mile line between Cambrai and Valenciennes. Near St. Quentin (6), the French were moving north, attempting to meet the Allied forces near Cambrai and pinch off the Nazi western spearhead. At Amiens (7) the French launched a slashing counter-attack and cracked the German salient which had extended to the channel, Paris reported

Pageant to Depict Pan-Americanism

Delegates from South American embassies, the Pan American Union and the State Department will attend a pageant depicting the evolution of Pan Americanism, to be staged tonight at 8 p. m. by Wilson Teachers College, it was announced last night.

Twenty-one republics of the Americas will be represented in the presentation, to be held at the Sylvan Theater. The pageant will revolve around Miss Pan America, portrayed by Jane Fletcher, of Wilson, and the May Queen, Marvis Gee, will be featured with her court.

A cast of more than 200 and facilities of the National Park Service will be used.

Mrs. Grosjean Plans to Sail With Husband

Passport to Be Given Davies Daughter, Bride of Belgian

When—and if—Lieut. Robert Leon Grosjean goes to join his regiment in Belgium, he may take with him his bride of a year, the former Emlen Knight Davies, daughter of Joseph E. Davies, special assistant to the Secretary of State.

At least, The Post learned last night, difficulties over issuance of a passport to Mrs. Grosjean, which threatened to separate the couple on the eve of their first wedding anniversary, have been ironed out.

But Grosjean, officer in a Belgian mechanized unit, declined to predict when they would leave, or that they would leave at all.

He has been beset by so many uncertainties in a world of uncertainties that he'll make no prediction "more than 24 hours ahead of time," he explained.

Lieut. and Mrs. Grosjean originally planned to leave yesterday for New York, where they were to have awaited word of the State Department's decision on her passport. Grosjean was to have sailed Saturday.

Informed last night that there would be no passport difficulties, Grosjean indicated other obstacles had cropped up and he couldn't be sure whether these would be surmounted.

Mrs. Grosjean was to have served in France as a Red Cross worker while her husband was at the front. Her marriage last May 27 to the young Belgina, whom she met in Moscow while her father was Ambassador to the Soviet Union, brought 700 guests to the country home of her brother-in-law and sister, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, at Havre de Grace, Md.

May Be Together After All

Lieut. Robert Leon Grosjean and his bride of a year, the former Emlen Knight Davies, daughter of the special assistant to the Secretary of State. Passport difficulties have been ironed out with the State Department and when—and if—Lieut. Grosjean leaves to join his regiment in Belgium he may now be able to take his wife. He indicated, however, that other difficulties have developed

Italy's Entry 'Won't Affect' Great Battle

Swiss Papers Agree Allies Set to Meet Duce's First Attack

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, May 23.—Usually circumspect Swiss newspapers said today Italy's entrance into the war was "only a question of days," but Allied and German legation spokesmen agreed it would make no difference in the outcome of the great battle now in progress in northern France.

These officials said they expected a decision in that terrific struggle before the Italians could make their weight felt.

Even should Italy declare war tomorrow, observers said, the French in Somaliland, North Africa, and in the Alps as well as the Allied forces in the Near East and Mediterranean could meet the shock until the western decision is reached.

Although the French, like the Germans, have withdrawn the major part of their motorized divisions from the Swiss frontier to throw them into the main battle, their "cover" troops remain in the mountain forts facing the Italians.

Observers here estimated upwards of 40 Allied divisions and a corresponding mass of Germans were being held out of the western battle for the decisive moment.

Business, U. S. To Cooperate For Defenses

Military Planes To Be Standardized To Speed Production

Business and government began working shoulder to shoulder yesterday in an effort for emergency cooperation unequaled since NRA days.

Officials and businessmen conferred all day on questions of legislation, patents, cooperation, labor and finance.

Secretary Morgenthau, announcing that types of military planes will be standardized by means of patent pooling, for speedier warcraft production, named a board of experts on design to choose the models slated for mass production in many factories at the same time.

The plan to standardize planes was approved by Commerce Secretary Hopkins, who suggested that it be extended to nondefense industries for emergency reasons.

Hopkins Is Confident

Hopkins, after meeting with 60 industrialists of the Business Advisory Council, said he was confident they could meet any production emergency—"and that means more than most people think."

The industrialists, led by Chairman, William L. Bath, of Philadelphia, called on President Roosevelt and pledged the "full aim" of the Advisory Council to "complete unity" in cooperation.

A plan for Government-financed storage pools of vital raw materials needed by industry was outlined by Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator.

Machine Tools Next

A conference with leaders in the machine tool industry, similar to the aircraft parley this week, was called to meet at the Treasury Monday.

Explaining the standardization of plane types, Secretary Morgenthau said that one or two types of engines would be selected in each horsepower classification—an attempt to break the "bottleneck" that has been slowing plane assembly.

Attorneys of two major airplane engine plants were already at the Treasury drafting contracts for production of their models on license in plants of other firms, Morgenthau said.

Cooperating in choosing the final models for mass production, he said, are the Army and Navy, Civil Aeronautics Authority, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, Massachusetts and California Institutes of Technology, the Guggenheim School for Aviation, and other technical schools.

Experts Are Chosen

Dr. George Jackson Mead, vice chairman of N. A. C. A. and called by Morgenthau "the greatest living authority on airplane engines," was hired by the Treasury, at $10,000 a year, to head the expert model selectors. Others chosen were Prof. Edward Story Taylor, engine expert from M. I. T.; Dr. Theodore van Karman, Hungarian-born, formerly director of the Aeronautical Laboratory at Aachen, Germany, and director since 1930 of the Guggenheim Laboratory at California Institute of Technology; Dr. Clark B. Millikan, professor of aeronautics at the California school, and Dr. A. E. Lombard, jr., also a California Tech instructor, with ten years' experience at Curtiss and Curtiss-Wright factories.

Loan Administrator Jones presented a bill to Congress amending the RFC Act to enable RFC to finance corporations that would make loans to industry to acquire and store raw materials, expand plants and equipment and increase working capital.

The change would expand RFC into a defense-lending unit of the Government, providing the financial ammunition for the President's arms increase program.

Attorney General Jackson warned against price-fixing and other illegal combinations.

"Any fixing of prices is a violation of the anti-trust laws," he said, indicating that for the moment there would be no relaxation of the laws against trusts. "But I won't say there won't be" such relaxation, he added.

Two Held for Jury On Attack Charge

Samuel A. Vanchure, 32, former guard in a Government building, was held for the Prince Georges County, Md., grand jury when arraigned yesterday before Police Judge Alan Bowie at Hyattsville on a charge of criminally assaulting a 20-year old Washington beauty shop employe.

The girl told the court the alleged assault took place at Greenbelt, Md., May 8.

Harry Cockrell, 24, of the 900 block of H street northwest, was held for the grand jury on a charge of criminally assaulting a 13-year-old Washington girl.

U.S. Is Liberty's Last Refuge, Hoover Says

To Keep Democracy Alive Is Our Duty, He Tells Boys Clubs

By the Associated Press

Boston, May 23.—Former Presidentdent Herbert Hoover asserted tonight that "here in America is the last chance of making the system of liberty vital to men," and maintained that this country had the double duty of repairing democracy's failures and of constantly rebuilding it.

"These are grave days for the future of civilization and for our own country," he said in an address prepared for the annual meeting of the Boys Clubs of America, an organization which he serves as chairman of its board of directors.

"Our minds," Hoover declared, "are distracted by the infinite tragedies which unroll day by day. That the independence of peaceful nations should be murdered fires our indignation. That women and children should be ruthlessly slaughtered brims us to tears."

The Nation's former Chief Executive said that the work of the Boys Club—that of "giving a full chance in life to the pavement boy"—was not "trivial in this world storm," adding that "our stern duty is to carry on the processes of humane endeavor in this democracy."

With high praise for the Boys Club aim of giving "every child an equal chance," Hoover said that "just as the Fascists build their boys as part of a military state, we want to build our boys to support a democratic state.

"We citizens of the largest remaining democracy have a high duty and a high purpose in making easy the path of the democratic ideal."

Hoover declared that Government probably would concern itself to a greater and greater extent with the affairs of the Nation's youth.

"But," he added, "it will be a sign of degeneration when we as private citizens shall surrender building to the state; that is not the place where personality and character can ever be built.

"This service requires sacrifice, understanding, toleration, generosity. The methods of a dictator are too simple and too easy."

Bundles for Britain Puts 5 on Committee

Five members of the committee sponsoring Bundles for Britain in Washington were announced yesterday by Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and Mrs. George Angus Garrett, committee heads.

They are Mrs. John Walker, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Morris Cafritz, and Mrs. John Guider. Bundles for Britain was organized to solicit and forward old clothing to Belgian and Dutch refugees in England.

The House removed the $50,000 limit on the size of WPA projects to permit use of such funds for large defense projects.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, urged in the Senate that the United States "turn the scale of battle" in Europe by sending goods, money and war planes to aid the Allies at once.

The House wrote into the relief bill a proviso to deny WPA employment to Communists or members of Nazi "bunds."

Both the Washington and North Carolina, laid down three years ago after treaty bars on battleship construction expired, will have a 5,000-mile cruising radius and mount nine 16-inch guns. Recent orders have advanced their completion dates by weeks.

President Roosevelt's Sunday night address will be broadcast on three Nation-wide chains and translated into German, Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese, will go out over short-wave to Europe and Latin America.

White House Secretary Stephen Early, in announcing the talk, said it would be a "straight forward and factual report from the Government to the people." Involving a "general discussion of the defense situation and defense needs," the address will deal with agricultural problems, prices, wages, commodities and materials for war, Early said.

The naval supply bill, approved 78 to 0, now goes to the House for action on the emergency fund additions. Hearings were started immediately before the House naval appropriations subcommittee, and it is expected the measure shortly will be sent to conference. Similar procedure is planned for the $1,823,254,624 Army Appropriation bill, passed by the Senate Wednesday.

Air Strength to Be Doubled

Increase of the Navy's enlisted strength from 145,000 to 170,000 and a similar boost in the Marine Corps from 25,000 to 34,000 is provided under the $472,776,000 emergency outlay carried in the bill. The latter also would provide $100,000,000 for speeding up ship construction, and $200,000,000—half in cash and half in contractual authority—for planes and pilot training.

A total of 2,970 airplanes—2,500 of them training craft—would be bought under the bill. Counting out a few replacement craft, the additions will about double the existing plane strength of 1,800 in service and 933 on order.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, testified at hearings on the bill that $10,101,000 will be spent to convert 22 laid-up destroyers into fast mine-sweepers, small seaplane tenders, and into a new type of naval vessel—"antiaircraft defense vessels." He did not explain what they would be like.

Other funds would be devoted to purchase of submarine nets to protect harbors, protection of ships against magnetic mines, and the procurement of rapid-firing 1 1/10th-inch antiaircraft guns, some of which would go on the antiaircraft destroyers.

The bill, carrying $1,302,265,038 in cash and $171,491,890 in contractual authority, provides $68,000,000 for President Roosevelt to spend as he ees fit. Admiral Stark declared he would ask the President to use some of the money for buying steel helmets for warship deck personnel to guard against bomb splinters and for reconditioning laid-up submarines for active service.

Project to Follow Transfer Approval; Jackson Announces

Registration—and perhaps, later, fingerprinting—of every one of the more than 3,000,000 aliens in the United States would follow transfer of the Immigration Service to the Justice Department, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, announced yesterday.

As a special House committee rushed legislation to make President Roosevelt's order for the transfer effective in ten days, instead of the usual 60, Jackson disclosed his plans to compile records of the identification and whereabouts of all noncitizens.

At the same time, Jackson said that President Roosevelt "anticipated and prepared to meet 'fifth-column' activities in the United States months ago."

Warning Issued

In a grave tone Jackson read a formal statement saying "citizens may be helpful to the Government" by reporting "acts, threats, or evidence of sabotage, espionage or other disloyal activities" to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Linked with this invitation, Jackson issued a warning to citizens to "refrain from joining any organization until they know" its source of funds, its members and backers and what use is made of their dues or contributions.

Jackson complimented the FBI, recently under fire from Senator Norris and others, for "capably, zealously and effectively" carrying out its task, adding that the bureau headed by J. Edgar Hoover may be enlarged "if necessary."

The work of listing aliens will fall to Solicitor General Biddle.

In response to requests for a definition of what constituted fifth column activity, Jackson said the term includes "sabotage and preparation to commit sabotage, destruction of property useful in defense, military or industrial espionage, and any representation here of foreign governments or foreign parties trying to influence Government policy on behalf of foreign governments."

Committee Speeds Passage

The special House Government Reorganization Committee, of which Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, is chairman, adopted a resolution for quick Congressional approval of the immigration transfer. Leaders said they hoped to push the resolution through the House by the week-end. Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, said he had learned that Senate leaders hoped to pass the plan by unanimous consent, a short-cut procedure.

Other developments in the alien control drive:

The House Rules Committee planned to vote Tuesday on a bill to deport Harry Bridges, C. I. O. West Coast maritime leader.

Representative Dies, chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities, introduced a resolution to appropriate another $100,000 for his committee, which previously obtained $75,000 for this year.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, issued a statement demanding "drastic" legislation compelling aliens to be fingerprinted and registered.

Navy Turns Away 2,400 Jobseekers

Officials of the Washington Navy Yard said yesterday they had turned away nearly 2,400 job applicants in two days, most of them seeking work as laborers, and announced that what they want are machinists.

Most of the job seekers, officials said, came with the idea that the Navy Yards were hiring their own men to speed up the defense program. The rush started after the President's order authorizing two working shifts and a 15,000 man increase in the Navy Yards.

The jobs, it was pointed out, are being filled from civil service rolls. Urgent need now is for machinists, and an examination for these jobs is open now at the Navy Labor Board in the Washington Yard. The examination is planned to set up a list of machinists eligible for jobs.

William B. Belknap, chairman of the committee, said he believed his group expressed "the sentiment of to meet the expected future increase of work.

So far, a list of eligible machinists already set up has been enough to meet the needs of the Navy Yard, and the list is not exhausted, officials said.

It will be used up fast, however, when the expanded defense program is moving, officials said, and they would like to get more names. The examinations do not require a written test, and applicants are graded on the basis of experience.

While the machinist exam is the only one open now, other exams for jobs at the local yard are expected to be announced within the next few weeks, officials said.

18,000 Jobseekers At N. Y. Navy Yard

New York, May 23.—More than 18,000 workmen have applied for work at the New York Navy Yard in Brooklyn this week as a result of President Roosevelt's recommendation that the defenses of the United States be strengthened, it was learned today. "Between 7,000 and 8,000 men filed applications today and the line of job seekers extended for more than three blocks.

Capt. Charles A. Dunn, industrial manager of the yard, said difficulty was being encountered in obtaining qualified mechancis in such trades as welding and machine shop work. In two or three months about 2,000 men will be hired.

British Launch Wave on Wave Plane Attack

40 Nazi Craft Claimed; Leipzig and Aachen Bombed; Trains Hit

By the Associated Press

London, May 23.—Wave after wave of British bombers and fighter planes, flung at the front and rear of the German lines in one of the mightiest aerial offensives of the war, were credited tonight with bombing a Nazi armored division headquarters and striking military objectives as deep as Leipzig in Germany.

Other British pilots back from a day and night of war overhead told of smashing communication lines and blowing a German ammunition train and two supply trains off their tracks.

Meanwhile, residents of three Kent towns spent an anxious hour listening to air raid warnings and to frequent gunfire in a new Nazi air feint at Britain's east coast.

40 Nazi Planes Claimed

Three successive communiques described successes of daring Royal Air Force raids. The British claimed damage or destruction of more than 40 German warplanes and said five of their own failed to return.

Air Marshal Joubert de la Ferte said in a broadcast Allied "bomber losses have been made up" and although a number of fighter planes have been lost "the losses in trained pilots was not severe and also had been made up."

He added that it was impossible for Germans to "go on producing trained crews at the rate at which they have been lost in recent fighting."

City South of Berlin Bombed

While bombers pounded and strafed German reserves and tank columns moving up through Belgium and northern France, at least one flight was reported to have pierced to the heart of Germany. It struck at a power station near Liepzig—300 miles from Germany's western frontier and almost directly south of Berlin.

Military objectives north of Aachen, just inside the German frontier from northeastern Belgium, and factories and furnaces at industrial Saarburg, just across the frontier from Luxembourg, also were bombed.

Returning pilots were quoted as telling of bitter air fighting over the ground battle line, blasting lorries and tanks, dropping "close on to 100 high explosive bombs" on a Nazi armored division headquarters.

The raids started late yesterday, and continued last night and today.

Maj. Gen. Wesson Guest

Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson, chief of ordnance, U. S. A., will be guest at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Post, Army Ordnance Association, to be held at 12:15 p. m. today at the Willard Hotel. Col. Francis H. Miles, jr., commandant of the Army Industrial College and president of the post, will preside. An attendance of 200 is expected.

Senate Snag Hits Labor Antispy Bill

Leaders See Threat To Defense Plans In Its Provisions

By the Associated Press

Legislation to outlaw "oppressive labor practices" in interstate industry encountered sharp opposition in the Senate yesterday from members of both major parties on the ground it might slow up the defense program and grant to the Secretary of Labor a "life and death" power over business.

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, sought to send the bill back to the Labor Committee for further study, saying that while it struck at undesirable "abuses," it was too complicated.

Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, chairman of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee which recommended the measure, argued that it should be passed because the "first requisite of a nation prepared to defend itself is a contented and united people."

The bill would prohibit use of "labor spies," "strikebreakers," armed guards outside an employer's property and possession or use of industrial munitions such as tear gas and machine guns.

Goods produced by violators could not be shipped in interstate commerce, and the Government could not lend money or award contracts to firms found by the Secretary of Labor to have engaged in the proscribed practices.

Taft asserted that the measure might increase the cost of the defense program and make manufacturers reluctant to bid for Government work. He also expressed fear that the anti-espionage section might hamper investigation of "subversive" activities in industry.

Assails Measure

New York, May 23 (AP).—Jeremiah F. Gross, national executive committeeman of the American Legion, today assailed the La Follette Civil Liberties bill as "a Trojan horse" measure and a "cloak for Fifth Columns and wholesale sabotage."

O'Connell, Purdum Are Promoted By Roosevelt

President Roosevelt yesterday promoted Ambrose O'Connell, of New York, from Second to First Assistant Postmaster General.

O'Connell will succeed William W. Howes, resigned recently because he wanted to become active again in South Dakota politics.

The President also sent to the Senate the nomination of Smith W. Purdum, of Maryland, now Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, to be Second Assistant.

Subject to Senate confirmation, the President reappointed Charles M. Hite to be secretary of the Territory of Hawaii.

Pro-Allies Rally Called In Louisville

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—A group of civic and industrial leaders today announced a "pro-Allies" rally for Saturday night to urge Congress to repeal "all neutrality legislation that stands in the way of giving the Allies all the help in our power, short of involving us in war or of declaring war."

Announcement of the rally in a half-page advertisement in the Louisville Times was signed by 21 persons, including Mark Ethridge, general manager of the Times and the Courier-Journal.

Among the signers was Lewis J. Gorin, jr., a Louisville attorney, who in March, 1936, while a student at Princeton University, announced the formation of the Veterans of Future Wars and demanded "anticipatory" war service bonuses immediately. In January of that year Congress had passed the $2,000,000,000 veterans' bonus bill over the President's veto.

The main purpose of the meeting, he said, is "to formulate resolutions which will show Congress our sentiment."

Men in All Walks Apply To Join Army

Recruiter Suspects Fifth Columnist Among Applicants

Old men, college professors, preachers and even a mysterious character suspected of "fifth column" affiliation, are answering Uncle Sam's call to arms at the Washington recruiting station, 631 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

"I read and hear our good United States is in some crisis as regards to another war," 63-year-old Henry Herner, of Chicago, former corporal, wrote Technical Sergt. Norman W. Morgan, acting first sergeant of the local recruiting office.

"Under no compulsion, I wish to do my share again with some help that I can bestow for my country. . . . I am in good shape. First, good eyesight and also good hearing; third, a couple of good military legs." He enclosed military orders showing he was a member of the Sixteenth Battery, Field Artillery, at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1904.

Brought Proof Along

Armed with photostatic copies of two university diplomas, a 53-year-old college professor breezed into the office yesterday to offer his services "in this time of need," Sergt. Morgan reported.

The professor, whose name was withheld, was quoted as saying he has taught at colleges in the Philippines, China and Japan and was now in Government service here.

To prove his physical fitness, he offered to "race anybody in this office to the Washington Monument and back," said Sergt. Morgan.

"The professor," said the recruiting officer, "thinks this country will be involved in the war and is willing to throw up everything and enlist as a private. He said the country needs him."

Harold Fenerstoche, Newark, N. J., a preacher, wrote: "It is my ambition and desire to service God and my country by serving the men of our Army. Yes, I would like to obtain the position of chaplain . . . Please let me prove my calling as a minister of God."

Such letters, said Sergt. Morgan, are sent to the War Department for answer and filing, since the age limit for enlistments is 35.

The most persistent of the ineligible would-be soldiers, Sergt. Morgan said, is a little man with a German accent, in and out the office for at least two weeks.

"First," said Sergt. Morgan, "he said he was a Pole. A few days later he came back and said he was born in Brooklyn. Then he returned today with a Washington birth certificate, evidently thinking I wouldn't recognize him. I told him he would have to get documentary proof that the name on the birth certificate was his before we would consider him for enlistment.

"Those birds don't fool us. We know what they're after."

Asked if he thought the man was a "fifth columnist," Sergt. Morgan said "I don't think it, I know it."

53,000 More Sought

The Washington recruiting office, which serves the counties of Fairfax and Arlington in Virginia and Montgomery, Prince Georges, St. Marys and Charles in Maryland, as well as the District, is making preparations to do its part in the Army's drive for 53,000 additional soldiers. This would inrease the Army to its peacetime limit of 280,000 troops.

The local campaign, expected to go into full swing next Monday, includes radio nad newspaper publicity and a plan to obtain the cooperation of District business houses by asking them to insert appeals for soldiers in their advertisements.

With the drive not yet launched in force, only half a hundred men have been recruited here during its first three days, Sergt. Morgan said.

Twice as many "soldiers of fortune," seeking information on how to join the Allied armies, have been referred to French and English embassies.

When they get there, however, they are told international law, as well as the United States neutrality law, prohibits such recruiting in this country.

Mexicans Check Ports for Nazis

Mexico City, May 23 (AP).—Mexican authorities have sent special agents to entry ports to check reports that an extraordinary number of Germans and Communists of various nationalities have entered the country recently.

The action was taken as government forces watched closely for any "fifth column" maneuvers.

Foreign sources said four known German intelligence agents had arrived recently, and observers noted an increasing number of Germans at Mexico City tea rooms.

uate Lille or any of the other big cities in the pocket.

German troops during the last 48 hours have been widening their bulge toward the channel ports on the Picardy coast. Detachments coming from Abbeville and Arras over St. Pol and Montreuil, have evidently been able to push northward toward Calais, which should place Boulogne in more or less immediate danger.

The Germans like to point out the resemblance between the Flanders-Artois struggle now under way to the Kutno battle which decided the Polish campaign, but at the same time they cautiously admit that in this they are up against a better-equipped, better-led and stronger adversary who has an additional trump of an air force, which the Poles did not have by the time the Germans came to grips with them.

The Reich military spokesman had pointed words for those impatient Germans for whom the clean-up of the pocket did not proceed fast enough. After what he called the superhuman pace kept for the first week of the offensive, the troops could not be expected to keep up the same speed against a well-armed enemy, but he predicted the outcome would be the same as the Kutno battle, where the Poles were caught in numerous separate vises surrounding their regiments one by one.

The French appear to be successfully holding their lines along the Somme and Aisne rivers up to Montmedy, where the Germans admit the French have gone into "defensive positions." This may mean they have finally been able to stem the German onslaught, digging in behind natural defenses offered by river and canal systems. It may also mean German pressure hereabouts has diminished to concentrate on the reduction of the Picardy-Artois pocket.

Along this front the line now seems to run along the Somme, with the French holding the south shore, then the canal connecting the Aisne and Oise rivers southwest of Laon and continuing north of Rheims along the Asine in the direction of Montmedy, to the southern tip of the Franco-Belgian frontier.

Bad weather is stated to have considerably hindered Wedensday's air force operations on both sides, the Germans claiming only nine Allied planes against the loss of five of their own.

For the first time the communique mentions air attacks on an English port. Dover, opposite Calais, is supposed to nave been heavily bombed yesterday. Nazi commentators on the military situation are gleefully saying that the German offensive is now obviously shaping up as a thrust against England.

The big battle may be expected when the Germans have moved sufficient infantry into their Abbeville salient. This they claim they are having no trouble in doing, which means the moment for the test against a million Allied troops supposedly cut off in the pocket is rapidly approaching. Similarly, they say they are experiencing no difficulty in supplying their troops over lines lengthening in proportion to their big advances.

Munitions, food and replacements are brought up by an efficient organization which requires 1,700 men for each division to man this service. At the beginning of the offensive each man carried six days' food, and meanwhile the supply service got under way, relying on a multitude of trucks and other vehicles where railroads were not adequate or practical.

British Fear Eire Invasion

meeting in London tonight, that with the war "brought with astonishing rapidity to our very gates, we are in one of the most dangerous situations this country has faced. It is no good belittling it or trying to minimize it."

He said the situation was "by no means desperate," even though "the Germans have made progress and are now attacking Boulogne, where our troops are fighting against great odds, and even though Calais may be in danger."

"We know, if we are defeated in this battle, that we still have the integrity of this island, our vast superiority at sea and our faith to defend us," he declared, adding that a century ago "we faced a greater genius than Hitler in Napoleon and went on to a victorious end."

The German push through the Arras-Bapaume gap was first related here by a communique this morning from British general headquarters, which said that after fierce fighting in the Arras sector, "we have successfully maintained our position on this flank of the gap between Arras and Bapaume," a distance of 15 miles. Through this gap, the communique added, "the enemy has succeeded in passing armored elements followed by motorized units which succeeded in reaching the neighborhood of the coast. Steps are being taken to guard vital points against these "detachments."

Revealing the German smash across the Scheldt in Belgium, the communique said: "The Germans have attacked the Escaut (Scheldt) positions at many places without success except at Oudenarde, where they have forced a crossing."

In July, 1709, Oudenarde was the scene of a great victory by the Allies under Winston Churchill's ancestor, the Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene of Savoy, over the troops of Louis XIV.

As the war continued in France tonight, towns in East Kent and on the southeast coast of England had 45-minute air raid warning. Hundreds fled to shelter, but the police and air raid wardens had their hands full with throngs who preferred to stand in the strets, and watch swarms of British fighter planes skimming overhead.

Planes Driven Off

Midway between the French and British coast a large flight of enemy aircraft was seen. Antiaircraft batteries on the French side opened fire and brought one of the raiders down. The British gun crews stood guard along the sea front and atop the famous chalk cliffs of Dover.

At one east Kent town 100 British fighting planes were sighted flying seaward.

For many hours today heavy gun fire was heard on the southeast coast. The sound of firing shook windows and the ground, and was almost a continuous roar.

Reynolds Sees Peril to U. S. In RefugeeShip

May Be Inviting Second Lusitania, Senator Declares

By International News Service

Warning that sailing of the American liner President Roosevelt for Ireland today to return American refugees from the British isles "may be inviting a second Lusitania" was sounded last night by Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina.

At the same time Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, announced receipt of a telegram from a San Francisco vessel master, Fred O. Barker, urging Downey to protest the scheduled voyage, "since it might endanger United States neutrality."

Reynolds, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said:

"None of us know what might happen to that ship, and if anything should happen, we would have no recourse. I hope to God she gets over and back safely, but we are chancing a second Lusitania in sending her.

"If she is loaded to absolute capacity with Americans when she returns it will well be worth the risk. Let there not be a single alien refugee aboard that ship.

"I heartily commend the method by which the State Department is dispatching the vessel. Perfect openness in the voyage, and the fact the ship will be neither armed nor convoyed, is the only reasonable safe way to send her, but she can still strike a floating mine."

Downey said he had sent the telegram he received to the White House "for the information of the President."

May Require Two Trips

London, May 23 (INS).—So many Americans are rushing to book passage on the United States liner President Roosevelt, which sails for Eire from New York tomorrow, that she probably will have to make two trips, it was indicated tonight.

A late afternoon rush at the booking office in London added hundreds to the list, which is expected to reach 2,000—while the President Roosevelt was to take but 1,000 on the trip.

Rosemary Kennedy, only child remaining in Europe of Ambassador Joseph Kennedy's nine, will be among the passengers.

Nazi Salient Cut on Two Sides

thousands a generation ago—roared on for a priceless stake—mastery of the English Channel.

The Allied forces there—part of a great body said by the Germans to aggregate from 500,000 to 1,000,000 which had been gripped in the pinchers of the earlier German advances—struggled on in sight of the Scheldt River.

Another French force was moving up from the south to try to join them. This force left its stabilized line in the region of Laon and was fighting its way from the region of St. Quentin, scarcely 25 miles away. Liaison would pinch off the Nazi spearhead near its base.

Where Flanders fields run into Belgium the Nazis hurled great tanks and dive bombers in several attacks across the Scheldt. They were reported first to have pierced the British lines at Oudenarde but later Belgian advices said the lines had been closed again and the Nazis repulsed.

(The British Expeditionary Force in Belgium acknowledged the Germans had forced a crossing near Oudenarde, west of Brussels; that there was a gap between Allied forces. In London Prime Minister Churchill said the Germans held Abbeville and were fighting near Boulogne and the British communications were endangered.)

The Allied army on the Cambrai-Valenciennes sector had the advantage of numbers and with it were some of the picked units of the French, British and Belgian forces. The weather added to the difficulties of the Germans in maintaining their long communication lines, but the Nazis still held the upper hand in the air.

From Valenciennes to Cambrai the lines swirled in the confusion of a wide-open war of movement over the plains which in the World War were the scene of fixed trench fighting. Military experts said the outcome depended upon the ability of the rival commands to follow and anticipate its extreme vagaries.

Military circles declared that fighting was going "satisfactorily on the whole."

The government decided to maintain its administrative base in Paris, thus suggesting a feeling of confidence, and ordered industry to continue to function in the Paris area. The movement of civilians from the city was restricted.

The admiralty announced the loss of a submarine, a torpedo boat and a supply ship in operations off the Dutch and Belgian coasts. But to offset this the military spokesman declared "at least 1,000" German planes had been shot down since May 10.

from England. I stood at an airport facing England across the water (location not revealable) for the first time since entering the western zone of operations.

Stukas (dive bombers) and heavy bombers were roaring over our heads constantly.

This particular airport had neither heavy bombers nor Stukas. It was reserved for Messerschmitt pursuit planes, of which 27 fringed the airfield, artfully camouflaged by twigs and the tops of trees. The commander of this squadron is Herman Handrick, winner of the 1936 Olympic decathlon.

Even as we greeted Handrick, eight of his Messerschmitts took to the air and were out of sight in a jiffy.

"These eight planes have started to assist in the land fight," Handrick explained.

"Each plane has either four machine guns or two machine guns and two cannon. They have orders to swoop down on marching enemy columns."

For the first time since moving about in the operations area, we have seen naval officers darting back and forth in speedy cars.

Antwerp surrendered to German forces in a typical coup d'etat in which the garrisons of two fortifications were surprised and overpowered, it was disclosed to news correspondents today.

Antwerp's burgomaster thereupon regarded further bloodshed as useless, and ceremoniously handed the city's keys over to the German commander three days ago.

Antwerp on the whole is but little damaged, but time bombs blew up even after the Germans had moved into what was Antwerp's pride, the Scheldt tunnel, an engineering marvel leading under the Scheldt River. In other words, it was the Hudson tunnel of Belgium.

A big bridge across the Scheldt was dynamited by the Belgians before they retreated.

To construct an emergency pontoon bridge the Germans had to take account of the fact that two changes of the tide and ebb daily made the difference 15 feet. This presented an engineering problem of the first magnitude.

It was solved by a clever device of windlasses at both ends which first wind supports of the pontoons at either end up and down as the water rises or falls.

The feat was all the more remarkable because it had to be accomplished in the midst of shellfire of the enemy. German army engineers regard this as an unprecedented achievement.

24-Hour Daylight Slows Battle To Take Narvik

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Sweden, May 23.—With the arrival of 24 hours of daylight which reveal every movement, and therefore demands greater care than ever, the battle of Narvik is proceeding at an even slower pace than before and is now mainly conducted by the rival air forces, to which daylight is a boon.

Nevertheless, the Norwegians announced today the capture of two important heights, those of Lilleballak and Kobbefjell, and claim also to have driven the Germans from the mountains between Lilleballak and Kuberget.

At the same time, Gen. Fleischer, commanding the Norwegian division, announced, according to the Social Demokraten, that the German attempt to ship troops northward for a surprise landing either at Hardstad or Tromsoe had been defeated by Allied and Norwegian warships, some German boats being sunk and others driven southward.

Rare Pneumonia At Health Unit Here Is Subsiding

The outbreak of an unusual form of pneumonia, which attacked 17 workers at the National Institute of Health since last January, has subsided and may be ended, Director L. B. Thompson said yesterday.

Apparently caused by a virus, rather than a ytpe of pneumococcus, the disease has claimed no new victims for more than a week, Dr. Thompson said. Two cases occurred at the institute's new plant near Bethesda, Md., and the remainder at the laboratories west of Naval Hospital, which are gradually being moved to Maryland.

Although the last winter was the first in which "virus pneumonia" was recognized here, the unusual malady has broken out for the last several years at Harvard Medical School and Johns Hopkins University laboratories.

There have been no deaths in the localized epidemic here, Dr. Thompson said.

German Dead Set at 100,000

Paris, May 23 (U.P.).—French official quarters tonight estimated Germany's losses in the last 13 days at 100,000 to 150,000 dead, 350,000 to 400,000 wounded, 1,200 planes shot down and 1,300 tanks and armored cars destroyed.

War Relief Ship Rushed By Red Cross

First Mercy Vessel To Carry $1,000,000 Supplies for Refugees

The first Red Cross "mercy ship" of the second World War will sail for France about June 1, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced yesterday.

The vessel will be loaded immediately at Jersey City with supplies for French and Belgian civilian war sufferers, estimated at more than 5,000,000 and constituting a "gigantic" relief problem, "surpassing anything we witnessed in the first World War," Davis said.

The second "mercy ship"—whose predecessor was dispatched in the first month of the 1914 conflict—will be either the Artegas or the McKeesport, Government - owned vessels of from 8,000- to 9,000-ton capacity now under charter to the United States Lines.

Through the U. S. Maritime Commission, the Red Cross will charter one of the ships for a voyage to Bordeaux, France.

150 Ambulances Bought

For "pitiful victims of inhuman warfare" who "need everything we can supply," Davis told a press conference, the Red Cross has bought more than $1,000,000 worth of supplies, the bulk of which will be loaded into the mercy ship.

The cargo will include clothing for men, women and children, drugs, soap, cooking utensils, gauze, a wide variety of foodstuffs and 100 hospital trucks. The Red Cross has purchased 150 ambulances, but these will not be delivered in time for the voyage.

Davis revealed that $800,000 already has been cabled to Wayne Chatfield Taylor, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who is the Red Cross' European representative, for distribution through the French Red Cross and other agencies "working night and day to cope" with mass suffering.

Declines Death Estimate

Davis declined to make public Red Cross estimates of the civilian death toll, but indicated that it was believed to be enormous. "Some may have been killed by accident," he declared, and cited reports of fleeing refugees mingling with advancing troop columns.

"I don't like to think that many were maliciously machine-gunned," he added.

Davis said the ship would be marked with red crosses, but that time would not be taken to repaint her white as Taylor had reported French relief stores nearly exhausted.

Davis disclosed contents of a cable just received from Taylor describing scenes as the refugee horde rolled on Paris.

Children Die in Flight

"Whole families who have been on the road four and five days arrived with their feet bloody and swollen," Taylor cabled. "Many had walked 80 miles. In one small first-aid room in a Paris railroad station, I talked with four parents whose children died on the way. The wives of two French generals, now at the front, were directing the Red Cross aid. These women were washing the bleeding and blistered feet of French and Belgian peasants. Americans who lived in France during the World War and witnessed refugee scenes then, say the present influx is more appalling, and the end is not in sight."

Davis revealed that Wednesday 1,800 pounds of surgical dressings and "some rare medicine needed in brain surgery," were shipped to Europe by clipper plane. Richard Allen, ace relief worker in the last war, and two assistants, Paul Thorne and William Giblin, will take the next clipper to Europe Sunday, Davis said.

Emphasizing that the American Red Cross is in the midst of a campaign for $10,000,000 for war relief, Davis observed that none of the funds contributed "will be used for German relief." He pointed out that the German Red Cross has advised that the Reich will take care of her own needs and that, in any event, the greatest need is in France.

The District Red Cross Chapter yesterday announced donations of $1,000 each from Countess Laszlo Szechenyi and Countess E. M. de Limur.

Koshetz to Direct Ukrainian Chorus

Under the direction of Alexander Koshetz, the Ukrainian Chorus is giving a concert at 8:15 tonight in the Washington Hotel auditorium. The program includes the first performance anywhere of a number of historical songs of the Ukraine, collected and arranged by the director. Among the soloists are Marie Hrebenetaka, soprano, and Mikhail Holunski, tenor.

Organized in 1918, the Ukrainian National Chorus has toured the world and is well known in this country. It first visited Washington in 1913, and has often been heard here since.

U. S. Farm Income Tops 2½ Billion in Quarter

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that American farmers received a cash income of $2,615,000,000 during the first four months of this year, or 12 per cent more than in the corresponding period last year.

The income included $2,258,000,000 from the sale of products and $357,000,000 from Government benefit payments. In the first four months of 1939, the income from marketings was $2,059,000,000 and from benefit payments $282,000,000.

ers in both the House of Commons and House of Lords and deeds of the police and officials of both countries.

Lord Craigavon, Premier of Northern Ireland, had interviews today with Home Secretary Sir John Anderson and Anthony Eden, war secretary, and called on officers of the Northern Ireland government where he discussed the situation with Maj. Gen. Sir James Cooke-Ellis.

Before leaving for Belfast Lord Craigavon said it was hoped to inaugurate large-scale recruiting in North Ireland for all branches of the army and that the government had been entrusted with the duty of making protective arrangements in Ulster corresponding to the local defense volunteers in the United Kingdom known as "the parashooters."

While police were raiding the headquarters of the British Union of Fascists and seizing documents and papers, Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, disclosed to the House of Commons that in addition to the large numbers of I. R. A. members imprisoned, 167 had been expelled from the country and measures taken against their return.

Later, Maj. Clement Atlee, opposition leader, replying for Premier Winston Churchill, said he was sure the Eire government "is as alive to the possibilities" as the British government, when asked the attitude of the De Valera government to possible German invasion.

Sir William Davidson, Conservative, asked whether "definite arrangements have been made with the Eire government" to meet the threat of invasion in view of the serious danger involved to the safety of the United Kingdom. To this Attlee replied:

"The members of Parliament will realize that there can be no question of this government giving orders to the Eire government, but all proper consultations have been taken."

Subsequently it was pointed out by Attlee that his words might be misconstrued to jeopardize De Valera's position and during debate he intervened to say:

"I desire to correct a statement I made in the House today replying to a supplementary question by Mr. Davidson, which caused some misapprehension. I said that 'all proper consultation had taken place with the government of Eire.' I intended to say that all proper information had been passed between the two governments."

Important as the Irish situation is regarded here it was overshadowed in immediate interest in this democratic, free-speech-loving country by the roundup of the Mosleyites and others who were taken into custody, it was asserted, not for their pro-German opinion, but for fear their organizations might be used "for executive of acts prejudicial to the security of the state."

Included among the prominent prisoners taken in the roundup were Capt. A. H. M. Ramsay, Unionist M. P. for Peebles; John Beckett, secretary of the British Peoples Party, who while a member of Parliament a few years ago once tried to make off with the Commons mace. The arrest of these latter two was not connected with the Fascist roundup.

Today's move against the extreme right was regarded in leftish circles as a carefully calculated tactical move by the government. As the arrests were warmly applauded by the Labor Party, it will be difficult for the latter to protest very vehemently if and when Sir John Anderson follows up these arrests with a drive against the extreme left wing and it was notable that in Commons today the Communists were equally assailed along with the Fascists.

There were symptoms of the growing war spirit here. It was reflected in the quick passage and adoption of a bill providing the death penalty for traitors, the unopposed passage of a bill permitting the government to conscript the wealth and manpower of the country, as well as organization of home defense, such as units of "parashooters," the building of machine gun nests and barricades in Whitehall and other strategic centers of the capital.

Sir Oswald Mosley was arrested at his apartment in southwest London.

U. S. Opposes Entry in War, Weir Finds

Common Sense Attitude Called Safest Guaranty

New York, May 23 (AP).—"Despite overwhelming pro-ally sympathy," E. T. Weir told the forty-ninth general meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute today, "there is no indication that our public would sanction our participation" in the war.

The president of the institute, who is also chairman of National Steel Corporation, said:

"This common sense attitude of rank and file in America is our surest guaranty against involvement."

But he told the 1,000 steel men the "ruthlessness" of the war's "instigators has impressed upon us the necessity of thorough preparation for defense," and added:

"It is inexcusable that we are not better prepared at this moment. If competent observers may be believed—and I, for one, think they may—this Nation could be another Finland or Norway if it were not for the barriers of ocean and distance."

Heads G. O. P. Committee

Weir, who is chairman of the Republican national finance committee, asserted the Administration has "glaringly" failed to provide proper defense, despite huge expenditures.

He pointed out that 12 principal nonferrous metal materials used in the steel industry come largely or entirely from foreign sources, and said economists estimate "we need reserve stocks of at least $800,000,000, worth of vital materials that must be imported." He said Congress appropriated $100,000,000 for purchase of strategic materials, and although the program was in its second year, less than $13,000,000 had been spent.

In the first nine months of 1939, he said America permitted "a tremendous increase in the export of steel scrap," but added under normal conditions, scrap is more important in steel making than ore.

Weir continued, "our industrial system must try to accept the monumental job that will be imposed on it by defense preparations under the handicaps that have been and are now imposed on it by governmental restrictions and interference. . . .

"In this great program, which will cost billions, the people of this country have the right to demand that it be carried out effectively, economically and promptly. The first essential step toward preparedness must be a fundamental change in the attitude of Government—and particularly in its attitude toward industry."

Asks Free Hand for Industry

Prediction that it would take two years for industry to function effectively on a defense program were rejected by Weir as unfounded.

"If Government will decide," he said, "on a definite defense policy; if it will let industry know exactly what is wanted; and then entrust to men who know industry the task of getting performance from industry, the country will be pleasantly surprised at the speed and efficiency with which industry will do its share of the job."

Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, honor guest at the institute's banquet, told the steel men Government policies over the last seven years had "terribly weakened the backbone of our national defense, industry and sound economy."

Jailed Mosley Sought to Be BritishFuehrer

Fascist Party Head, Target of Bricks, Was World War Flier

By the Associated Press

Fiery, black-haired Sir Oswald Mosley, arrested in London yesterday, long has been an object of suspicion and the target of many a brick, real and verbal, in his campaign to be "Fuehrer" of England.

In 1937, while addressing his British Union (the party seldom used its full name, British Union of Fascists), a brick knocked him out, but he rebounded a year later with the belated announcement of his marriage to blonde, Nazi-admiring Mrs. Diana Guinness.

Announcing the marriage had taken place two years before and a son had been born to him, he denied the ceremony had been held in Munich or Berlin with Adof Hitler as an official witness.

Mrs. Guinness' younger sister is the well known Unity Freeman Mitford, who returned to England a few months ago after suffering a mysterious gunshot wound at Munich shortly before the war's outbreak.

World War Aviator

It was the second marriage for Sir Oswald. His first wife, Lady Cynthia Blanche Curzon, was a daughter of the late Marquis Curzon, of Kedleston, and a granddaughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter, of Chicago. She died in 1933.

Sir Oswald, 43, and World War aviator with a slightly disabled leg, is the sixth baronet of a line created in 1781. His straight, unwavering gaze and commanding voice once whipped thousands of uniformed and ununiformed followers into line for Fascist and Hitlerian ideas.

After the war he declared he would be sitting in Cabinet meetings within ten years. He started by getting elected to Parliament in 1918 when only 22, but never advanced beyond the back bench, except in the second Ramsay MacDonald Cabinet when he was chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

First a Conservative, then a Liberal and then a Laborite, Mosley cut loose from all "Parliamentary corruption" as he called it, and started out on an independent line in 1931.

He preached a violent form of anti-Semitism, an element which caused all sorts of riots when he attempted to hold demonstrations in London's East End.

Hitler's Salute Used

He outfitted his followers with blackshirts and marching boots—outfits which he sold them—and at his meetings the Hitler marching tune, "Horst Wessel," with new words, was sung.

He rode a big black horse and gave the Hitler salute.

He boasted of 500 branches of his party in all parts of the United Kingdom.

But Parliament, shaking its collective head at his antics, passed an act banishing political uniforms. Police frequently canceled permits for his parades. He found little financial support, and his own fortune, somewhere more than a million dollars, was not enough to sweep him into power.

As Britain drifted into war with Germany, his influence waned.

Last July, before the outbreak of war, he announced his own four-point program for "peace in our time and our children's time."

He proposed to let Hitler alone in eastern Europe and "then we can meet around the conference table."

After the start of the war, Mosely advocated peace with Hitler. A hostile crowd stoned his car after one of these speeches.

Approval of the sale of J. P. Morgan's luxurious yacht, Corsair, to British interests, was announced yesterday by the U. S. Maritime Commission. Kamper-Nicholsons, Ltd., of Hampshire, England, was listed as the purchaser. Price was not given.

Psychiatrist Could Have Told Hitler's Course, Pole Contends

By Stephen McDonough
Associated Press Science Writer.

Cincinnati, May 23.—Livs of thousands of young men dying in Flanders might have been saved if "Mein Kampf," written by Adolf Hitler, had been properly interpreted ten years ago.

Alfred Korzybski, of Chicago, told the American Psychiatric Association today that a scientific reading of what he called Hitler's "Bible of Babel" revealed the workings of a pathological mind which would stop at nothing.

"If politicians had turned over 'Mein Kampf' to a group of psychiatric experts several years ago with orders to study it," he declared, "they would have received a report that a sick man was getting into a position of world power, and could have predicted the consequences and made ready for them."

The situation was one which medical diagnosticians could have analyzed and not one for politicians to toy with, Korzybski declared.

"The experts would have said explicitly that the words of Hitler and his associates cannot be trusted at all, an advice which, if taken into consideration, would have made the present world tragedies impossible," the Chicago psychiatrist said.

The phraseology of 'Mein Kampf,' and the fact that Germany was building thousands of tanks and airplanes should have been enough to warn the Allies that Hitler's statements of "having no further ambitions in Europe" were false, he declared.

"Verbal distortion" is a frequent symptom of mental illness, said Korzybski, a former reserve captain in the Polish army. Such patients believe that words are just words. They actually cannot tell the difference between deceit or dishonesty and what they believe is the truth.

Capitol Hill Life Is Tranquil Amid Talk of Guns and Bullets

By Eddie Gilmore
Associated Press Staff Writer

It is far from spectacular to watch the United States getting ready to spend two or three billion dollars in defense of itself.

Drums roll, and there is the slug, slug, slug of marching feet on Capitol Hill, but when you rush up close, you discover that it is only a group of high school girls from Florida.

The Senate Naval Committee meets . . . The doors are wide open and there are plenty of soft seats . . . No one asks why you are there . . . You sit down and listen to admirals and Senators.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachuetts, says "Good morning" to everyone . . . Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, quietly puffs on a cigarette . . . Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, asks a friend about a baseball game . . . The admirals talk audibly among themselves.

The Senate Appropriations Committee meets . . . Within that room enough money could be appropriated to blow whole cities off the map . . . The door is closed, but every once in a while it opens, and the room doesn't look grim—A Democrat is smiling at a Republican.

Over at the White House the tulips have seldom been so beautiful . . . the gates are still open, and the tourists pour through the green grounds by the hundreds.

Inside, people still bow and greet one another with a smile and the time of day . . . Secretary Hull strolls across the street to see the President . . . He doesn't even bother with a hat.

Senate Group Weighs D. C. Health Bills

Civic Spokesmen Oppose Regulating Dentistry, Podiatry

Civic representatives spoke against District bills designed to strengthen the regulation of the practice of dentistry and podiatry yesterday at an all-day hearing before a subcommittee of the Senate District Committee.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee, indicated, however, that the measure, already passed by the House, will be reported favorably to the full committee with amendments.

Spokesmen for the District Dental Society and the District Podiatry Society argued that the legislation is needed to raise professional standards and protect public health.

Carruthers Fears Monopoly

L. A. Carruthers, of the Forest Hill Citizens Association, said that there appeared to be an "epidemic" of bills in recent years to regulate occupations. The regulatory laws, he said, tend to encourage monopolies and to raise prices to the public.

"Under the dentistry bill," he said, "if you pull your baby's tooth, you are a criminal."

Carruthers predicted that "group dentistry" will follow in the footsteps of "group health" if dentists continue to raise their prices.

Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, of the Northwest Citizens Council, said the dentistry bill would bring about discrimination against the poor man through the elimination of advertising and the raising of prices.

Dr. Henry Swanson, speaking for the medical society, insisted that the legislation will not raise prices. Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, defended the bill after pointing out that he had practiced dentistry for five years.

"Shop" for a Dentist

"The public should shop for professional service just like it does for groceries and clothes," he said. "If one dentist's price is too high, go to another. I've found you usually get what you pay for."

"Advertising dentists" were defended earlier in the hearing by Dr. John K. Freiot dentist, and Alfred E. Conradis, an attorney.

"I don't think dentistry should be a mystery, like medicine," he said.

He argued that advertising put the public on notice as to what dental services will cost.

Dr. Louis E. Suter opened the attack on the podiatry bill with the statement that only one person in 50,000 knows what podiatry is and that the profession now is where dentistry was 50 years ago.

Charging that he had been first solicited to donate to a campaign fund to put through the legislation and then had been threatened if he di dnot withdraw his opposition, Dr. Suter said:

"If this bill becomes a law I won't be able to send a Christmas card to my clients."

Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, criticized the podiatry bill in detail and told the subcommittee that "there are too many boards running the District now."

Zoo Keeper Tugs Cobra Out of Tree by Tail, Gets Gooseflesh at Sight of a Rat or Spider

Roy Jenner Tells of African Expedition With Dr. Mann After New Specimens for D. C. Cages

Without a qualm, Roy J. Jennier will pull an 8-foot cobra by the tail in line of duty but the sight of a big rat or spider gives him the gooseflesh whim whams.

This weakness in his armor came out yesterday in the course of a cross-examining of the Zoo keeper on his experiences as an African game hunter. It was his second day back at work, after two months in Liberia as a member of Zoo Director William M. Mann's animal expedition.

Jennier thought the capture of the 8-foot black cobra, which now decorates a cage in the reptile house, by Ralph B. Norris, the only other Zoo keeper taken on the expedition, Dr. Mann and himself hardly worth discussing.

"We first saw him slithering through the bush," he said. "When he caught sight of us he turned tail. First shelter the snake spied was a hole in the ground, where a goodsized tree had been uprooted.

"All but about 2 feet of him got inside the hole. While I pulled the cobra's tail, Norris dug away so as to get to the rest of his body. Meantime, all our native boys were running in various directions."

The natives, Jennier explained, are a great help on a safari—until there is a snake to be caught. Then they suddenly vanish.

At times the Mann party had as many as 2,000 native boys serving as "beaters," surrounding an area where there was game and stirring a great commotion to drive the beasts into the clearing, where the hunters waited with nets.

"The thing I'll never forget," said the 27-year-old Zoo keeper, who previously had never been south of Virginia Beach, "were those driver ants. Everything incredible and fantastic you've ever heard about those devils is true, and more besides.

"One night we were eating supper in the menagerie on the Firestone plantation when a boy ran in yelling 'drivers!' We ran out to the deer pen, where the boy was pointing excitedly, and found one animal already dead and another literally covered with the invaders.

"Using kerosene, blow torches, brooms and anything we could lay hands on, we dispersed the ants and tried to save the deer that was still alive. But it was useless. In an hour he was dead."

ROY JENNIER HOLDING LIZARD

Nor will he forget, he said, the strange situation in which housewives on the vast Firestone rubber plantation, which is equipped with a golf course and electricity and all modern conveniences, have to watch where they tread when hanging up clothes lest they step on a deadly viper or cobra.

No traveler can return home without souvenirs, which accounts for the elaborate tribal headdress, three hand-carved dolls, several spears and other trinkets ornamenting the Jennier residence at 202 Summers Drive, Alexandria.

"I feel like a regular globe trotter already," he said with a laugh, "though until I went to Africa the largest boat I'd ever been aboard was a moonlight excursion steamer."

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

JOAN WHITNEY IN MAY-FLOWER. That popular toast of the air waves, Joan Whitney, has just joined Dick Koons' Orchestra in the Mayflower Lounge. Besides singing over N. B. C., Joan has appeared in New York and Chicago with Will Osborne, Enrique Madriguera and Frank Novak. With Osborne she did a tri-weekly national broadcast. With Madriguera, Park Avenue's pet, she appeared at La Conga, Pierre's and the Biltmore. And is she beautiful! Just look at the adjoining pic.

P. S. "Ha-Cha" Gardner will continue to carry on with Dick Koons' band at the afternoon cocktail sessions all summer, but in the evenings beginning around May 30 or 31, he'll run his own "Ha-Cha Club" at the Peter Pan up near Frederick. The Peter Pan is owned by Dick's mother. Dee Tracy, Mayflower's cigarette lass, will be at the "Ha-Cha Club" as a canary. She's been taking vocal lessons for months.

The Shoreham Terrace opening, always one of the biggest summer events, will take place May 27 or 29, probably the latter. A huge rainbow fountain will make the Terrace even lovelier this year . . . Current Blue Room entertainment is of the glossiest. Holland and Hart are a dance team you'll remember a long time, especially in that samba-rumba-conga-tango business. Both Jimmy Edmondson and the customers have fun in his "blackboard specialty." Emilee Adreon dances like a pixie, whistles like a blackbird.

HERE COMES REGGIE! Tonight's big event is the opening of Reggie Childs in Wardman's Metronome Room. Reggie is right up at the top in the night spot, radio and recording fields. His style is outstanding for its deft blending of brasses and reeds and its "rolling clarinets." His vocalists include Lucile Doran, Paul Carley and trio, quartette and glee club groups. The Wardman management says that advance queries about Reggie's appearance have topped those of other name bands.

Guy Richardson, the Rainbow Room handwriting expert, showed us a sample of Einstein's handwriting. It's tiny as ant tracks. Einstein discounted analysis of his own writing the other day, but broke down and became impressed when Guy analyzed the writing of two letters the scientist had in his pockets. Later he said, "I believe graphology is a definite science."

DOC'S BABIES. A lot of fine entertainers seem to come from Doc's over in Baltimore. Ken Whitmer, current Lotus star who can imitate any orchestra leader you name, was at Doc's last year when the Anchor Room's Eileen George was also in the middle of her year's engagement there. Jat Herod, Robin Hood's gifted violinist, also played at Doc's recently.

There'll be a change in the Hi Hat picture in a couple of weeks . . . Meaning that you'd better go up and listen to the bright music and amusing parodies of Ray Harts' Diplomats before the boys catch the streamliner for points north.

THE "DANCING REDHEADS" and rubber-legged Skeets and Patsy Cameron are setting the Casino Royal on its ear. The Redheads truck on down and do Spanish castanet dancing impartially. Skeets and Patsy are a tornado in jekie, slow motion and skating charades. And there's bare-tootsied Mona Stafford in "Memoirs of a Dying Savage." Ah-h-h!

Tomorrow will see Troika's fancy wind-up party. It's going to be a great, big, fancy and funny "informal closing." Never miss it . . .

Joan Whitney, new singer with Dick Koons' Mayflower Lounge orchestra

La Helen Hamilton will spend the summer right in New York, plans a talent-scouting tour to take in all the night spots in a 100-mile radius of Manhattan.

DOLLARS 'N' CENTS. That saying, "When you touch my pocketbook, you touch my heart" is true about most of us. So here goes for bargains in good times. Luncheons and snacks in the Harrington have proven so popular that the management is putting in pop-priced dinners—55 cents, to be exact . . . And the 50-cent luncheons at Hogate's are the berries. Your choice of steak and all kinds of sea food . . . Everyone knows that the Flagship food is swell-elegant. And now that good fellow, Manager Jack O'Brien, is putting out a delicious dinner for 85 cents . . . You can dine delightfully in Glen Echo's new roof garden-restaurant for a mere six bits. An ideal start for an evening of dancing to Paul Kain's band in Echo's open-air ballroom . . . You'll never go to the Madrillon on a Thursday when the place isn't packed with people who know that the $1 dinners that eve are real $1.50 values.

How we wish that the vivid Mayfair map murals were true instead of impressionistic in these days of the blitzkreig! Y'see, they show England off the coast of Australia and the Dutch East Indies northwest of Canada!

THESE MUSICAL FOLK. Evalyn Tyner of the Neptune Room thinks "Begin the Beguine" is the finest tune ever written. You'll think so, too, when you hear her piano it . . . It's our duty to the public to tell them that no matter how romantic Ray Donahue looks on the Lounge Riviera bandstand, he devotes his spare time to raising onions and potatoes . . . Singer Mary La Marr, of the Nightingale, can swing out the best "Stormy Weather" you've ever heard . . . The Lido's Angelo di Bella used to dance with Ramon and Rosita before he decided to lead a band . . . Maestro Bert Bernath, of the Pall Mall Room, used to raise tropical fish, but now he's raising a family . . . George Stein makes new arrangements every week for River Bend's "Swing Night." And it's tonight.

DEL RIO'S WEEK-ENDS are always tremendous with folks pouring in for steak and chicken dinners and Carmine's dance music. Lots of them come back next day for the Del Rio Sunday cocktail hour.

SEC to Tell Utilities How To Integrate

United Gas to Get Outline of What Needs to Be Done

The Securities and Exchange Commission moved yesterday to tell utility companies for the first time what is meant by the five-year-old requirement that they "integrate" their systems.

Setting a new policy, the Commission agreed to furnish to the United Gas Improvement Co. a detained outline of what the commission feels is needed to make the $837,000,000 system comply with the so-called "death sentence" of the holding company act.

This new plan of suggesting actual steps toward integration may be followed throughout the commission's program to reorganize nine huge holding company systems controlling billions of dollars of assets. Commission officials expected the United Light & Power Co. to ask for and be granted a similar full outline of the commission's integration ideas.

Result of the commission's decision on a new policy was to postpone indefinitely the scheduled hearings on an integration order of March 5 to U. G. I. Commissioner Robert E. Healy, in a minority opinion, said the commission had gone too far.

Announcement of the forthcoming "supplemental notice" to U. G. I. was the latest step in the SEC's attempt to make this and eight other holding company systems comply with the "death sentence" clause. The proceedings may last years longer.

Early in March, the commission ordered the nine companies to integrate their systems geographically and financially, as prescribed by law. Some companies replied offering plans, others submitted no plan but charged the SEC's action was unconstitutional, some asked for guidance from the commission.

U. G. I., in its answer of April 24 to the integration order, had said the commission started off improperly in its integration program by failing to give the proper notice and by failing to give sufficient time for the company to reply and prepare for a hearing.

The commission, in its answer yesterday, said it was willing to enlarge its original notice to U. G. I., since "no person could be injured by such statements."

U. G. I. operates in nine States: Pennsylvania, Arizona, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Dallas, May 23 (AP).—James L. Fallon, 41, special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, died today. He was appointed a special agent in 1926 and served at Columbus, Ohio; Norfolk, Va.; Washington, and Philadelphia.

Dieffenbach Hits Board's Control Of Recreation

Opposition to the Board of Education's control of recreation was expressed yesterday by George Dieffenbach, spokesman for a committee which is working for a single unified recreation commission for the District.

Approval of such a commission was reaffirmed by the recreation division of the Council of Social Agencies at its meeting at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday.

Dieffenbach, chairman of the division's legislative subcommittee, said there was danger of cuts in recreation appropriations whenever it was necessary for the Board of Education to economize, if it were in sole control.

Chief Justice Will Address Conference

D. C. Jurists, Lawyers Will Meet Today For First Session

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will address the justices of the United States Court of Appeals and the District Court and a delegation of lawyers in the Court of Appeals courtroom at a 10 a. m. meeting today.

The Chief Justice's address will open the first judicial conference called here since the District was established as a separate circuit of the Federal judiciary.

Other speakers will be Judge John J. Parker, senior judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the United States courts.

The District justices will be guests of their appeal court colleagues at luncheon at the Cosmos Club.

The afternoon session will be closed to all except judges of the two courts here. Administration and organization will be discussed.

Delegates of the District Bar Association at the conference will be Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the association; District Attorney Edward M. Curran; Judge Nathan Cayton, of the Municipal Court; Frederick Stohlman, Al Philip Kane, Wilbur L. Gray, bar association secretary; Milton W. King, Samuel M. Boyd, James R. Kirkland, Frederick A. Ballard, G. Bowdoin Craighill, Paul E. Lesh, Charles R. Pledger, jr., Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, H. Winship Wheatley, Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart, Charles V. Imlay, James O'D. Moran, E. Barrett Prettyman, William E. Richardson, A. K. Shipe, Gilbert L. Hall, Assistant District Attorney John L. Laskey, Camden R. McAtee, and Leo N. McGuire.

John F. Koine, 60, Newspaperman, Dies in Hospital

John F. Koine, 60, of 2936 Twenty-eighth street northwest, member of the editorial staff of the United States News, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Buffalo, N. Y., Mr. Koine joined the Buffalo News as a young man and was its news editor almost 20 years. During that time he gave David Lawrence, now publisher of the United States News, his first newspaper job. He was graduated in 1898 from the University of Buffalo Law School.

Mr. Koine joined the United States News 12 years ago after short periods of service with the Associated Press here and in New York City. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Catherine Chisholm Koine, and two sisters, Miss Mary Koine and Miss Sabina Koine, both of Buffalo. Funeral services will be held in Buffalo.

Truck Victim's Death Brings Toll Up to 24

Man Hurt May 10; Jury Holds Driver For Killing Youth

Washington's twenty-fourth traffic death of the year was recorded yesterday when Herman D. Bunch, 67, of 3220 Seventeenth street northwest, who was injured May 10, died at Emergency Hospital. Maurice P. Finley, 23, of 4466 Conduit road northwest, said by police to have operated a truck that struck Bunch, will appear at a coroner's inquest.

A coroner's jury yesterday held Edward R. Covey, 32, of Camden, N. J., under the negligent homicide act in connection with the death Saturday of Charles R. Gray, 14, of 3062 M street northwest. Gray and Robert Smith, 15, of 3629 M street northwest, were struck while they stood in a safety zone at Pennsylvania avenue and Twenty-sixth street northwest. A jury which heard the evidence against Covey Monday failed to agree.

Charles died at Emergency Hospital two hours after the accident. The Smith boy was treated for cuts and bruises and possible concussion. He will recover, doctors said.

Through his attorney, Covey told the jury the street car zone was not protected by the usual "turtle backs" and that the yellow painted lines did not mark the zone clearly.

Rites Planned For Mrs. Turner

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine Beatrice Turner, 36, 323 Garland avenue, Takoma Park, Md., who died Wednesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary T. Allwine, 116 Neal street northeast, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Born in Washington, Mrs. Turner had lived in Takoma Park 12 years. She was ill four months. Surviving are her husband, George Turner, a route agent for a Washington newspaper; a daughter, Jean Ellen 12; a son, George, 10; her, mother Mrs. Mary Allwine, and two brothers, John Frederichs and Francis Frederichs of Washington.

Reynolds, G. P. O. Pressman, Dies

Samuel H. Reynolds, 45, of 45 Michigan avenue northeast, a pressman at the Government Printing Office, died last night a few minutes after collapsing at his press on the fourth floor of the building.

Taken to the emergency room on the same floor, Reynolds was given first aid by an attendant. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Charles P. Waite, G. P. O. medical director.

Dr. Christopher Murphy, deputy District coroner, said an autopsy would be performed today.

D. C. Photo Fans Hold Exhibit Attended by 100

It was blitzkrieg—American style—last night at the Public Health Auditorium, where members of the Federal Foto-crafters and the Treasury Camera Club gathered for a salon showing.

To seize a friend and not an enemy was the idea of officers of the foto-crafters who quizzed nearly 100 visitors on the state of their photography.

The group studied nearly 100 prints shown in the classes of portrait, pictorial and the general grouping of sport, action and scientific.

Dr. David R. Craig, noted photographer and a director recently of the Photographic Society of America, discussed the pictures.

Reich Gains Iron, Foods By Invasion

Seizure of Belgium, Holland Cuts Off British Supplies

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 23.—Several million tons of Luxembourg iron ore, the large stocks of raw materials in the ports of Amsterdam, Rotterdam and Antwerp, and the large industrial capacity and manpower utilizable in the interests of the Reich's war and economic machinery, are the principal economic advantages gained by the conquest of Luxembourg, the Netherlands and most of Belgium.

On the other side of the ledger should be mentioned the dependence of the conquered territory upon grain and fodder, imports, normally totalling 4,000,000 tons annually.

In a short war this factor is believed, in Berlin circles, to be of minor importance especially in view of the accumulation of large war grain stocks in the Netherlands and Belgium, which were apparently not damaged owing to the surprise advance of the German army.

In case of a prolonged war, local requirements can be reduced, it is contended, by the rationing of human consumption and the slaughtering of part of the livestock.

Reich Blockade Aid Cited

Apart from these positive gains for the Reich's war economy, the German press gives great prominence to the negative effects on the Allies' war potential of the transfer of the low countries to Germany's continental bloc. The loss of Belgian steel and zinc heretofore playing a great role in supplying the Allies arms and munitions industries, and the cessation of exports of Dutch dairy products and eggs to Britain, are considered particularly important in the tightening of the Reich blockade of the British Isles.

With Britain cut off from Scandinavia, all states bordering the Baltic, and the low countries, Ireland, Spain and Portugal remain the only west European neutral countries easily accessible to Britain as supply sources, while the necessity to draw food, ore and timber from far-distant over-sea countries aggravates the Allies' tonnage shortage, German commentators point out.

With the conquest of the Netherlands, following the military occupation of Denmark, Europe's two main exporters of butter, bacon, cheese and eggs have been transferred from Allied to Germany's war economic bloc. Britain has now lost the following percentages of her imports—butter 29 per cent; eggs 45 per cent; bacon 62 per cent; canned milk 86 per cent.

In the small duchy of Luxembourg, German armies conquered a country representing one big iron ore mine and steel mill. Four-fifths of its workers are employed in this industry and ore, iron and steel comprise 95 per cent of its exports. The world famous Arbed steel concern controls steel in other mills in many other countries, including the German Saar district and also has important ore interests in Brazil.

Luxembourg Lacks Coal

Luxembourg's annual iron ore output approximates 8,000,000 tons of which in peactime, roughly one-half is used locally and one-half is exported mostly to Germany and Belgium. In 1938, the Reich imported 1,700,000 tons of Luxembourg ore. Luxembourg, however, lacking coal, usually gets the greater part of her coal and coke supplies from Germany.

Although Belgian steel capacity with 3,800,000 tons annual steel ingot output is considerably greater than that of Luxembourg, it was mainly dependent upon French ore supplies. The maintenance of its current production, therefore, is predicated upon the conquest of the Lorraine iron ore mines, but the highly diversified Belgian metal works and particularly its arms industries, represent a valuable addition to the Reich's own war potental.

Butter, cheese and eggs will be the Netherlands' main tribute to economy of the Reich. In 1938, Germany imported from the Netherlands 12,500 tons of butter, 16,700 tons of cheese and 380,000,000 eggs, representing 13 per cent, 52 per cent and 25 per cent of the Reich's total imports of these respective products. Theoretically Germany's imports of dairy products and eggs can be considerably augmented by adding the Netherlands former exports to Britain, but even the German press admits that like Denmark, the productivity of the Dutch dairy industry cannot be maintained at its present level owing to its dependence upon imported grain, and notably upon oilcakes. Also, Dutch and Belgian vegetables, heretofore exported mainly to Britain will be welcome addition to the German diet considering the Reich's present acute shortage of such products.

An important advantage of the German lightning advance through the Low Countries is that it apparently prevented the evacuation or any large scale demolition of food and staple raw materials stored in warehouses of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, and Antwerp. Even the precautionary measures taken by the Dutch and Belgian governments in not keeping wool and other stocks close to the German frontier, proved under these circumstances of little avail.

Massed Armies Again May Bring Flu Epidemics

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—Another of mankind's insidious enemies—influenza—may be mobilizing its forces before the backdrop of Europe's marching soldiery.

From this assembly of armies, said Dr. R. R. Hyde, professor of immunology at the Johns Hopkins Medical School, may stem another world-wide outbreak of the dread disease that took hundreds of thousands of lives in 1918.

Influenza epidemics, or pandemics, unfortunately are not governed by any fixed law with which physicians are familiar, Dr. Hyde said, but added that "the longer since the last pandemic, the nearer the next one is likely to be."

London's Iron Fences Torn Down To Make Arms

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, May 23.—London's iron railings are disappearing into the melting pots of armament firms to give Britain more shells, tanks, machine-guns and warships.

Already 30 tons of light fences have been ripped out of Hyde Park and 50 tons from Battersea Park. The bandstand and embankment gardens near Charing Cross have been denuded.

Experts of the British iron and steel control estimated that several hundred thousand tons of scrap iron can be taken from London without altering the city's face. The weight of the railings in the average city square is between 30 and 40 tons. Each ton is worth 2 tons of imported iron ore. The shipping space is needed for food from all over the world, and for armaments from the United States and Canada.

Dutch Go About Their Business Silently With Eyes on Ground

German Soldiers, Yesterday's Enemies, Idle Along Walks

By Oscar Mohr

Copyright by New York Times

The Hague, May 23.—The war in the Netherlands lasted five nerve-shattering days. Today, seven days later, Dutch people bicycle along the avenues of their beautiful cities and their manner betrays little of the recent past. The smoke from burning quarters in Rotterdam has disappeared from the sky. Amsterdam, Utrecht, The Hague and other cities in the eastern part of the country look as though nothing had happened.

Those who look more closely, however, notice something peculiar. Many people are silent; many keep their eyes to the ground. Messenger boys do not whistle as shrilly as formerly. Only a few automobiles drive through the streets. You see field-gray soldiers idling listlessly along the sidewalk, their hands buried deep in their pockets. You see others striding energetically along. Their uniforms are more gray than green, less suited to the fresh green Dutch meadows.

These are the Germans, the enemies of yesterday. They exchange military salutes with the Dutch soldiers. Their behavior is faultless. The average citizen looks at them and finds no answer to the question, "Why did this young fellow, who looks like Jan van Wyck, kill Jan van Wyck, who worked in a dairy in Vreeland?" It is a stupid question, but the Dutch are stupid in such matters.

That is what happens when for 300 years you have had no enemies. In spite of all the measures which the Netherlands took during the past year, war broke over the country like an avalanche. It broke over the land with such force and speed that it was impossible to tell what it all meant or what it destroyed.

Now as it thunders and grumbles in the distance, the deafened, blinded, people stand awestruck before that which was destroyed, and that which remains, with equal suspicion. Everyone asks himself what has happened, what has changed. For many, the answer is clear. Work has begun once more. The movies are open again. The sirens are silent. You can go to bed again. Your son, your brother, lives. That is the main thing for those, and that is why it is what it is, no matter how you turn or twist it. For most of the Dutch populace, life just goes on.

For others, the world has ended. That does not refer to the youth who fell. However many there may be, they died for their country.

It refers to others who see freedom die, the army in captivity, the queen in a foreign land, neutrality shown to be a foolish fiction of imagination, and the Allies for the time being powerless prattlers. The burden of woe weighs down the hearts of the bearers of great traditions; bitterness fills the spirit and seeks vainly for an escape.

It is as though time had been too short to learn to hate the Germans. Today it is too late.

The German soldiers are nice correct young fellows. German officers flash by in cars, gray with the dust of all the roads of Europe. German authorities, until now, have been matter of fact, business-like and in no way tyrannical. Their measures are obviously motivated by military strategical calculations alone.

None of the many decrees has yet shown any indication of a desire to impress upon the Dutch people the loss of their freedom. With unyielding force Germany moves on to its goal. Whatever does not hinder or harm this progress can remain. But the Netherlands must subordinate herself to this goal, since it lost the battle of arms.

Another battle now begins which must be won in Dutch hearts. The people feel sure of their resurrection and prepare by work and thought to take up their place once more in the new world as soon as the guns are silent.

Behavior of Nazis Said to Be Faultless; Work Is Resumed

German Armies Like Napoleon's In Food Factors

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, May 23.—True to Napoleon's axiom, "An army marches on its stomach," leaders of the Third Reich's armies are paying careful attention t the kind of food doled out to the soldiers.

They have placed the army supply system on a most modern basis with kitchens to cook meals, according to the newest methods worked out by scientists in the nutrition field. They assure that the soldiers will get a sufficient amount of vitamins, which they assert, "is a decisive factor in modern warfare."

As proof of this they point out the record of their armies in long-distance marches set up in Poland, Norway and Belgium.

Rumanian Oil Exports Decline

Copyright by New York Times

Bucharest, Rumania, May 23.—Rumanian petroleum exports during the first three months of the year amounted to 825,385 tons, as compared with 1,130,757 for the same period last year. Rumania received for this year's sales 4,595,000,000 lei, where last year for the large quantity she only received 2,411,000,000 lei. Exports to Great Britain and the colonies amounted to 325,556 tons, as compared with 225,896 tons.

The amount of 75,254 tons went to Germany, as compared with 182,790 tons in the same period last year. To the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia and to Slovakia 34,827 tons were exported, as against 81,438.

Oil exports to Italy dropped from 172,353 tons to 28,967 tons, and to Hungary from 46,362 tons to 3,436 tons.

To Germany 18,455 tons went in January, 20,291 tons in February, 36,508 tons in March, making altogether 75,254, instead of 570,000 tons as provided in the German-Rumanian oil agreement.

Shortage Of Fliers

The problem of securing American defense will not be solved by wishful thinking. Nor will it be solved simply by the appropriation of huge sums of money. It will require coordinated effort on a scale never before undertaken or even imagined by the United States.

Take, for example, the vital question of an air force. The President has advocated a minimum annual production capacity of 50,000 planes. But those who can be assumed to speak with unquestioned authority on the subject say it will be 1942, at least, before this country can produce planes on this basis. And even that attainment would involve beginning at once with the best engineering and production brains in the business, with blanket authority to go ahead.

Nor is that all. The planes must be manned and the problem of turning out trained pilots seems even more serious than that of producing planes. For the 50,000 planes that are being talked about would require at least 150,000 trained fliers.

What is the situation now? Yesterday Admiral John H. Towers informed the Senate Naval Committee that by July 1, 1941—13 months hence—the Naval Air Corps will have a total of 3,850 fliers. And at the present rate, there are not expected to be more than 18,500 trained naval air pilots by June 30, 1944. Doubling these figures to include the men being trained for the Army Air Corp we shall have in the fighting services, in four years' time, only a little more than a third of the number of trained fliers needed to man the 50,000 planes we talk about so glibly.

But time presses. Few would assume that during the next four years we shall proceed with our rearmament program in a wholly pacific world. Prudence requires that we assume nothing of the kind. An immediate and large-scale increase in the facilities for training fliers to man our aerial defenses, as well as in plane production, would seem to be imperative.

Britain's Task

The dictatorial powers over labor and capital assumed by the British government will undoubtedly result in fuller utilization of the existing machinery of production.

The task ahead, however, is formidable—that of employing this new governmental freedom of action to the best possible advantage. The strength for combat developed by an authoritarian state like Germany cannot be achieved merely by concentrating control powers over industry in the hands of government officials. A prolonged period of experimental planning with a definitive objective in mind preceded Germany's assaults upon neighboring countries.

Any democratic State whose ideal is the peaceful pursuit of trade and commerce necessarily lacks the machinery for engaging in the purposive warlike endeavors of people living under all-powerful dictatorships. Great Britain cannot hope, therefore, to accomplish economic miracles by temporarily adopting the Nazi technique. Hours of labor can, of course, be lengthened, restrictive practices of both trade unions and employer groups can be abolished in order to accelerate operations. But large scale planning is essential to make the innumerable parts of the complex economic machine function with a minimum of friction.

The London Economist, which has been urging a speed-up of industrial mobilization ever since the outbreak of the war, recently stated that Great Britain had reached a crisis in production and that it could go no farther with "the present methods and the present men." This impasse was said to be due to a failure to lay out and follow a complete plan of operations. "There has been a tendency," the Economist asserted, "to plan only the final stages of production. For the supply machine to work smoothly, every industrial process must be traced back to its first origins in mine, forest, farm or workship, and every link in the chain must be tested, and if need be, reinforced, so that it can bear the strain of quantity production."

It appears, too, that the methods of recruiting labor for work have been left too much to the discretion of the individual employer. Despite the existence of a considerable reserve of unemployed, there is need for a mobile trained force of men ready for emergencies.

The British also have a difficult problem to deal with in trying to maintain their export industries. Production for war in their case calls for production of surpluses for export. For exports pay for the food and raw materials which Great Britain must import. Josiah Wedgwood said recently: "Without exports we die." The force of that statement is reflected in the announcement that war material and export industries are to be given absolute priority in obtaining supplies.

Another handicap of British industry which cannot be overcome speedily is the comparative obsolescence of much equipment. The obstacles to rapid adoption of the newest and most efficient techniques are in part due to the inertia of custom, and the weakening of that spirit of competition that spells progress. However, the social problems created by rapid supersession of labor by machines are serious in a country with a large industrial population.

Britain's reluctance to metamorphose her industrial structure to keep it abreast of the most recent developments is not, therefore, due entirely to lack of enterprise. A good deal that we are accustomed to call economic progress has been sacrificed in an effort to maintain the kind of social and economic order which the British people have created for themselves under a system of relatively free enterprise. It is mostly their misfortune—not their fault—that the system has failed to stand up under strains of unimagined severity.

England In Peril

From Cape Griz Nez, just north of the channel port of Boulogne, the chalk cliffs of Kent can be clearly seen in fine weather, lying like a cloud across the narrow straits of Dover, here only 22 miles wide.

Many Americans, passing through Boulogne on their way from London to Paris, have seen there the great column of the Grande Armee, begun by Napoleon in 1804 to commemorate his anticipated invasion of England. Other visitors, less hurried in their itinerary, have stopped off at Boulogne long enough to wander out to Cape Griz Nez, to see the still visible traces of Napoleon's great camp, and to muse on the magnitude of his ambition of dictating a punitive peace to the British Empire from London.

Yesterday, German motorized columns, moving swiftly north from Abbeville, were reported by Winston Churchill to be fighting in the Boulogne area. Other Nazi detachments, less than 100 miles to the east, were swinging rapidly down the Belgian coast with the aim of closing a ring of steel around the Allied armies defending the channel ports.

As these well-planned operations develop it becomes evident to all that very much in Hitler's mind is a successful accomplishment of that "descent upon England" which Napoleon could never quite pull off. Of course this plan may at the moment be a feint. Paris may be the real immediate objective. But it begins to look as though invasion of England is seriously intended.

Napoleon's military machine, like that of Hitler today, was in 1804 much stronger than the British army. The little Corsican was confident of conquering England in a month, had he been able to transport his army across the narrow Straits of Dover. But he could never gain that temporary command of the sea which was essential. Never, even for a few hours, was he able to break the cordon of the English Channel fleet.

Hitler believes that he can succeed where Napoleon failed. He believes that by a concentration of thousands of bombing planes, of fleets of high-speed motor torpedo boats, and of submarines, the Germans can temporarily drive off the British navy and permit a passage across the narrow straits. It is a conception so daring that few have, heretofore, regarded the invasion of England as a probability. But Hitler has a way of making the unbelievable come true.

The threat, at any rate, is the most serious challenge the British Empire has ever confronted. At no time in the last war did the landing of foreign troops on English soil seem really probable. At no time since William the Conqueror, even when Napoleon looked across the channel to the cliffs of Dover, has there previously been a likelihood that enemy columns might soon be marching through the streets of London. The present mental agony of the English people is revealed by the statement of their minister of information that England "is in fearful danger."

What can be done to avert this staggering blow is obviously, if belatedly, now underway. The British troops in northern France, though steadily driven back, are fighting grimly as the first line of defense they know themselves to be. The air force is concentrating to resist the anticipated attacks of the dreaded "Stuka" planes. A large proportion of the fleet is being assembled to guard the Straits of Dover. Behind these arms the coast defenses are being placed in readiness and troops are mobilized for the unprecedented experience of fighting defensively on English soil.

A little time is available before the test can come. And every moment of that precious allowance the British government will obviously use to best advantage. There are no illusions as to German weakness in England now—no disposition to underrate a tremendously powerful, wholly efficient and absolutely ruthless foe. And the very magnitude of the challenge is calculated to bring out that great reserve of energy and courage which England has always heretofore shown in the ultimate test.

A little time is available to the English before their first line of defense, now fighting to the death in France, can be destroyed. And a little more time is available to the United States before the conquest of England, which Hitler clearly envisages, could be consummated.

If that should happen, the first line of American defense against aggression will have disappeared. The most elementary self-interest demands that no practical action to bolster our own first line should be neglected now. For none need imagine that, if London is conquered, the repercussions will be negligible here.

Balkan Jitters

Seemingly remote from the present battlefield, the Balkan nations are nonetheless tense with foreboding. They have had a period of respite. It is possible that this will continue. But the Rumanians, Yugoslavs, and Greeks allow themselves little optimism on that score. They are, on the contrary, acting on the assumption that the flames of war may at any time spread in their direction.

In Rumania, this week, almost all of the still unmobilized reserves were called to the colors and the work of strengthening the frontier fortifications has been speeded up. Yugoslavia and Greece are reported to have removed their warplanes from military airports in anticipation of blitzkrieg tactics of the kind which destroyed most of the Polish air fleet on the ground. These countries, too, are calling up new classes.

What makes the plight of the Balkan nations particularly unenviable is that the menace of war comes not from one direction but from several. For instance, a sudden German thrust in the direction of the Rumanian oil wells has long been anticipated. But the clouds hanging over Carol's kingdom have a Russian and a Hungarian as well as a German shape. In Yugoslavia's case, on the other hand, the menace is Italian and German.

All the Balkan nations are threatened by the possible spread of the war. But the fact that the threat comes from different directions makes it impossible for them to achieve any measure of unity that might, to some extent at least, increase their chances of successful resistance. Nor, in view of what has been happening in France and Flanders, can they any longer count very heavily on Allied aid.

So it is everyone for himself and the devil take the hindmost. What that means, the fate of Denmark, Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands makes only too poignantly clear.

Efficiency Move

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold says there is "greater need than ever before for enforcement of antitrust laws."

There is no reason for assuming that this announcement means that the Department of Justice intends to obstruct or harass concerns engaged in supplying defense equipment. It is simply a timely warning that the Government does not propose to tolerate illegal restraints of trade that would boost prices unduly and raise the cost of the defense program.

The suits which have been instituted recently under the antitrust laws, against building trades unions, manufacturers of building supplies, and contractors were not designed to throttle the building industry but on the contrary to emancipate it from collusive controls that prevent expansion.

If trade unions could with impunity call sympathetic strikes and tie up production indefinitely in plants engaged in production of munitions, if manufacturers of supplies for Army and Navy could combine to raise prices without fear of consequences, we should not progress very far with any defense program worthy of the name.

There is grave danger that the present national emergency will be made an excuse for ignoring legal prohibitions aimed at suppression of such antisocial practices. More than ever it is essential, therefore, to take action against organizations, whether of employers or employes, which seek by illegitimate means to gain undue advantages for themselves at the expense of the country at large.

Symphony's Success

The success of the National Symphony Orchestra's campaign provides encouraging evidence of continued interest in cultural needs. Washingtonians have subscribed so well that the volunteer workers expect within a week to obtain the few remaining thousands of dollars. Not only is a new season considered as assured, but the goal is approached without touching a large sum earmarked for the Watergate concerts.

This recognition of the symphony's importance is the more pronounced because of the handicaps under which the current campaign has been waged. Getting off to a late start, because of troubles which had no connection with the public's interest or generosity, the drive was launched in a time of unusual preoccupation and worry.

If there has been any doubt that Washington wants the orchestra, the response has erased it.

Not Impressed

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just heard Col. Charles A. Lindbergh speaking over the radio. I am not the least bit impressed with what he had to say. He should have studied his history a little deeper than he has. He said that we won our independence in the Revolutionary War with a handful of men. I must say that the records show that first and last the colonies recruited, or enlisted, for service first and last during the course of the war 75,000 men. The British employed probably more Germans than they used of their own native troops to fight the colonists, but the two combined never reached half of 75,000.

When the war ended we had a French army here aiding us that was as large as any army that the colonies could put into the field at that time, and if anyone does not think they did valiant service let him go to the battlefield of Yorktown and study the markers there and see who did the big end of the fighting for "us." No historian or anyone else of the Revolutionary era has ever pretended to assert that "we" would have ever won our independence without the aid of that French army and French navy that our friends the French sent here at that time.

Early Radios

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To be sure . . . Hitler is a world menace, but the greatest annoyance on this side of the Atlantic is the crazy apartment dweller who turns on his radio at 5:30 a. m. daily—thus annoying the more sensible tenant able to sleep on. If one has to rise early and go to business, let him do it quietly and not awaken the neighborhood with his early morning radio yen. Most everything in the District is more or less "zoned" . . . Why not zone out such early morning broadcasting, as 8 a. m. should be early enough to properly enjoy even dance music recordings? DAILY READER.
Washington, May 20.

Discouraged

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am greatly discouraged by Col. Lindbergh. I used to believe that the colonel was one of the future great Americans, destined to do great things for our Nation, possibly even unto the White House, but now I am completely disillusioned.

If Col. Lindbergh will go back in the history of the United States he will find there is an American policy called the Monroe Doctrine, and he will not need to ask, as he did last night, "What is the American policy of defense, whether the United States is to defend only itself or the entire hemisphere?"

Furthermore, if the colonel would only think, just a little bit, he would realize that defense of "only itself," as he puts it, is impossible if we allow an aggressor nation, such as Germany, Japan, Russia or Italy to gain a foothold anywhere in the entire hemisphere. "When one side of the apple starts to rot, unless cut out, the entire apple is doomed."

Col. Lindbergh also states that the defense of America is simple. Let me ask a few questions. Without proper air power, fleet power and any Army power capable of defending from without, and parachute troops and fifth-column activities within, and not enough high-range antiaircraft units to defend one city alone, what is simple about our problem, unless it is Col. Lindbergh? WILLIS M. DENT.
Washington, May 20.

Prefers Guns

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Commenting on the Lindbergh radio talk, I thoroughly disagree with everything that this man has to say. Under present conditions this country would be better off to commission one of our battleships as a committee of one and return Mr. Lindbergh to some country where the sanity of the people and their rulers are gravely doubted by the rest of the civilized world.

We have no room for men of weak mentality or vision. On the other hand, the man power of this Nation are not cowards; we fear no people or nation, and after following blindly a pacifist leadership for many long years, the time has arrived when every decent, thinking American demands that we arm our country for defense and do it on a 24-hour basis, and keep on doing it. By all means give us 50,000 tanks, 100,000 airplanes and 100,000 French 75-mm. guns, and the rest of the things that go with it, and we won't need any advice from men of Mr. Lindbergh's type.

CHARLES C. WILSON.

Wants Declaration

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you allow a private citizen to express his opinion? Long ago the Congress ought to have passed an embargo forbidding commercial intercourse between the United States and Japan. And now—the sooner the better—the Congress ought to declare war against Germany. Do I hear a second? M. M. JAYNE.
Arlington, Va., May 20.

On Crime

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent wave of crime in our Nation's Capital has aroused a sense of restlessness and quite a deal of uneasiness, regardless of the efforts and methods of our police force, which we believe to be as efficient and anxious as those of other cities where the crime rate is much less.

Perhaps we have sought for the cause directly and given too little concern to what may be found an indirect cause.

Let us take, for instance, the WPA—not the WPA itself, but its present administration in our city. It doesn't seem economic or good judgment to require 72 persons employed to appoint 12 to a job, 9 out of every persons must go through the hands of from 6 to 8 persons and then 70 per cent turned away. My wife died in the employ of the WPA after 19 months of perfect service. She worked for $48.20 per month, with the understanding that she was only employed until they could find a job for me, her husband, which never occurred. I have, before and after her death, passed through the old and new boards 24 times and received a farcical appointment in passing through these hands in a half dozen packed rooms waiting. There should be an investigation.

DR. C. E. MOON.
Washington, May 15.

Reorganization

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Since our chosen military command have demonstrated their utter unfitness for making and carrying out an efficient and sufficient defense program, we suggest the President demand their resignation, which is to become effective immediately, and the President be requested to fill their vacancies by appointing to said posts a corps of "not so very good paperhangers." J. A. S.

Ask His Aid

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The principal occasion for attack upon Lindbergh seems to be that he is 100 per cent pro-American. If given the opportunity, Lindbergh could develop an air armada that is superior to any or any combination with which it could come into conflict and for this accomplishment is more able and efficient than some of the experts who have lost their calm and logic in the present crisis.

The implication that he is opposed to an establishment required for successful defense of the American continents is a gross injustice to Lindbergh and provocative of deplorable quarreling between Americans at a time when it is supremely necessary that we unite in a common defense. Lindbergh considers the probability of a victorious Germany before sufficient help can be given the Allies, and urges a policy which would constitute an attempt to maintain peace rather than one that accepts war as inevitable. The point for intelligent discussion is whether we should now commit ourselves to war with a victorious Germany.

Lindbergh should be asked to assist in the development of air defense rather than be attacked because of the advocacy of an attempt to maintain peace, and this, of course, should be without any sacrifice of any strictly American interests or rights in all American territory. The easy thing to do is to invite disaster when there is no occasion for it. The intelligent thing to do is to preserve America by the adoption of the necessary policy in the light of current events. K.
Washington, May 21.

Seconds Lindbergh

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Lindbergh's radio talk Sunday evening, of course, does not please certain powerful interests, groups with political, financial or racial-hatred axes to grind. To the masses, however, those who pay the bill during and after a war, the colonel spoke words of wisdom which we would do well to heed. Strange, but true, the warmonger does not serve his country in the front-line trenches. More power to the colonel. Let's have more of his kind of bedtime stories and less of the hysterical type. W. H. SHIELDS.
Washington, May 21.

A Tribute

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So often we neglect to compliment a newspaper for that which pleases us most in the paper. And I am one who has intended, but neglected, for a long time to send my appreciation and admiration of Mr. Elderman's cartoons. I have seen a great many in my lifetime, but his cartoons surpass all others. They are the type which tells the story without deep thought. I want especially to compliment him on "April Showers Bring Mayflowers." A two-part cartoon. I wish the whole world might have seen it.

No Street Car Stop

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the widening of Florida avenue northeast it has greatly relieved motor congestion but played havoc with the man or woman who has no car and has to depend on a street car.

Fifth street is the main entry to the Florida avenue market, and the majority of people east or west bound would board street cars at this stop. This stop has been cut out and the people east bound have to walk to Fifth street to board a car and the west bound stop has been moved to the west side of Fourth street, some distance to walk on a hot day.

I think some consideration should be given people who ride the street cars every day to do their daily marketing. W. C. JASPER.

The Post Impressionist

Say It With Sound

The Educational Radio Script Exchange of the United States Office of Education has issued a booklet which explains the how, why and whereas of radio sound effects. If you are one of those individuals of the great unseen audience who can be easily disillusioned, you'd better leave that booklet alone, because it may shatter your faith in Shakespeare's old adage that "'all the world's a stage.'" And wasn't it Josh Billings who once said: "'It's better to know nothing than to know a lot that ain't so?'"

Let's suppose you're listening to a dramatic playlet. A narrator, and atmospheric music, "deftly transport us to the scene of a lonely lighthouse at sea." (I'm quoting the book now, although I fail to understand what a lonely lighthouse is doing "at sea".)

"From our loudspeaker comes the shrill staccato of a wireless receiver accompanied by the buzzing hiss of a powerful arc. Beating against the protective windows of the lighthouse we hear faintly the downpour of rain, the occasional peals of thunder, the roar and pounding of surf against the foundation of the lighthouse. Suddenly the sound pattern is interrupted by a sputtering of the arc, lapsing into silence . . . foreboding death and destruction. There is a frantic tinkering with machinery as of an attempt being made to rekindle the light. Above the shrieking gale comes the distressed call of a freighter's deep-throated whistle. It sounds closer and closer. The crash is inevitable.

"There is a mighty crash of steel against rock, the shattering of rock, the shattering of glass, the hiss of escaping steam, men shouting and screaming with the fear of approaching death. Then—all is climaxed by a terrific explosion . . ."

Now, if you don't want your illusions shattered, you'd best not read this column. For now the Script Exchange booklet breaks down and confesses that all this extraneous sound is but snare and delusion.

"Let us look behind the loudspeaker and microphone," it says. "In one corner of the studio are two sound effects men whom we will call Mr. A and Mr. B. Surrounding them and a microphone are many peculiar looking pieces of equipment . . ."

It seems that Mr. A is tapping a wireless key with one hand, while with the other he is beating a tympani mallet against an ordinary frame window screen. To this screen is connected a magnetic pick-up wire which eventually leads to an amplifier and loudspeaker. Thus the loud rumbles of thunder. With one foot Mr. A is rocking a large, black, cradle-like affair, inside of which water swishes from side to side as the cradle rocks. That's the pounding surf.

In toto, Mr. A is a one-man ocean tempest, despite the fact that his other foot is altogether idle. If a fly ever landed on Mr. A's nose, I'm afraid there would be a diminution in the fury of the elements.

And what about Mr. B? It seems he's working one of the volume controls of a large, formidable cabinet having three phonograph turntables and a jumble of dials on the front panel. On the first turntable is a recording of a large steamboat whistle. On a cue from the control room Mr. B cuts the boat whistle by turning the volume control to zero. He presses another button on the cabinet panel and a second recording, labeled "Fright—Male Voices Only," begins turning under the needle. Thus you hear the "shouting and screaming with fear of approaching death."

Then, by the time the pickup hits the record—a small fraction of a second—Mr. B has picked up an inflated toy balloon containing lead shot and is rubbing the surface of the balloon to simulate the crunching and crushing of heavy steel plates. That is where the "ship" crashes against the "rocks."

In alphabetical order and reading from left to right, the Script Exchange booklet lists and explains various methods for procuring radio sound effects. Here are a few—and if you aren't already disillusioned, you will be shortly.

Airplane motor—There are two ways to effect this. One is to operate an electric vibrator with a soft rubber attachment on the membrane surface of a small tom-tom. The other is to place a piece of folded paper so that it will strike the whirling blades of an electric fan.

Bells—Some excellent bells can be made from automobile brake drums.

Brook babbling—You can get a pretty good sound simulation by blowing air through a straw into a glass of water. (Perhaps for a roaring river you might try sarsaparilla or something stronger.)

Building crashing — Crush two strawberry boxes near the mike.

Cow being milked — Squeeze water-filled ear-syringes alternately into a bucket.

Echo effect or speech in a tunnel—Turn your back to the mike and talk directly into a large glass jar.

Falling body—Dropping an ordinary garden squash provides the dull, sickening thud of a body hurtling to the sidewalk.

Fighting sounds—Many fights are fought on the radio by whacking a rubber sponge with the fist.

Fire—The crackling of fire may be produced by twisting cellophane near the mike. Then, too, you can break broom straws and crush wrapping paper.

Hail—Drop rice kernels on glass, tin or wood.

Indian warwhoops — If genuine redskins aren't available, use paleface imitators with a wailing or eerie moaning effect.

After several practical experiments, the Script Exchange booklet reports, one of the best ways to get the sound effect of washing dishes is—to wash dishes.

If The Allies Lose

By Dorothy Thompson

Nightmare Into Reality

S. S. Washington, May 23.

IF THE ALLIES lose this war it will prove to be the worst catastrophe for the United States in our whole history.

Four empires—the British, the French, the Belgian and the Dutch—with their vast raw material resources and markets in Africa, Asia and throughout the world will have fallen into the lap of the Nazis, with sops thrown to Mussolini for his willingness to act as Foreign Gauleiter No. 1.

This world empire, of a size undreamed of by Caesar or Napoleon, will feed raw materials into a huge European workshop drained of capital, and will produce goods by enslaved skilled and unskilled labor working under taskmasters at maximum hours and subsistence wages; it will dump these goods at prices with which no free country can possibly compete.

The idea that North America can hold South America economically under these conditions is illusory. The very products of which South America has a surplus are the products of which we, too, have a surplus. The markets of South America have always been chiefly in Europe, and Hitler's Europe will buy South American products in exchange for armaments, machinery and consumers' goods offered at prices with which we cannot compete unless we cut our own standards of life to the bone.

THE ECONOMIC DRIVE which we have already seen on a large scale will be carried forward on a stupendous world scale and will be accompanied by a political and propaganda campaign through Fifth Columns, augmented by every commercial agent.

The fall in the standard of living, and the loss of markets and possibly even sources of raw material such as rubber and tin will produce new unemployment in America and social unrest, which these Fifth Columns will systematically inflame.

In the crises they will set class against class, race against race and party against party. Old racial and national allegiances will be appealed to, and America will escape this war only to risk the worst kind of war: revolution—civil war—fomented from without and carried on through agents within.

What America risks is to be turned into another Spain!

IT IS HARD to write what one sees, what one has seen coming, irresistibly and ruthlessly and encountering only the resistance of words, for seven long years of nightmare. There is another Fifth Column, and perhaps it is the most dangerous of all. It is found in those who pooh-pooh the danger and strangle the words in the throats of the warners by wisecracks. They tap their foreheads and smile in a superior way, whispering sympathetically, "hysterical," "poor fellow—a little cracked; he sees bogies." "Why does he speak so loudly?" or they look severe and say, "If he keeps on talking about this, he will conjure it up. He is inciting to action, and action is dangerous." They are close to the very entourage of the President, some of them, and they have stripped his own words of much of their strength. He has not dared to tell the whole truth.

One must not tell the people more than they can bear.

Who knows how much truth the people can bear? Do they not in the end see it—in the eyes of the gangster at the door and the bayonet at the breast?

WE SHOULD send aid to the Allies, now, today. Every airplane that can be shipped, every gun that can be crated, in every ship that can be floated and convoyed, while there is a toehold in Europe where they can be landed and while there are still men alive offering their bodies to be broken. We should send aid regardless of all mistakes which all the Allied governments have made; for their mistakes are our own mistakes—the errors of incredulity and complacency. They—and we—have been giving away our world, inch by inch and position by position, retreating to the last stand, in the last trench.

The last trench is a trap.

This war is not lost for a world where men can still live, free and unafraid. It is not going to be lost. But 1,000 airplanes today will be worth 30,000 tomorrow.

Armaments are useless unless one uses them on the right side. Czech armaments equipped 40 Nazi divisions and revealed the secrets of the Maginot Line. They are being used all right—to kill a Czech legion in France and to keep down the Czechs at home.

ADOLF HITLER

The fleet that fights in our interests today will, if captured, be used against us tomorrow.

HITLER'S SECRET weapon is not a thermite bomb or a surface detonator. It is bacteria all right, but new bacteria: The germs of defeatism. It is his knowledge of the deathly slowness, the child-like credulity, the easy-going complacency of democracies and their apparent incapacity, in the twentieth century, to take an audacious decision in time.

Hitler won his first war against the German republic and observed then that the characteristics of democracies is that they wake up too late.

The British and French thought they would get really going in 1941.

THIS IS NO TIME for panic—for the organization of American mothers to receive parachutists! The Nazis won't come to America in parachutes—not for a long time, anyway, and probably never. But they have already been among us for some time, agitating American mothers not to permit us to be drawn into war by sending aid to the Allies.

WHAT WE NEED are not minute ladies with rifles, but a council of national defense with full powers to plan the organization and speeding up of our industries for the most rapid delivery of weapons to England and France—and the delivery of what we have now.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

The Arrogant C. I. O.

SOME MEMBERS and officers of the American Federation of Labor, including Will Green, have thought that certain of these dispatches, dealing with corruption in the labor movement and oppression of union members and nonunion workers by crooked unioneers, have tended to favor the C. I. O. The explanation is that the C. I. O. appears to be comparatively, although not entirely, free of the influence of underworld gorillas. The C. I. O. has its vices, but they do not include to an important degree racketeering by common criminals or exploitation of the membership by officers who are clean only in the sense that they have never been convicted of their larcenies. These faults are serious in the A. F. of L. and will be deadly unless the leaders face the question and reform this year.

For the sake of the record, however, and the solace of the A. F. of L., in a very embarrassing situation, it may be observed that John L. Lewis served in the A. F. of L. a long time, that his reasons for breaking away were political and personal and that he never fought hoodlumism when he was in and has ignored it as an issue since he got out.

The gorillas and the technically respectable profiteers of the labor movement have found the A. F. of L. homelike because the field was pioneered long ago. In Chicago and elsewhere, but conspicuously in Chicago, traitorous officials sold out or otherwise exploited their members for many a year before repeal turned the banditti of the Sicilian Union and the vice business to the field of unionism.

BUT THE C. I. O. is new and heavily infested with Communists, and the ordinary, direct-action stick-up man and leg-breaker can't cope with them. They get in your hair. They hold long meetings and talk and resolute for hours to work the will of Joe Stinkfoot, of Moscow, and they are always wanting to vote on something or asking what became of the money. That is to say, they always want to know where the money went when they are not in control. They often exercise minority control, however, and when they do they are very informal about their bookkeeping. However, Communists, being zealots, do not steal primarily for personal profit. They bleed the American members for political funds to serve the Communist line, pinching off some of the revenue for personal uses, but not all of it. Why should a gorilla bother with such pests when he can move into an A. F. of L. union, exhibit a gun by way of credentials and take over the treasury, confident, on the basis of the A. F. of L.'s record in cases past, that the internationals and the A. F. of L. itself will refuse to intervene lest the sacred principle of autonomy be bruised?

Mr. Lewis' racket is political. He is a man of vanity and great ambition, and his pet scheme is the closed shop plus the check-off. The closed shop requires that every worker in a given industry and, eventually, every worker in the United States must belong to one of his unions. The check-off is a first lien on the wages of all the members for their dues and such assessments as may be imposed by the political officers of the unions. Before they buy bread they must pay dues and assessments, and their money, deducted by their employers and paid directly to Mr. Lewis' unions, may be used for political purposes contrary to their beliefs. It may be spent to elect Mr. Lewis, president-dictator, and those Americans who join his unions unwillingly in order to qualify for jobs under closed-shop principle must contribute to his purpose even though they think Mr. Lewis would be a calamitous choice.

MR. LEWIS derives a portion of his power or importance from the unwilling membership of many American citizens who, individually, repudiate him. But when he speaks he speaks for them, nevertheless, and on subjects on which he is not authorized to commit them. Thus many workers—including, incidentally, many of his mine workers who are popularly supposed to be wholly devoted to him—find themselves shanghaied into the political following of a man whom they distrust, their money misappropriated to political issues which, as citizens, they strongly oppose.

The C. I. O. is not required by any law to account for the money thus taken, or extorted, from members who submit only because they must submit or go jobless. If their local or national unions happen to be dominated by Communists that is an extra worry and danger.

It is a question whether one situation is worse than the other.

The A. F. of L.'s vice certainly does license oppression, extortion and deprivation, and it tends to shake the faith of the people in a form of government which permits all this and, in some circumstances, actually helps the stick-up man.

The C. I. O., while demanding their money, doesn't demand as much, but is ruthless, arrogant and dictatorial in trampling their constitutional rights.

MUST THEY PROVIDE AN ARSENAL?
Leaders of the American aviation industry are shown as they conferred recently on national defense. Ernest Lindley suggests they will have to help provide an arsenal for the Allies. Allies Need Arsenal

By Ernest K. Lindley

The American Role

THE DREADFUL euphemism "melee" which has appeared almost daily in the French army communiques applies to the entire world situation. Any attempt at a short analysis must be oversimplified. Insofar as the Allies are concerned, however, the major possibilities of the next few weeks include these:

(1) The miracle which saves the Allied armies on the Continent from destruction.

(2) Surrender by France.

(3) Surrender by Great Britain.

(4) Surrender by both Great Britain and France.

(5) The refusal of either France or Great Britain to surrender, even though both may be overrun or bombed into shambles. In other words, their insistence on carrying on the war as world empires even if their home bases become untenable.

Many complications can be introduced: the roles of Italy, the Soviet Union, Sweden, Turkey and the Balkans and Japan.

Whatever ensues, the United States must become a great arsenal as rapidly as possible. Whatever ensues, Germany, for a long time to come, will be the world's most formidable air power and probably its most formidable land power. If it succeeds in forcing the surrender of the British and French fleets and captures the naval ships now being built or repaired in British and French docks, it will also become the world's greatest sea power.

Whatever the result, Great Britain and perhaps France also seem destined to be, during the next few weeks, the victims of terrible destruction from the air. The tragic fact is that they were unprepared for this war. In war, to be relatively unprepared may be as disastrous as to be totally unprepared.

THE COLD REALITY is that we must pay heavily for the diplomatic and military blunders of France and Great Britain—and of the Netherlands and Norway, and of every other small European neutral which did not arm itself and join with its neighbors in maintaining an iron ring around the Germans. We may have to pay also for Italy and Russia. For if the Allies are quickly crushed, neither Italy nor Russia, nor probably the two in combination, can muster the strength to stop the Nazi power on the ground and in the air.

At present the only nation combining the raw materials, the industrial capacity, the organizing ability, the energy, and the relative security from attack to serve as a base for the effort to limit the expansion of Germany seems to be the United States. We have also a formidable instrument in our Navy. Despite their dark outlook, the Allies may yet be able to do the job, by relying on us only as an arsenal. But this prospect has been getting dimmer hour by hour. The time may be near when we will have to decide whether we are going to assume major responsibilities for directing the resistance to German expansion.

It is conceivable that within weeks the British Isles will become untenable as a base for British sea power. If the British or combined Allied fleets, or what is left of them, in the Atlantic fall back on Canada we will be all the way into the world struggle, whether or not we declare that we are at war.

At the moment our formal entry into the war, even if we were disposed to make it, could accomplish nothing beyond bolstering the morale of the Allies, and possibly deterring other nations from jumping on the German bandwagon—a band-wagon which may prove to be a Moloch. We are not prepared, in the air or on land, to give effective assistance immediately. And if sea power without air power can save Great Britain and France, as distinguished from their empires, they already have it.

THERE ARE PRACTICAL ways, however, in which we can give more help and in which, if worse comes to worst, we can collaborate in saving as much as possible of the non-European world from the domination of Germany and her potential satellite-allies. We have available very little material that would be useful to the Allies. We do have, however, 2,000 or more old light artillery pieces from the World War, which could be shipped abroad. Their mountings have not yet been modernized, but it takes a long time to bore the barrels of 2,000 field pieces. This semiobsolete equipment might be valuable to France.

We might also ship immediately from 700 to 1,200 of our Army and Navy planes. Those are planes which are obsolescent or obsolete, and which will quickly be replaced by better models already ordered from American factories. Although out-of-date, these planes, if sent immediately could be of substantial help to the Allies.

Looking ahead a bit further, we could much more rapidly rearm the Allies and ourselves if we had the help of several thousand highly skilled workmen. Even now among the Belgian refugees in France there may be skilled gunmakers. If French arsenals are bombed, both French and Belgian artisans with high skills may have no place to work. And if the destruction extends to Great Britain, as it almost certainly will, there may be available shortly thousands of British machinists, gunmakers, and ship loftsmen, fitters, coppersmiths, and other men in the naval shipbuilding crafts.

If these highly skilled artisans cannot be kept at work in France and Great Britain, they can be put to work in the United States. We can use all of them we can get to expedite our rearmament program.

In the present struggle, several thousand of these men with highly specialized skills which take years to acquire, are far more valuable than all the gold, diamonds and other precious articles which are being moved westward from the Continent of Europe. It may be well to begin to think now about the organization of a selective migration, which, with our already available assets, will permit the acceleration of our defense program. This program must include the strengthening of the Allies, simply because we are not yet ready to assume the consequences of their total defeat.

Books And Things

Legend Of A River

THE ARKANSAS River (you pronounce the terminal "s" for its first 1,100 miles; then call it "Arkansaw") does not appear in the history—or the geography—books as one of the major rivers of the North American Continent, but Clyde Brion Davis, writing "The Arkansas" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50) for the Rivers of America Series finds enough history and legend along its banks to set up a self-respecting republic. Incidentally, as he points out several times, it is 1,450 miles long and it drops 10,000 feet between the Colorado mountains and the Mississippi River.

As Mr. Davis sees it, the river runs from the Horace Austin Warner Tabor country through the James R. De Remer Canyon, past the George Washington Swink melon fields, the Ozark tall-tale region, Opie Read's home town and the Sam ("Big Drunk") Houston country to Mark Twain's vanishing city of Napoleon. That offers latitude and longitude for a bumper crop of roaring good stories; and Mr. Davis, as three good novels—"The Anointed," "The Great American Novel" and "Nebraska Coast"—have proved, is a rattling good story teller.

As a historian he is probably sound enough for his readable purpose, but literal-minded readers may take exception to some of his gallantly colorful tales of the Spaniards who first explored the region, and to later picturesque details. William Green Russell, who first panned gold on the upper Arkansas, for instance, may have had waxed mustaches 10 inches long and a beard neatly braided into two pigtails, as Mr. Davis describes him, in the late 1850's, when he made his biggest strike, but hardly in 1849, when Mr. Davis is most eloquent about his hair. America was a clean-shaven Nation in 1849. And it may be true that Gen. Albert Pike, Arkansas' most famous duelist, casually puffed at a fine Havana cigar before firing at John Selden Roane in 1848, but Mr. Davis has him "pink" Roane between puffs, and the historians record that both Pike and Roane missed their opponents . . . Mr. Davis, however, wrote his book for readers not for sticklers for literal accuracy.

HORACE Austin Warner Tabor, you may have forgotten, was the pride of Colorado who shone briefly as United States Senator in 1883. President Arthur was one of the convivial guests at his wedding to a 22-year-old daughter of the mine country known as "Baby Doe," while Coloradans stayed away, sympathizing with his divorced wife, Augusta, a faded New England girl who had baked pies and bread for 20 years to support Horace before he finally struck gold. He had gone to Colorado in the "Pike's Peak or Bust" days, and, like most of his contemporaries, had bust. After his spectacular strike, his mines brought him, for a time, $100,000 a month. He built Denver's gaudy opera house and a castle for "Baby Doe" (which, he boasted, had a mahogany privy), and he financially finagled his way into the Senate.

The panic of 1893 stripped Tabor clean, and Mr. Davis rounds out the Tabor parable of fading riches by reporting that after Horace died in a hotel room, his wife, "Baby Doe," lived on for 30 years in a shack at the abandoned Matchless Mine. Mr. Davis, as a Denver reporter, saw her once—an embittered old woman in patched overalls and rubber boots, carrying a burlap sack over her shoulder. The daughter, whom Horace had named Rose Mary, Echo Silver Dollar Tabor, died in mysterious circumstances after a debauch in a Chicago tenement. It was shirt sleeves to shirtsleeves in one generation.

"The Arkansas" is one of the most light-hearted readable books in an immensely readable series.

Lost Bastions

By Barnet Nover

Down To Bedrock On Defense

ACTING WITH unexampled speed and with almost no dissenting voices raised in opposition to what is the most revolutionary development in the long history of British democracy, the British Parliament voted on Wednesday to endow the Churchill government with full dictatorial powers. The same day the Senate of the United States unanimously gave its approval to the $1,823,000,000 War Department appropriation bill.

At first glance it seems far-fetched to mention these events in the same breath. Yet they differ only in degree, not in kind. Both reflect the intense seriousness of the hour. Both demonstrate the readiness of a democratic people, when faced by a great emergency, to forget partisan differences and close their ranks. And both are eloquent of tragically lost opportunities.

THE OUTER BASTIONS are gone and the problem of defense has beome a problem of defending the very homes and hearths. That is true of France. Great Britain for the first time since the days of William the Conqueror, nearly 900 years ago, may be invaded. And only those with a congenital unwillingness to face unpleasant facts can assume that, except for the factor of time, we are not in the same situation.

The United States does not face the immediate danger of invasion. The ocean is no barrier. But there is still fighting going on in Flanders and France and as long as that struggle rages we are safe. But in view of the possibilities arising out of the grim situation on the continent of Europe no American can now take for granted that the immunity we have hitherto enjoyed will continue indefinitely.

WE, TOO, have lost our outer bastions and we lost them, though we did not recognize it at the time, when Great Britain and France and the other free peoples lost them. And we, too, are now faced with the possibility which in their case has become a grim reality of having to consider defense in rock bottom terms of men and arms.

To be sure, where the French and British have only hours to gird themselves for what lies ahead we have days, where they have weeks we have months and possibly years. But for us, too, it is much later than we think.

For nine years the pause between aggressions has steadily diminished. Eight years elapsed between Mussolini's assault on Corfu and the Japanese invasion of Manchuria. There was almost a four-year gap between the latter event and the Fascist assault on Ethiopia. But only a few months elapsed between the time that the Italian troops entered Addis Ababa and Italian intervention in Spain.

Hitler's time-table of aggression is even more frightening. Two years elapsed between the re-entry of German troops into the Rhineland and the annexation of Austria, a year between that event and the final extinction of Czecho-Slovak independence. Five months later Poland was overrun. There followed a pause of six months. Then came in extremely rapid order the invasion of Denmark, of Norway, of the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg and now of France with England now directly menaced.

IT WOULD HAVE been a simple matter to crush the spirit of aggression in 1931. It was still a relatively easy matter four years later. But as each bastion of peace fell it became increasingly difficult to preserve the bastions that were left. For Great Britain and France there are now none except those that are to be found in their own lands. For us Great Britain and France, the British and French armies and fleets are now the last important bastions. Should they fall we would be left only with those that we might create in this hemisphere and if these prove impossible to protect we, too, will be faced with the extremely unpleasant necessity of having to fight for our freedom and independence on our own soil.

Not too soon, therefore, are we making plans of defense which envisage that frightening possibility. For we cannot assume that in a year or two years or ten years the outlying possessions of the United States, the lands bordering our undefended frontiers, even the Nation itself will not be invaded. That is why Congress has rightly acted with speed in authorizing a vast increase in our defense expenditures and what is about to be appropriated is certain to be only a beginning unless the tide of Nazi victories is brought to a halt.

Great Britain has sea power. She has a great empire whose raw materials she can draw on. She has wealth. Her people are people of courage and determination and like their Allies, the French, are imbued with a fierce patriotism and love of liberty. But these assets will be valueless unless they are given time. And our wealth, our resources, our own love of freedom and independence, will also prove unequal in the scales unless we take time by the forelock.

Armies are not built in a day; nor air forces; nor the industrial setup necessary to turn out a continuous supply of war material. Armed might, industrial preparation, adequacy of trained personnel—these may soon be our last bastions. It is not too soon to build them, fortify them and strengthen them. For time presses.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Open Letter To Lindy

Dear Slim: They are still sniping at you for your recent radio speech on our rush-order defense drive, but don't mind 'em. You're okay. Of course, you are a distinct novelty in public life, a man who knows what he is talking about and a fellow whose remarks are backed up by personal experience. That alone is unusual enough to jar the country. You know as much about flying as anybody, you have personally inspected and studied the airplane fleets of Europe, you understand the scope and technique of modern war from the air. So you needn't have any doubt that the great mass of Americans have confidence in you.

The situation called for a speedy debunking of the attitude that national defense is entirely a matter of vast appropriations and the erection of some new dough-gushers, and you met it. You are a standout as a fellow who knows what it is to accomplish great things without money. You came of poor folks who had to consider economy. None of the Lindberghs could squander coin, dismiss correct bookkeeping and just trust to luck.

If money was more important than careful planning all your competitors in that first flight across the Atlantic would have been there weeks ahead of you. Money was the one thing you lacked on that epic flight that stirred the world 13 years ago.

But you had a hard-headed plan, plenty of horse sense and a genuine knowledge of your business. I can still see you on that field of fliers preparing for the hop to Europe . . . you were a rawboned, unimpressive, quiet airman who had to count pennies and do things without any splurge. There were other fliers there who had money to burn and who had costly planes upon which dough had been lavished without stint. Money was no object to some of these sky pilots, and they got all the publicity. But it was you, in whose plans money was the minor factor, who flew the ocean.

That qualifies you, in my opinion, to make a radio speech in which you say a few scorching words to the effect that money shouldn't be put first in our defense plans, and that sound thinking and careful planning come first.

Maybe you went a little too far in branding as hysterical and silly the alarm over a possible invasion, but what of it? I don't know of any recent radio speech by anybody on that subject that didn't have some mistakes in it. The point is that you, as the country's No. 1 Aviation Man, had a right to talk straight from the shoulder.

You did a real service to America, Lindy, in driving home the fact that big appropriations and new pump priming are not the whole answer to preparedness. You flew the ocean on a couple of chocolate bars and a chicken sandwich, in the Spirit of St. Louis. You might not have done it at all on caviar, breast of guinea hen and champagne in a de luxe plane costing $500,000 and turned out by the best airplane factory politicians could design. Sincerely,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

Hitler is said to have fired a Fifth Column worker who was so slow he couldn't make the third.

Typical Family Stuff

"Typical families" have been chosen to occupy model homes at the New York World's Fair. A "typical family" is, we suppose, a family where mother leaves the radio on for hours and replies, "I don't know," when asked what's on the air; (b) where father is expected to work on the rock garden every night after a hard day in the office and still go over to the Smiths for bridge; (c) where the groceries take second place to gasoline; (d) where everybody agrees that the auto must be kept, even if the doctor's bill is never paid.

The New Yorker

New York, May 23.

PERSONALS: For the next two weeks Franchot Tone's companions will be the most talkative girls in town—girls who will supply all the conversation, the ordering of food and drinks, and even the instructions to cab drivers. Either that, or else Tone's companion will be one girl, who can respond in silence, by a glance or a touch of the hand. For Franchot has an ailing throat and the doctors have prescribed the silent treatment: he must not utter a word for two weeks.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT: At El Morocco, Lois Elliman sang "The Galloping Goose," a novelty song written by Margaret Mallory, of the Mallory steamship family. Miss Mallory had written the song when she was intent upon pursuing a career and relinquishing the social life . . . And while Miss Elliman sang her song, Margaret Mallory sat at a table near the entrance, selling buttons for the benefit of French and British relief.

HISTORIC DEPT.: A member of the British consul's staff, who knows the captain of the destroyer which took the Duke of Windsor to France after the abdication, revealed this story two days ago: On that historic trip, the captain found Windsor in his cabin. "Have a drink," the Duke invited. The captain declined and said that he'd return to the bridge. "I'll join you there," Windsor stated, went to the bridge, and there saw two sailors, wearing raincoats over their uniforms . . . "How much do your uniforms weigh—including these coats?" asked Windsor. Nobody knew the answer. And so, in that dark night on the English Channel, the ruler who was quitting his empire forever had scales brought up to weigh the uniform of a tar.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT: Rex Smith, editor of News-Week, read the proofs of the current issue, in which Josephine Hutchinson, the screen star, is mentioned . . . "How do you spell Hutchinson?" Smith asked . . . "That's easy," replied the proofreader. "'Hutch,' as in 'Rabbit;' 'In,' as in 'Dutch,' and 'Son,' as in 'My, My.'"

AT THE CONCLUSION of the recent convention of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers—Sidney Hillman's union which had a jurisdictional battle with David Dubinsky's ILGWU—the members of the union presented Hillman with an unusual floral display—a "suit" made of artificial flowers. Hillman was touched at this presentation, and examined the "suit." To each of the flowers was attached a union label, signifying not only that it was union-made, but also that the people who made it were paid-up members of ILGWU.

PAUL DE KRUIF, anti-Fascist author of "Fight for Life" and "Microbe Hunters," has sent to his friends copies of his new book, "Health Is Wealth," with the inscription: "Heil, Health" . . . Mayor La Guardia's ruling that the consulates in New York shall be immune from picketing will be tested shortly, by arrangement. It will be one of the less popular consulates . . . N. Y. State's probe into the printing racket won't go further than the two companies already mentioned . . . Jimmy Durante, who falls through a trap door in the Romeo and Juliet blackout in "Keep Off the Grass," missed the cue in Boston because he doesn't stick to the script. He dropped through the trap door and sprained his ankle—but the pain was eased by the fact that he fell into the room where the chorines were dressing.

GERTRUDE STEIN, living in the midst of war-torn Paris, after all these years has decided that now is the time for her to write another novel . . . Miss Stein completed the first 40 pages, written in the same mystic style which typifies all her work, and sent it to Bennet Cerf, of Random House. She calls this novel "Ida" . . . "Do you think that a novel called 'Ida' by Gertrude Stein, is just what the world needs right now?" asked Cerf . . . "My novel, 'Ida,'" wrote Gertrude Stein, in clear, unmistakable words, "is all about the Duchess of Windsor."

SEAMAN'S INSTITUTE: The seamen who congregate at your place should remind their colleagues about this: All persons who sight red smoke rising from the surface of the water should report it immediately to the nearest naval authorities—because it means that a United States submarine is in need of assistance. Commander Field, director of Marine Inspection & Navigation Bureau, reports that when the Squalus went down, fishermen saw red smoke-bombs appearing, but made no report, believing they represented some sort of drilling . . .

Louella O. Parsons

Hollywood, May 23 (INS).—Paramount isn't forgetting its $170,000 suit against Don Ameche for his failure to keep the contract Twentieth Century-Fox made for him in "The Night of January 16th." But Ameche's refusal to accept the script isn't keeping the movie off the screen by any means. "The Night of January 16th," which was a darn good play when it appeared on Broadway, will be filmed under the title of "Secrets of a Secretary." Again I ask why change the name of a successful play after paying good money to make a movie of it?

LOUELLA PARSONS

Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland—interesting teaming—will be costarred in the new edition of the movie of "The Night of January 16th." Paramount is now determined to let Mr. Ameche and the world see they can make a good picture out of this play.

Believe it or not, there is still sentiment and romance in this movie business of ours. Take Leo McCarey and Hal Roach. Years ago Hal gave Leo his first start in the movie business. This bright young boy, spotted by Producer Roach, has had really a Horatio Alger career and when he left Roach five years later he was directing all the Laurel and Hardy hits. Now every studio in the business has made a proposition to McCarey, but he will turn them all down and join the Roach company as an executive producer. I call it smart of Hal to nab Leo, for he knows comedy as no one else—with the exception of Mr. Roach himself.

The rumor that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will move its English movie picture studio to Canada was probably prompted by the purchase of a story, Thirty Thousand Horses." If and when this story, suggested by Clark Gable, is filmed, it will be made in Canada. It deals with the shipping of airplanes to Canada and then to England during the war. Right now it would be exceedingly dangerous to make such a picture and Metro is not taking any chances. It has abandoned temporarily all idea of picture making in London and every effort is being made to get Robert Montgomery back to this country.

No broadcast from the war capitals has been so personal to Hollywood as the weary, tired voice of Quentin Reynolds talking from Paris after three sleepless nights and days. He spoke first of the bitter symphony of rumbling bombs and then of a single French pilot cruising overhead over the sleeping city; "I wonder if my old friends, Bill Powell, Ronald Colman and John McClain are sitting in our favorite cafe in Hollywood?" he intoned in words that sent a tingle down his listeners' backs. "If they are, I hope they will fill their glasses and drink to that boy up there tonight—tomorrow may be too late."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Vincent Prices will welcome their first baby in September. Papa is now in "Brigham Young," the Countess di Frasso is giving a small dinner Saturday night in honor of Princess Haugwitz - Reventlow. The former Barbara Hutton, who is Dorothy's house guest, has completed the business which brought her here and will return to Honolulu next week; Harry Ruby, well-known composer and Eileen Percy's husband, is reported sick in New York. Certainly looks like love the way Orson Welles was gazing in Dolores Del Rio's eyes at Ciro's. The best dancers on the floor were Artie Stebbins and his little wife, the former Ann Darling.

Simone Simon on the M.-G.-M. lot today looking like a million; Gary Cooper has a cunning picture of his daughter on the dashboard of his car; the devoted boy friend with Mae Murray at the La Conga was Oscar Bambacher, retired business man; Slapsie Maxie says he will make a formal challenge to the winner of the Max Baer-Tony Galento fight. The Romeo and Juliet sequence in the Warner picture which Slapsie and Elsa Maxwell made is a riot; Rudy Vallee and his former love, Gloria Youngblood, at the Beverly Tropics.

The whole town is turning out tomorrow night for the opening of the Pirate's Den, sponsored by Bing Crosby, Rudy Vallee, Ken Murray and Johnny Weissmuller. The proceeds will be turned over to Ann Lehr's Hollywood Guild. The guest list contains the names of Myrna Loy, Arthur Hornblow, the Fred MacMurrays and many others; Harpo Marx is spending all his spare time with Robert Milliken, Nobel Prize winner, studying artificial lightning.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

'Waterloo Bridge,' Palace, Gains Power From Its Cast

Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor Bring New Values to Sherwood War Drama; A Strong Cast Is Seen in Support

"WATERLOO BRIDGE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the play by Robert E. Sherwood, adapted to the screen by S. N. Behrman, Hans Rameau and George Froeschel, costarring Vivien Leigh and Robert Taylor, with Lucille Watson, Virginia Field, Mme. Maria Ouspenskaya, C. Aubrey Smith, Janet Shaw, Janet Waldo, Steffi Duna, Virginia Carroll, Leda Nicova, Clara Reid, Leo G. Carroll and others. Directed by Mervyn LeRoy. Previewed Tuesday, May 21. At Loew's Palace Theater.

AS HARDLY NEEDS to be divulged at this day and date, it is a tragic love story that is unreeled in "Waterloo Bridge." Not so grimly tragic as the one Robert E. Sherwood more recently told in "There Shall Be No Night," but still a wartime narrative that is essentially somber.

BELL.

Since "Waterloo Bridge" first was filmed, almost a decade ago, it has undergone a little deft refashioning in the form of its telling. A brief prologue and an even briefer epilogue give the tale an implied timeliness that prevents its complete absorption with the first World War. The Capt. Roy Cronin of the drama's principal action, as the picture opens, is Maj. Roy Cronin, about to leave for the front in the present European conflict. He wishes first to visit the Waterloo Bridge and there, in the reverie that begins and ends the picture, he relives in memory the events of a quarter century ago. It is, of course, the "flashback" technique, but rather more skillfully applied than usual.

Perhaps the primary virtue of the new "Waterloo Bridge" is that it demonstrates that Vivien Leigh is an actress of the first rank and Robert Taylor entitled to be freed from the "pretty-boy" stigma which, in some unaccountable way, attached itself to him early in his screen career.

Miss Leigh's performance in a less extended, but hardly less variegated, role than that of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind," makes the character of Myra, the ballet dancer who fell desperately in love with the young officer she met by chance during an air raid, poignantly real and moving. Her portrayal is alive and vibrant—at times brilliantly illuminating—but never for an instant off the key of the play's dominant note. Taylor is natural, forthright and convincing, both as the young captain of the Great War and the graying major of the present struggle on the other side. The two play admirably together and leave little enough to choose between them in the matter of complete faithfulness to their detestist roles.

There are many other members of the cast who contribute notably to the strength of the story of the dancer who thought her lover dead on the battlefield and, in the face of desperate need, took up the "oldest profession"—only to learn that her betrothed was alive and still eager to marry her. Foremost among these are Lucille Watson, splendidly cast as Capt. Cronin's mother; Madame Maria Ouspenskaya, the martinet of the ballet school; Virginia Field, who appears with Miss Leigh in many scenes on equal terms, and C. Aubrey Smith, who is seen briefly in another of his sterling impersonations of an elderly war-dog who has not forgotten his own youth. Others in the lengthy cast appear to advantage, but not so importantly as those already named.

Mervyn LeRoy's direction is as forceful as it is sympathetic and wholly in the spirit of the Sherwood original. There are moments during some portions of the picture when Mr. LeRoy also is daring. There is almost utter frankness in his treatment of the less savory aspects of life into which both Myra and her chum, Kitty (Miss Field) slip through sheer force of brutal circumstances. The later climactic scenes profit handsomely by this sharpening of dramatic treatment that recent years have seemed to decree must be dulled in their implications.

The new bill at the Palace also includes a short subject called "Hollywood, Style Center of the World," which eventually discards its masquerade costume and becomes an unblushing—and there is no reason why it should blush—"trailer," extolling the superlative qualities of pictures on their way to Loew screens. A "Passing Parade" subject, "The Hidden Master," and the new issue of the "News of the Day" further supplement a major feature that should rank high in every discriminating judgment.

A Situation Much Funnier Than You Think

THE CLIMAX OF A FARCICAL MELODRAMA

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 23.

It's ancient history now, but a year ago I complained bitterly at David Selznick's casting Vivien Leigh for "G. W. T. W." When I saw her performance in that picture, I ate my words. She was superb. I went to town on Laurence Olivier in "Wuthering Heights." He, to me, was the Great Lover. Vivien Leigh was grand in "Waterloo Bridge." But these two people whom the gods have smiled upon, and who were handed America on a silver platter, weren't content with the riches and adulation Hollywood heaped upon them.

HOPPER

They had to show us Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and prove that their first love was not motion pictures, but the theater. It's happened before—it will happen again—that what Hollywood builds up the New York critics tear down.

One wrote: "The production of 'Romeo and Juliet' was not merely weak or spotty, but calamitous. Juliet looked like a poem, but had no sense of poetry. Romeo made a handsome lover, but talked as though he were brushing his teeth. Fear and grief were portrayed by belly writhings and animal howls. And Olivier, in the first balcony scene, rushed around like a dazed fireman trying to save a trapped maiden from the flames."

And I'm just wondering if this will teach our young English hopefuls a much-needed lesson.

Richard Dix's new four-way contract at RKO permits him to act, write, produce or direct, or all four. In his next, "Men Against the Sky," he will act, but it's rumored he may remake "Cimarron."

Paramount is again trying to get Gary, Bing Crosby's oldest son, for a picture, but Bing says he and his horses are enough to support one family.

Evelyn Keyes, who's under contract to de Mille and who had to dye her hair black for one retake on "GWTW," then bleach it back to blonde on the same day for a picture at Paramount, has just been signed by Harry Cohn and her first picture will be "Girlbouille" with Brian Aherne.

When Don Ameche left Clinton, Iowa, last week, where he went for the opening of "Lillian Russell," his kinfolks brought him baked roast chicken, a ham and a couple of cakes in a huge market basket. There was enough left when he got home for his family.

Coburn Takes It, But Props Weaken

Up and down a tall ladder, supposedly climbing into the window of an old ladies' home, went Charles Coburn two dozen times in rehearsals, long shots and close-ups for a comedy scene in "The Captain is a Lady." He kicked away the ladder each time and had to be pulled in.

Director Robert Sinclair apologized to him for putting him through the strenuous ordeal.

"Oh, that's all right—I could do it all day," answered Coburn. "But I can't say as much for your studio wardrobe and props. The crystal of my watch is broken, the watch chain is smashed, half the buttons have been torn from my overalls, which have also sprung a couple of seams—and the ladder is cracked. I'm about the only permanent thing in the scene."

Screen Romance

Teaming of Dorothy Lamour and Robert Preston in Paramount's Technicolor production, "Typhoon," really started something. It began a real-life romance between the two stars, and proved so successful on the screen that now Paramount is planning to reteam them in "Moon Over Burma."

"An Angel From Texas" Needs New Wings to Soar Into Hit

Metropolitan's New Feature Reminiscent Of "Brother Rat" and "Daughter" Series; Capra's Academy Cavalcade Also on Bill

"AN ANGEL FROM TEXAS." Warner Brothers picturization of a screen play by Fred Niblo, jr., and Bertram Millhauser, based on a play by George S. Kaufman, featuring Eddie Albert, Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, with Ruth Terry, John Litel, Hobart Cavanaugh, Ann Shoemaker and Tom Kennedy. Directed by Ray Enright. Reviewed Thursday morning. At the Metropolitan Theater.

Although vaguely attributed to a play by George S. Kaufman, "An Angel From Texas," which opened on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater yesterday, seems to have stuck pretty closely to the Warner Brothers' lot for both its formula and much of its subject matter. It is fashioned from the blueprints of the farcical "Brother Rat" films and, in its story within a story, seems to have been influenced strongly by the "Four Daughters" series.

The yarn is built around the shady adventures of two shoestring theatrical producers, who have a show, but no cash. Mac McClure and Marty Allen are a couple of fast-talking young men, who manage to inveigle Peter Colman, the ostensible "hick" from Texas, into buying $20,000 worth of their plagiarized "property" after he has caught a glimpse of Lydia Weston, their secretary, also from Texas. He buys in upon the stipulation that she be given the leading role.

An "Angel" for An "Angel"

The Messrs. Mac and Marty, however, are under the guns of a mob of gangsters who have selected Valerie Blayne as their star. It all looks pretty black for Peter and Lydia until Marty Allen's resourceful young wife, Marge, perceives the possibilities of a comedy "wow" in a corny play, acted by the world's worst actors, and double-crosses hubby out of $100,000 of gangster money and into a very handsome plagiarism suit.

The whole thing adds up to remarkably little beyond a vagrant opportunity to keep a cast of popular young players busy doing nothing much in the Burbank studios. With Eddie Albert in the title role; Wayne Morris and Ronald Reagan, as the skinflint showmen; Jane Wyman, as the rescuing other "angel," and Rosemary Lane, as Lydia, heading the cast, there is a distinctly "Brother Rattish" flavor to the second-rate business.

Support and Supplementaries

Ruth Terry, the Valerie in the case; John Litel, Hobart Cavanaugh, Tom Kennedy and others of lesser note offer as much as the script will allow in the major supporting roles—which isn't much. The production is such as to suggest that Director Ray Enright found himself in possession of a decidedly skimpy budget.

The supplementary attractions are led by Frank Capra's "Cavalcade of Academy Award Winners, 1928-1939," a nicely integrated bit of nostalgia that brings back flashes of a long list of once-favorite pictures. Ted Husing also comes to bat with a "Television Review," in which he explores the possibilities of the latest form of entertainment in an interesting and informative manner. A "Looney Tune" cartoon comedy, "You Ought to Be in Pictures," and the newsreel complete a bill that won't set you or the theater afire.

Deanna Durbin Has New Hits In 'Parade'

For the first time in her career, Deanna Durbin will star in a picture in which every song was written especially for her.

Heretofore, Deanna's pictures have contained both classical and modern numbers, but it will be otherwise with Universal's "Spring Parade," which Joe Pasternak will place in production soon, under direction of Henry Koster.

In this film Deanna will sing seven numbers, with special lyrics by Gus Kahn, dean of American song writers, and music by Robert Stolz, celebrated European composer. Incidentally Kahn wrote the lyrics for the modern songs of Deanna's first picture, "Three Smart Girls."

Each of the songs of "Spring Parade" is being tailored especially to Deanna's voice and to the action of the picture, promising an entirely new treatment in the way of presentation of the star's musical numbers.

Kahn has been writing successful songs for the past 25 years. Among his hit numbers were "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," "Isle of Golden Dreams," "Carioca," and the lyrics for numerous musical comedy successes, including "Whoopee," and "Naughty Marietta."

Stolz is most widely known in this country for his "Zwei Herzen Im ¾ Takt."

Spring's Novel In Film Form At Columbia

"My Son, My Son" Opens Repeat Run On F Street Today

Painstakingly produced and excellently acted, even if only sketchily adapted from Howard Spring's best-selling novel, "My Son, My Son," Edward Small's picturization of the story of two English fathers and their families returns to the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater this morning.

It is only to those who have read the book that the picture will seem abridged. Insofar as it picks up the important threads of an engrossing fiction, the film is tightly woven and skillfully executed. It omits many important ramifications of Mr. Spring's far-flung plot but still contrives to unfold a moving drama of paternal devotion, filial shortcomings and emotional developments that at times become deeply tragic.

The principal figure in the action is William Essex, reared in the slums of Manchester, who becomes one of England's great novelists and playwrights. The characterers of secondary importance are his son, Oliver, and Livia Vaynol, the beautiful young artist with whom both father and son fall in love.

Through his father's indulgence and anxiety that his son may escape all of the privations to which he himself had been subjected, in his youth, Oliver turns out to be a thoroughgoing cad, liar, cheat and all-around trouble maker. Only because of the screen's curtailment of the original work do Dermott O'Riorden, his son, Rory, and the other members of both families become of virtually minor importance.

The three pivotal roles are effectively played by Brian Aherne, Louis Hayward and Madeleine Carroll, with Henry Hull, Laraine Day, Josephine Hutchinson, as Mrs. Essex; Bruce Lester, Rory and Lionel Belmore contributing suostantial supporting performances. The story ends in the period of the first World War in a manner that will seem grossly distorted to those familiar with "My Son, My Son," as Mr. Spring wrote it. N. B. B.

Preston Tops Season's Rich Theater Crop

In this year of grace 1940, A. V.—after vaudeville—the little theater has emerged as the number one proving ground for screen material, a check reveals. Not even radio has been sending so many promising actors and actresses to Hollywood lately—and Broadway has been sending fewer every year.

Top of the list is Robert Preston, Pasadena Community Playhouse graduate, who is currently teamed with Dorothy Lamour in Paramount's "Typhoon," and is co-starred in Cecil B. De Mille's "Northwest Mounted Police."

Many Graduates

Norma Nelson, 10, also a member of the "Typhoon" cast, came from the same place. Among other film folk produced by the Pasadena Playhouse are Douglass Montgomery, Robert Young, Randolph Scott, Wayne Morris, Lloyd Nolan, Victor Jory, Jean Parker and Samuel S. Hinds.

Laraine Day, who made her screen debut as Wallace Beery's leading woman in "Sergeant Madden," was brought from a Long Beach, Calif., little theater.

Betty Field, whom you'll see on the screen in "Victory," and Patricia Morison, the feminine lead of "Untamed," with Akim Tamiroff and Ray Milland, served their apprenticeships in little theaters, too.

Includes Big Stars

Henry Fonda came from the Community Playhouse in Omaha. Gloria Stewart wrote, directed and acted in little theater productions in Carmel, Calif.

Ann Harding came from the Hedgerow Theater, a group organization in one of the suburbs of Philadelphia. Bette Davis was both usherette and actress in a little theater on Cape Cod, Mass. Fredric March, soon to star in "Victory," started with an amateur repertory company in Racine, Wis., and Franchot Tone, who will have the male lead in "Virginia, was one of the charter members of the Group Theater in New York City.

'Fairfax Review of 1940' To Be Presented Tonight

Mrs. Paul E. Brown, chairman of the dramatic committee of the Fairfax elementary school P.-T. A., last night announced plans are ready for the benefit performance of "A Fairfax Revue for 1940," which will be presented tonight at 8 p. m. in the elementary school auditorium.

Other members of the committee are Miss Bessie Watts, Miss Katherine Funk, Mrs. Thomas P. Chapman, jr., Mrs. Ethel Rose Fox, Mrs. John Monroe, Mrs. David Williams, Mrs. Phillips Williams and Mrs. John Stickley.

The program includes a Tom Thumb wedding, a fashion show and a play to be presented by the Falls Church Road Players.

Proceeds from the performance will be used to purchase school equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Haglund, joint chairman of the dance committee of the Falls Church Community Theater, have announced that members of the group and their guests will impersonate famous and infamous persons of history and fiction at their costume dance to be held tomorrow night, 9 to 12 p. m., in the auditorium of the Madison School.

Lieut. Comdr. E. C. Forsyth and Lieut. Comdr. C. O. Glisson will be joint masters of ceremonies.

There will be a grand march at 10:30 p. m., after which prizes will be awarded for the loveliest, most original and funniest costumes, with Mrs. Robert Lamont, Mrs. Emily Gillette and Mrs. H. P. Sheldon as the judges.

'Miss Mollie,' Oldest Postmaster in U. S., To Retire June 30

"Miss Mollie" Stewart, oldest postmaster in the Nation in point of service, will relinquish her position in Oxford, Md., June 30.

Selection of the date for her to turn over to a successor duties she first assumed in 1877 was announced yesterday by the Postoffice Department.

Only a few weeks ago she successfully passed a Civil Service examination—they didn't have such examinations when she became custodian of the mails in Oxford.

With a passing grade her name went to the Senate and her new appointment was confirmed so that she might be eligible for retirement under civil service regulations.

In addition to seven children, Mrs. Ella St. Clair and Mrs. Eva Bingaman, Hagerstown; Clarence A and Chester, Harry and Luther Mummert, all of Greencastle, there are 45 grandchildren and 54 great grandchildren surviving.

Tome Institute To Hold Founders' Day Exercises

Port Deposit, Md., May 23 (AP).—Founder's Day exercises will be held tomorrow at the town schools of the Jacob Tome Institute, with students, alumni and friends taking part.

This will be the fifty-first anniversary of the educational venture founded on the banks of the Susquehanna by Jacob Tome, who rose from pauper to philanthropist.

A marker commemorating the founding of the school in 1889 will be unveiled by Miss Jean Tome, great grandniece of the founder, as a feature of the program.

The unveiling will follow remarks by William K. Cumming, supervisor of the school.

Other highlights of the program will be the reading of Miss Alice Miller's story of Port Deposit by Ralph Hostetter, president of the senior class, and the reading of a condensed history of Jacob Tome by Miss Jeanne Richards. The history of Tome was written by Miss June Guiberson, a senior.

Beetle Drive Starts

Hagerstown, May 23.—Work of disseminating the milky white disease of the Japanese beetle grubs in Hagerstown was started this week. Plans call for the treating of 20 square miles of infested territory in and around this city.

Cadets to Compete

The Washington-Lee High School Cadets leave tomorrow morning for Front Royal where they will participate in a competitive drill with cadets of Randolph-Macon Academy at 10:30 a. m.

Md. Maple Sugar Output Slumps

College Park, Md., May 23 (AP).—Maple sugar production in Maryland this spring was only 9,000 pounds, less than one-half of the 1930-1938 average, the State crop reporting service announced today.

The report said that 57,000 maple sugar trees were tapped, compared with 58,000 in 1939 and for the 10-year average. Average sugar production for the 10-year period is 20,000 pounds.

The season began fully a month later than in 1939 and from three to four weeks later than usual.

Business Girl-Student Finds Time for Suppers

Gadget-Conscious Hostess Prepares Guest Meals With Greatest of Ease, But With No Evidence of Carelessness

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

SURPRISES in kitchen-lore came my way this past week-end. I was a guest of a girl who goes to business during the day and to school in the evenings. Miss Mary Frances King, my hostess, with her busy life still has time to entertain guests for Sunday night suppers. I was impressed by the air of casualness with which she went about preparing for guests yet with no evidence of carelessness.

Martha Ellyn

She seems to be very gadget conscious in her kitchen equipment, and said that she found them a great help in preparing meals.

One of the biggest surprises was to find one of her guests was the inventor of one of the gadgets she used in preparing her guest meal. Observing that she was making an opening in a can with something resembling a flying squirrel ready to take a bite from the tin, I inquired about the gadget. To my surprise she told me that one of the expected guests was the inventor of this utensil, called the Seven-In-One.

One-piece Tool Chest

If ever a gadget was appropriately named this one has been, for it is a one-piece tool chest. The following are the merits, I learned from the inventor, on which the handy gadget was awarded a patent: Opens cans in a superior fashion; unscrews a bottle cap from containers ranging from the cap of a bottle of ketchup to a gallon can of oil; makes a pouring lip on can with one twist; cuts through labels, paper, bottle cap seals and similar materials with the greatest of ease; pries up pressed down can lids; opens capped bottles; acts as a screw driver and hammer.

The inventor is John B. Smiley, former president of Remington Arms. He conceived the idea while watching a man tugging to uncap a gallon can of oil. He started planning a tool to eliminate such an annoyance. He intended to have it made up only to give to his friends, but the demand became so great that he decided to make it available for the public.

This is an item that not only cooks, but anyone with small chores to perform will delight to own. Hikers, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, cottages, picknickers as well as housewives will find this gadget a great help. The price is only 25 cents.

One of Many Gadgets

Miss King demonstrated its capabilities during the preparation of her supper by punching pouring holes in cans of pineapple, unscrewing olive caps and pickle tops and loosening the foil wrapper on some bottles. She is definitely in the gadgeteer class as she made uncooked applesauce by using a gadget grater to shave apples to a fineness. Cabbage and carrots were prepared with the shredded and grater sides of a stainless steel grater. A bottle-stopper gadget was placed on a bottle whose contents were not all needed. Juice was extracted from oranges and lemons by a small glass-like gadget by inserting the extractor in the stem end of the fruit and pressing firmly with fingers and palm of the hand.

But all the time was not spent gadgeteering for Mary Frances had a most appealing Sunday night supper. Following is her menu.

Supper Menu

Gadget-made Salad
Ripe Olives Sweet Pickles
Make-Your-OwnSandwiches
Potato Chips Oven-baked Beans
Pecan Torte Coffee
Punch

Make-Your-Own-Sandwiches—A platter of sliced sugar-cured ham that was taken from a brilliant red can opened by the seven-in-one gadget. A plate of Julienne carrot sticks, prepared by the scraping gadget. Tiny green onions, burr pickles and tomato slices surrounded the carrot sticks.

Pecan Torte—Combine 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs, ⅔ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 cup pecans chopped fine. Add 4 well-beaten egg yolks and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Fold in 4 whipped egg whites. Transfer to 2 well-buttered layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until firm, about 25 minutes. Spread whipped cream between layers. Top with powdered sugar. Serves 6 to 8.

Kitchen Fashions of 1940

Miss Mary Frances King, in the picture above, is making a hole in a can with the Seven-in-One gadget invented by a friend of hers. Miss King finds that with the aid of the latest kitchen helpers that she can prepare guest meals with ease as these tools save her both time and labor

Refrigerator Treats for Hot Days

Mrs. Mildred Waltman Wins First Prize With Banana Dessert

MRS. WALTMAN

By The Post Food Editor.

ONE OF THE joys of the automatic refrigerator is the ease with which mixtures can be prepared. For the special treat when you entertain, or for the family dessert, you will find the winning recipes of The Post recipe contestants very helpful. Here are the winning recipes.

Banana Dessert

First Prize, $3.

Mrs. Mildred C. Waltman,
17 East Mason avenue
Alexandria, Va.

Recipe: Roll ½ pound vanilla wafers. Cream ½ cup butter and 1 cup powdered sugar. Add 4 beaten egg yolks, 1 cup chopped nut meats and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Beat well, then add 4 beaten egg whites. Place in a buttered pan or mold with the layers as follows: Crumbs, custard, as many thinly sliced bananas as desired to cover custard, remaining crumbs. Place in refrigerator and chill, preferably overnight. Serve topped with whipped cream. Serves 8.

MRS. ORANGE

Honeyball Mallobet

Second Prize, $2.

Mrs. Jay Lawlor,
1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest

Recipe: Add 27 marshmallows to ½ cup hot water and heat over boiling water until melted; add 2 cups honeyball melon pulp, forced through a fine sieve, 3 tablespoons lemon juice and 3 drops oil of cinnamon, and chill. Beat 2 tablespoons powdered sugar into 3 stiffly beaten egg whites and fold into marshmallow-melon mixture. Turn into freezing tray of refrigerator with temperature control set at coldest point. Freeze 2 to 4 hours, or until frozen, stirring twice. Serves 6.

Frozen Lemon Pie

$1 Prize.

Mrs. Sara Lee Orange,
2025 E street northwest

Recipe: Beat 3 egg yolks well in top part of double boiler; add all but 1 tablespoon of ½ cup sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, and long strips of lemon rind from which the white has been removed. Cook over rapidly boiling water for 10 minutes, or until thick, stirring constantly. Chill, remove rind; beat 1 egg white until stiff but not dry; add 1 tablespoon sugar, beat until white holds peak. Fold into custard, and fold in 1 cup cream whipped until it holds a point. Butter tray of refrigerator. Coat thoroughly with ¼ cup crushed vanilla wafer crumbs; pour lemon mixture into tray and sprinkle with ¼ cup vanilla wafer crumbs. Place in freezing unit, set control to coldest point and freeze until mixture is firm. When frozen set control at temperature slightly colder than ordinarily maintained. To serve, cut across tray diagonally to make pie-shaped pieces; top with whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

MRS. LAWLOR

Chocolate Refrigerator Cake

$1 Prize.

Miss Frances Kenneth,
1724 S street southeast

Recipe: Put 1 square unsweetened chocolate, ⅓ cup water and ¼ cup sugar into top of double boiler and stir until smooth. When smooth add 2 well-beaten egg yolks and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Cool. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream ½ cup butter with ½ cup sugar and add to chocolate mixture. Blend well, then fold in 2 egg whites beaten stiff. Line loaf pan with wax paper and fill alternately with layers of sponge cake or lady fingers and the chocolate mixture. Put into refrigerator and chill 5 hours, or over night. Serve sliced with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Mrs. Wimplegate Waddle has just left for a two-week stay at the Eldertown Sanitarium to recover the use of her feet and her voice. Mrs. Waddle established a record this spring by attending six garden and four old house tours.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Toddy will hold a series of house parties beginning this week-end at their country home, Far From the Madding Crowd. A swing band and a crew of night club entertainers, magicians and fortune tellers will be brought down from New York for the Toddy barn dance tomorrow night.

Rustic Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Whiffington 3d, who were married last week, have reached Aiken, S. C., on the first lap of their rustic honeymoon. The newlyweds are roughing it in a de luxe trailer which was a wedding present from the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Luker. Mr. Whiffington's valet and Mrs. Whiffington's maid are trailing the trailer in a smaller car.

Reducer Should Plan Menu for Day, Says Dietician

IN SPITE of a forthright assertion that "there is only one thing in regard to food that I won't talk about at meals, and that's dieting, which I believe should be done in private and not in public," the new cookbook by Edith Barber, famous the Nation over as a food columnist and a good cook, is full of suggestions which can be turned to the reducer's advantage.

A modern cookbook such as this goes straight to the fundamentals of nutrition. Miss Barber emphasizes that menus should be planned for the day rather than the meal to assure the individual of a balanced diet. Protein foods in some form must be included daily. These proteins are the milk, eggs, meat and fish which furnish the building materials. Children require plenty of protein to build new tissue as the framework of the body is developed. Adults must have a certian amount of this material to restore that which is consumed daily in the body's wear and tear.

Vitamins Essential

Minerals and vitamins are essential, not only for growth and development, but also far the prevention of malnutrition and the onset of certain infections. These are supplied in milk, eggs, fruits, vegetables and whole grains. The daily use of these foods will supply the necessary amounts of the protective elements—with the exception of Vitamin D, essential for children. Irradiated milk, concentrates or fish liver oil may be used as supplements when needed.

As you can see, the modern cookbook constitutes a rapid course in nutrition. But to balance the menu perfectly, calories must be taken into consideration. It is up to you to figure out how many of these energy units you can use daily, and to limit or increase the number so that your weight is normal.

Vegetables are one of the main items in the reducer's menus, and Miss Barber admits that she may be somewhat of a fanatic on the subject of vegetable cookery. It makes her angry, she says, to have good vegetables spoiled in the cooking.

One of her first rules is not to add soda—in spite of 1,900 years' tradition! Adding soda to vegetables was an old Roman culinary custom back in the first or second century. But we have learned that its addition destroys valuable vitamins. In cooking vegetables, use as little water as practicable, have the water boiling when the vegetables are started, and stop cooking as soon as the vegetables are tender. Don't overcook, and don't throw away the vegetable water! Another good method suggested by Miss Barber is to salt the vegetables, wrap them in parchment bags, and cook in a large quantity of water until tender, thus preserving all the important elements.

Edith Barber Gives Cooking Hints in Book

To Delete Calories

Since more calories can be deleted by broiling, rather than frying foods, and since broiling is particularly applicable to meats, the reducer will be interested in the suggestions as to the meat course. Beef cuts most delicious when broiled are porterhouse, sirloin, top round and minute cube steaks. The minute steaks came from the top round and are thin, delicious, low in calories. The cube steaks are thin slices of the round which have been cubed almost through. Cuts of lamb best for broiling are the loin, ribs and shoulders, cut into chops. Broiled meats are lowest in calories, and therefore important on the reducer's menus.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride Says It's 'Just Silly' for 15-Year-Old Girl To Argue That 11 P. M. Curfew Alienates Friends

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have just read your column of May 22, concerning the 15-year-old girl who bemoans the fact that she has to be home by 11 p. m. after "ordinary dates" on week-end nights. I notice you receive such complaints rather regularly from teen-age girls, and I would like to state my opinions.

I cannot imagine a more reasonable "curfew" than 11 p. m. for a 15-year-old girl. I am not many years older myself, although I am happily married now. When I was a freshman in college, my nightly deadline was 11 o'clock, unless, of course, there was a dance or big party on, and then I was allowed to use my own discretion.

As for an 11 p. m. curfew alienating friends—that's just silly. If a boy really likes, admires and respects a girl, he also respects her parents' wishes regarding the "checking-in" hour—especially if he wants another date! My parents never told me, in front of a boy, when to come home. But Dad sometimes asked when we expected to return; or told us to be in at a reasonable hour. And no decent boy objects to bringing a girl home at the hour set by her parents.

I lived in the Maryland suburbs before I was married, and this meant an eight or ten miles' drive into downtown Washington. But I never found it difficult to go all the way downtown to a movie, stop off for a "late snack" on the way home and still get in by 11 p. m. Also, I think it is good social sense to start home while the gaiety is at its height, instead of waiting for the ebb tide to set in before calling it a day.

I'm sure that "Unhappy" can't be more than a junior in high school, and if that is true she is fortunate in having the liberal curfew of 11 p. m. No one will think less of her because she has to be home at a reasonable hour. I observed "time restrictions" on my dates almost up to the time I was married, and while this irked me sometimes, I knew it was all for the best. And it never cramped my popularity in the least. Sincerely,

July Bride-to-Be Baffled by Formalities

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am to be married in June, at a church wedding. I am uncertain on several points of procedure and would appreciate some advice. 1. Does the maid of honor walk beside the bride when entering the church? 2. Do the maid of honor and best man stand during the ceremony, or do they find seats after giving the bride away?

3. Does the bride give her maid of honor a gift? 4. Is the maid of honor supposed to provide her own flowers? 5. After the ceremony, do the newlyweds wait to greet the reception, or does the maid of honor take care of this?

SUZANNE.

The Usual Procedure At Church Weddings

DEAR SUZANNE: The bride is "given away" by her father, or, if he cannot be present, by some other representative of her family—usually a man (perhaps a brother, uncle or cousin). However, I saw one beautiful wedding where the bride's mother stepped forward from a front pew to make response when the ceremonial question, "Who gives this woman, etc.?" was intoned by the minister.

At a church wedding, the bridegroom and best man do not take part in the processional. They emerge from the vestry to wait, at the head of the aisle, for the bride's coming up the aisle. Their appearance at one end of the aisle is cued to the bridal party's appearance at the other end. If the bride has only one attendant—a maid of honor—the attendant walks up the aisle about five paces ahead of the bride. She does not "give away" the bride.

Customarily, the bride gives her maid of honor a modest gift of jewelry as a souvenir "thank you" for her helpfulness. Also, she provides the flowers carried by the maid of honor; while the bridegroom gives the bride her bouquet. After the ceremony, the newly married couple lead the way down the aisle, arm in arm; followed by best man and bride's attendant walking abreast. Usually there is a happy, informal hubbub in the foyer, with guests thronging out to felicitate the newlyweds.

When a wedding is to be followed by a reception, invitations to the reception are issued with the wedding invitations. They are extended by the bride's parents; or by the bride herself, if she is of necessity managing her own wedding. This is not a chore for the maid of honor—since she is really only a very special wedding guest. However, if the newlyweds wish to tarry on the threshold of the church and issue a follow-up "come-one, come-all" word-of-mouth invitation to everybody in sight, they may do so. But they shouldn't wait until that zero hour to let the congregation know a reception has been planned. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Weave Jackets For Glasses

A HIT when you serve cool drinks this summer—in gay Bahama glass jackets of orange and yellow crepe paper "raffia." And what furniture savers!

You can quickly weave the jackets over a form cut from cardboard. The raffia is made by cutting crepe paper across the grain into long strips ¾-inch wide, which you stretch and twist.

To make your cardboard form, cut a circle the size of the bottom of your glass and then cut a piece 3 inches in width to fit exactly around the glass' lower part. Join pieces with gummed tape, and around the top of your form cut 15 evenly spaced notches.

In weaving a set of jackets make some of orange, using yellow strips for stripes; make others of yellow with orange stripes.

You can as easily weave other pretty things—place mats on a homemade frame loom, a vanity bag on a breadboard! Our 40-page booklet, "Beautiful and Useful Articles You Can Easily Weave," has complete diagrammed directions for weaving these and many other items—including doilies, rugs, scarves, purses.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Beautiful and Useful Articles You Can Easily Weave," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The Federal Diary

House Kills Fund for U. S. Radio Division

Use of Relief Money For Film, Theater Work Also Prohibited

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

An overwhelming voice vote on the House floor yesterday spelled the end of the radio division in the Office of Education.

The vote came late in the day on an amendment offered by Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, to strike out a section of the Relief Appropriation Act barring use of any of its funds for radio, film and theater work.

The House shouted down the amendment without debate. Education officials saw little hope that the action would be reversed in conference.

The radio project was written off the same week that a ruling of the Federal Communications Commission opened the way for what officials saw as a boom for education through radio.

Five Channels Assigned

The FCC set aside five broadcast channels for noncommercial educational stations to use a new nonstatic "frequency modulation" type of broadcasting.

These new radio channels, officials said, would permit building up to 3,000 local stations for education work, compared with the 1,200 now operating. In this program, education officials had expected the radio division to continue its work of aiding radio projects in schools, colleges and other educational institutions.

During the past four years the radio division has cooperated with nearly a score of schools and colleges in radio research and demonstration. It has furnished a script exchange for the 1,200 local radio groups. Loans of its scripts have totaled about 250,000.

In addition the project has produced some 700 programs on education, safety, science, literature, democracy, history, Americanism and other topics. New programs under study for the next year included one series to show the contributions of various sections of the United States to national development, and another to encourage children's reading.

Sought FSA Funds

The division had sought an appropriation in the Federal Security bill to organize its work on a permanent basis. The item was left out after Congressmen objected that the agency had never been authorized.

Their bid for $250,000 in the relief bill would have continued their appropriation at the same rate as in the current year. Normal staff of the division has been about 200 persons. About 175 persons now employed are from the WPA rolls.

Shhh—the Census Bureau is opening its records to the public and there's nothing to get disturbed about. Several old census volumes, showing where the names of famous Americans popped into the records, are on display in a fourth-floor office of the Commerce Department.

Reason they can be shown in public, officials said, is that before 1870 the census returns were not made confidential by law. The exhibit is part of a "see for yourself" program to show activities of white collar WPA projects.

Carl R. Arnold, production credit commissioner in the Farm Credit Administration, won a $500 pay boost by a ruling of Acting Comptroller General Richard N. Elliott, it was learned yesterday.

Arnold took over his $10,000 job March 26. The question was raised whether he could be upped from his old $9,500 pay as deputy commissioner under the terms of the Reorganization Act, forbidding pay increase for any personnel during the fiscal year their agency came in for transfer.

Elliott ruled in effect, that despite FCA's transfer to Agriculture, Arnold's appointment by the President and confirmation by the Senate justified the pay raise.

James B. Burns, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, yesterday urged that Congress cut out the proviso in the House military appropriation bill which would permit the Secretary of War to hire new civilian defense employes without regard to civil service rules.

"Such a proviso is unnecessary," said Burns, "and will tend to break down the civil service and the standards set for employment in military establishments."

His statement followed similar protests from Samuel H. Ordway, jr., former civil service commissioner, and H. Eliot Kaplan, of the National Civil Service Reform League. They pointed out that the President already had authority to lift the civil service rules in emergency.

CALENDAR: Arthur S. Fleming, civil service commissioner, and Walter Dietz, personnel chief for the American Management Association, will speak at a dinner of the Society for Personnel Administration, at 7 p. m. today in the Raleigh. The meeting will start a two-day institute with round-table discussions, and election of officers scheduled tomorrow. . . . Compulsory military training for all male Americans over 18 will be debated by Census employes tonight at 8 p. m., Room 7856 of the Commerce Department. The debaters are George F. Wallenhorst, Norma Erskine, Earl T. Wemple and Arnold C. Levey. . . . Railroad Retirement local of the UFWA will hold its third annual spring dance at 9 p. m. tomorrow in the Potomac Boat Club.

Son Finds Mother Hanging in Room

Suspended by a necktie around her neck, Mrs. Anna Nora Wathen, 46, of 1331 S street southeast, was found hanging from a transom on the second floor of her home yesterday by her son, George B. Wathen, jr.

Responding to a call from the son, Policemen N. T. Imlay and C. R. Ripperger, Eleventh Precinct, cut the woman down and administered artificial respiration until a doctor arrived from Casualty Hospital. The physician pronounced her dead.

Police were told that Mrs. Wathen had been in ill health for several years.

Dinner Parties Bring Society Out in Droves

Horinouchis Entertain at Embassy; Scottens and Thoms Among Hosts; Party on Yacht Honors Miss Flowerree

By Hope Ridings Miller.

DINNER AND LUNCHEON parties had social Washington out in droves yesterday and last night as a record number of fetes went on the calendar. The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Horinouchi entertained at one in a series of dinners they are giving this season. The United States Minister to the Dominican Republic and Mrs. Robert Scotten were hosts to a similar party at the 1925 F Street Club; while Miss Ellen Hewes Flowerree, debutante niece of Clarence Hewes, was honored at a small dinner given by Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim aboard their yacht Firenze.

Hope Ridings Miller

An outstanding party on last night's calendar was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom entertained in honor of Mrs. Wilson Lee and Clarence Aspinwall, who will be married tomorrow afternoon at the Blair Lee home in Silver Spring. Mr. Thom will be best man at the wedding.

Guests included Senator and Mrs. Warren Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Huidekoper, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Baldwin, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Aspinwall, who are here from their home in Woodside, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bullard, of South Dartmouth, Mass.; Mrs. Paul Iglehart and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Iglehart, of Baltimore; Miss Betty Lee and E. Brooke Lee, jr., son and daughter of Mrs. Wilson Lee.

Mr. Aspinwall and Mrs. Lee will be feted at a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Brooke this evening, and tomorrow they will be luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cazenove Lee.

THE DINNER at the Japanese Embassy was a highlight of the final round of entertaining before the Ambassador and Mme. Horinouchi take a place in the country for the summer. As yet their plans are nebulous; but chances are, by the time mid-june rolls around they will have leased a place at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa. Mme. Horinouchi told me the other day that she and her husband would have to take a house close enough to the Capital so that he could return to his desk regularly during vacation time. Before they leave the Embassy, however, the Ambassador and his wife will entertain at another dinner on May 28.

Having been entertained right and left this season, the Robert Scottens turned the tables last evening to give a rather large dinner at the 1925 F Street Club. Among their guests were a number of persons who have feted them in recent weeks. Just when they will depart for Trujillo City, the Minister and Mrs. Scotten do not yet know; but chances are, they won't be going down for some time. Meanwhile, they have an apartment at the Anchorage.

LUCKY INDEED were members of the younger set who attended the party for Miss Flowerree. A yacht fete is something special any time, and when the Guggenheims are hosts, the occasion is bound to be a red-letter one.

Guests included Miss Isabelle Meuser, Miss Marjorie Meuser, Miss Josephine Boyle, Miss Billie Byrd West, Miss Marilynn Himes, Horton Schoellkopf, John Macy, Frank Holcomb, Lyle Kennedy, Winthrop Crane and Sam Biddle.

According to present plans, the Guggenheims will keep their yacht at Hains Point until June 22 when they will set sail for Sands Point, Long Island. They plan to be in Philadelphia for the Republican convention and will return to Long Island from there.

Meanwhile, parties for Miss Flowerree are still piling up. Latest to plan a fete for the popular debutante is Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes, who will entertain at a breakfast on June 2 in her Alexandria home.

Several luncheons accented the calendar yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club. Miss Martha Douglas, sister of Justice William O. Douglas, who is visiting here briefly, was guest of honor at a small party given by Mrs. Bruce Smith. In the company were Mrs. Hugo Black, Mrs. James Slattery and Mrs. Barnet Nover.

Mrs. F. Ryan Duffy, wife of Senator Duffy, of Wisconsin, was ranking guest at a luncheon given by Mrs. Walter Distler. Others in the small group were Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mrs. John Crosby and Mrs. Emil Hurja.

MRS. LEE MORGAN

before her wedding last night in the Pinckney Memorial Espiscopal Church was Miss Katharine Hardy, daughter of Russell Hardy, of Washington, and Mrs. Katharine C. Hardy, of Hyattsville, Md.

Miss Hardy, Lee Morgan Are Married

Nuptial Solemnized At Pinckney Church In Hyattsville

In a setting of palms and white flowers, Miss Katherine Hardy, daughter of Mrs. Katherine C. Hardy, of University Park, Md., and Russell Hardy, of the Westchester Apartments here, was married at 8 o'clock last evening to Lee Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Morgan, of this city.

The ceremony took place at Pinckney Memorial Episcopal Church in Hyattsville, the Rev. Arthur L. Ribble officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a cream colored faille gown made with short puffed sleeves, and a brief, four-tiered veil which fell from a cluster of gardenias. Her flowers were violet and gardenias.

Miss Carol Hardy, maid of honor for her sister, was attired in yellow marquisette and lace with a matching hat of flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of spring blossoms.

The bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Morgan, sister of Mr. Morgan, and Miss Marcia Guest. With their gowns of chartreuse marquisette and lace they wore matching flower hats and carried arm bouquets like that of the maid of honor.

Henry Magruder, of Washington, was best man, and the ushers were Russell Hardy, jr., of University Park; Frank Guest and Richard Kitterman, of Washington, and Craig Stephens, of Bethesda.

A reception at the home of Mrs. Hardy followed the ceremony. After a honeymoon the couple will live at 526 Edgehill Lane, Indian Spring Village, Md.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Morgan attended the University of Maryland.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

MICHAEL HUXLEY, press representative of the British Embassy, calls "sheer defeatism" the rumor that Queen Mary and various other members of the royal family will be moved to Canada.

Incidentally—it's said that the British Ambassador has advised members of his staff to be as restrained as possible about their feelings on the war when they talk with Americans.

ALSO THE LEGATION of Thailand has received no information on reports that its boy king, 14-year-old Amanda Mahildel, may come to this country to continue his studies. The staff says that current newspaper dispatches "are our only information on the subject." The young king is currently at school in Switzerland, but it is believed that he will leave soon for France and then either come to the United States or return to his homeland.

NOTHING SEEMS IMMUNE these days from "the woman's touch," even the accounts of this horrible war in Europe. In a recent broadcast from Paris, Mary Marvin Breckinridge describes a refugee fleeing in a "smart tailored suit and a sporty yellow car."

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman's account of her flight from Moscow told of meeting in a ditch the wife of the Belgium Ambassador, chic in a magnificent "otter coat." Maybe a week from now we'll hear of soignee Englishwomen captured wearing one of the smart new "fin de civilisation" numbers by French couturiers.

MRS. THOMAS F. MCALLISTER, the very pretty director of women's activities in the Democratic National Committee, hopes that more and more women will hold public office. But she owes her debut in politics to a man—her husband, for whom she rang doorbells when he was running for the Senate.

WE HEAR THAT Doris Duke Cromwell is looking over scripts with a view to producing one or becoming a "silent angel."

MME. DOMVILLE has returned to her home in Montreal after a visit with Mrs. Demarest Lloyd. Her former husband, Luciano Mascia, was attached to the Italian Embassy here at one time and is now counsellor in Moscow. They were among the most popular members of the Diplomatic Corps when they lived in Washington.

Many at Party At Ickes Home

Headwaters Farm, home of the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, near Olney, Md., was the scene of a large "at home" yesterday when they entertained for officials of the Department of the Interior.

The party was an informal one and many of the guests came from work.

Assisting the young and attractive hostess at the tea table were Mrs. Elvin Wirtz, wife of the Undersecretary of the Interior; Mrs. E. K. Burlew, wife of the First Assistant Secretary; Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Second Assistant Secretary. Mrs. John Herrrick and Miss Elizabeth Morison.

To Give Travelogue

A travelogue of Labrador and Norway, with motion pictures in color, will be presented by Mrs. William T. Gill tomorrow afternoon at a meeting of the Art and Archaeology League, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George C. Duncan, 2900 Seventh street, at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. H. L. Browne Is House Guest Of Secretary and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, has as her house guest here her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry L. Browne from Indianola, Iowa. Mrs. Browne, who arrived in Washington the first of the week will remain here about 10 days. She will then go to New York to attend the graduation of her daughter, Harriet from Pratt Institute on June 11.

Mrs. Wallace and her daughter, Jean, who will arrive in Washington from Connecticut College on June 4, will leave on June 7 to drive to Des Moines, Iowa. On June 10 they will go to Ames, Iowa, to attend the graduation of the Wallace's son Robert Browne Wallace from the University of Iowa. They will spend the month of July in Des Moines.

Miss Mainhall Becomes Bride

Decked with pink gladioli, the Church of Our Lady of Sorrows, in Takoma Park, Md., was the scene of the marriage of Miss Nelsie A. Mainhall and Bernard Hannon yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mainhall, of Quincy, Mass. Mr. Hannon is the son of Mrs. Katherine Hannon and the late James Hannon, of this city.

The Rev. Michael J. Hyle officiated at the ceremony and was assisted by the Rev. Joseph Moran and the Rev. Richard Barron. The bride wore a light blue silk ensemble with a matching hat. Her corsage was of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Florence Bee served as matron of honor for the bride. She wore a white frock with rose accessories, and her flowers were pink sweet peas. James Hamill was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the bridegroom's mother for the bridal party and family. Mrs. Hannon received, wearing a blue chiffon gown and a corsage of Talisman roses.

When the couple returns from their wedding trip to New England they will make their home at the Hampshire Apartments in this city.

Mrs. R. H. Jackson To See Children On Northern Trip

Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Attorney General, leaves Washington today for New Haven, where she will visit their son, William Eldred Jackson, at Yale University.

Mrs. Jackson will go to Northampton, Mass., to visit their daughter, Mary, at Smith College, and to see Mary ride in a hore show in the afternoon. Miss Jackson was one of the 12 selected from the college for the ride. Mrs. Jackson will return to Washington early next week.

Friends of Music Meet Tomorrow

The Friends of Music in the Library of Congress will hold an annual meeting in the Whittall Pavilion at the Library of Congress tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. After the business meeting and a short intermission for tea there will be a program of seventeenth and eighteenth century songs and pieces for the harpsichord given by Ada MacLeish, soprano, and Ralph Kirkpatrick.

Hostesses for the tea are Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Edward B. Burling, Mrs. Charles B. Henderson, Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, and Mrs. Adolph C. Miller. Members of the society and a few invited guests will attend.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

A RECENT visitor to Washington is Mrs. Frederick Owsley, who left yesterday to return to her country place, Tiverton, at Greenwood, near Charlottesville, Va. Mrs. Owsley came to town to meet Mrs. Lawrence Morgan, of Boston, who has been visiting in Washington and Middleburg, and take her back to Tiverton. Mrs. Morgan's daughter, Mrs. Alfred Hallowell, will come down from Boston to join her mother at Tiverton for Decoration Day. Mrs. Hallowell was one of the bridesmaids who helped set the high standard of loveliness at Ethel Dupont's wedding to Franklin Roosevelt, jr.

The chatelaine of Tiverton, Mrs. Owsley is handsome and dark, and is a Rumanian by birth. Though she has lived here for many years and is American at heart, she still speaks with an accent. Since her husband's death she has kept up Tiverton's traditional hospitality alone, and the other day she told an amusing incident of the garden tour for which she opened her home recently.

VISITORS ON THE TOUR were being shown through the house. They admired the period rooms and antique furniture extravagantly when suddenly they emerged into a very modern bar. This they disapproved heartily and audibly and one of them said, "Something certainly must have come into her life when she did this bar." Mrs. Owsley's amused comment when this remark was repeated to her was, "I suppose it must have been a bartender who came into my life."

AT THE WEDNESDAY supper dance Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell, one of the organizers of the party, was being birthday serenaded by the orchestra when a certain journalist, straight from his office, hot and tired, and in working clothes, crept in the door on his way to an obscure seat in the garden. Bill MacCracken, whether by design or mistake, grabbed him, slapped him on the back and began congratulating him. Whereupon three girls rushed up and kissed him and more men joined in the hand-shaking, leaving Lilie O'Donnell and the orchestra looking on in good-natured astonishment.

THE BRINKLEY SMITHERS came from Baltimore for the dance and "Ditty" was full of enthusiasm for the Worthington Valley house and garden tour of May 24, which will wind up with tea at her house. The tour is being given to raise money to buy the Hammond Harwood House at Annapolis and preserve it for Maryland. If this isn't done, it is said, Henry Ford will buy the house and take it brick by brick out to Michigan. Annapolis would be less beautiful without its old brick house with the octagon wings. Among the curious and charming names of houses on the tour are "Cold Saturday" and "Mary's Meadows."

YOUTH AND BEAUTY held the floor at the supper dance, among the prettiest persons there being Anne Keiss, brown-haired Marie vom Rath, Josephine Boyle, and Lady Pascoe-Rutter. Others adding to the gaiety of the evening were Sylvia Szechenyi, Stellita Stapleton, Bambi McKenna, Anne Perin, Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, Ellen Floweree, Diana Rowland, and Lady Maureen Noel.

OTHERS THERE included Maj. and Mrs. Horace Smith, she wearing a plaited gown of white crepe and a fine black lace scarf; Mrs. Mondell Gregg, who had entertained at cocktails before the dance, Mrs. Nini Woodward, Mrs. Francis Whitten, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Noyes Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mr. and Mrs. Chase Donaldson, Prince and Princess Hohenlohe, Senhor and Senhora Gouthier, Mr. and Mrs. Gale McLean, Mrs. Anthony Coleby, Mr. and Mrs. Selden Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Williamson and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Page.

AMONG THE EXTRA men were Ralph Hill, Col. Shipp, George Renshard, Laurence Bungardeanu, Sherry McAdam, Jack Segar, Spottiswood White, Billy Mitchell, Dorsey Fisher and Waverly Taylor.

Chilean Attache's Daughter Arrives For 3-Month Visit

Arriving on Wednesday was Senora Eliana de Butendieck who will stop for three months with her parents the Commercial Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Campbell. Senora de Butendieck arrived in New York last week where she spent several days with her sister, Senora de Gacitua, wife of the Chilean Consul in New Jersey.

Accompanying Senora de Butendieck was her 6-months-old son Herbert. She will be joined by her husband next month. They make their home in Santiago, Chile.

Helen Gahagan Goes to Chicago

Miss Helen Gahagan, star of stage and screen, who has been in Washington for the past two weeks, left yesterday for Chicago, where she will attend a meeting of Democratic women.

From Chicago, she will go to Des Moines, Iowa, for another meeting, and then she will continue on to her home in Hollywood. In private life Miss Gahagan is Mrs. Melvyn Douglas.

Mrs. R. W. Imbrie Will Entertain After Variety Show

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie will be among the many patronesses entertaining after the Variety Show at the Mayflower this evening. The benefit, which promises to draw a large crowd, is sponsored by St. Gertrude's Guild, of which Mrs. Imbrie is presider. Proceeds will be used to pay the interest on the debt of St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts.

Among the distinguished patrons for the event are the French Ambassador, Count de Saint Quentin; the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz; Capt. and Mrs. Paul Henry Bastedo, Justice Harold M. Stephens, Gardiner Howland Shaw, Commander and Mrs. Frank Slingluff, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cahill, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Joseph Callahan, Mrs. James B. Flynn, Mrs. John D. Foley, Mrs. John J. Earley, the Rev. James P. Grace, Dr. and Mrs. Mario Julia, Mr. and Mrs. George Luers, and Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Valdes.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Leave for New York

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Howard, of Nassau and Newport, who have been spending a few days here at the Hay-Adams House, will leave Washington today for New York.

On Wednesday evening the Howards were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilber at the Shoreham Hotel. Covers were laid for 21.

Mrs. Howard Arrives To Help in Book Drive

Merchant Marine Library Association Founder Tells How Millions of Volumes Help Enliven Seamen's Recreation Hours

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Henry Howard, of Newport, founder of the largest circulating library in the world, is in Washington for a few days to assist with its annual book drive here. It is the American Merchant Marine Library Association. Mrs. Emory Scott Land is chairman of the local committee.

This organization, which Mrs. Howard founded in 1921, has since circulated to seamen and to those living on distant lighthouses and lightships, 4,000,000 books and 5,000,000 magazines. Last year, it had 186,000 books and 250,000 magazines in circulation . . . a comparatively small number, says Mrs. Howard, who predicts many more will be distributed this year.

MRS. HENRY HOWARD

She started the association when it was brought to her attention that American seamen and lighthouse keepers, because of their calling, were practically the only citizens deprived of the privileges of the public library. She and those she first interested in the project began with a small file of gift books. From this the "Library of the High Seas," as the seamen call it, has grown to millions of volumes.

The books are contributed by persons in every State in the Union. During the week designated for the annual drive and often for many weeks after, people in all walks of life leave volumes they have read and occasionally new ones with the public libraries in their cities and villages, marked "for seamen." These are sent to the various offices of the association and sorted and boxed for circulation. A box is assigned to a merchant ship and serves as its library until it reaches a distant port or to a lightship far at sea, and can exchange it for one that has been left there by another vessel some weeks before. Thus, the books keep afloat: transferred from one ship to another, going from port to port.

"They not only circle the globe, but have gone to the North and South poles with the Byrd expeditions," said Mrs. Howard.

The association is maintained by voluntary contributions of books and money. Last year seamen and ship owners donated more than $3,300, and, in addition, 500 seamen took out $1 memberships, says Mrs. Howard.

No shore reading rooms are maintained, but some 25 seamen a day visit the headquarters' office at 45 Broadway, New York City. They look over the books and consult with their librarian regarding textbooks for technical courses they may be taking. These textbooks are purchased by the association from its treasury to meet special needs in this field and are assigned to the ships where seamen require them.

The money raised Monday at the book auction sponsored by the local committee of the association at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, will be added to this fund. The association also provided books for some 300 children of families living at lighthouses along the Maine and Alaskan coasts.

Offices, in addition to New York, are maintained in Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Seattle and Sault Sainte Marie.

The convention, attended by 700 delegates from all parts of the country, closed last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

Sen. Pepper Calls on Democracy To Lead Way to Better World

There must come a new consciousness of democracy in this country if democracy is to live, Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, told members of the Woman's National Democratic Club last night at their final dinner of the season, held at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue.

"The dictator's way is by dictatorship," he said. "Democracy's way is by sympathy, education, public works, organization, leadership, stirring the latent ambition. Why will a people want to fight to save a democracy which will not give them a job? Why would men and women give their lives to defend a democracy which would let their children starve?

"It is a shame upon democracy's escutcheon that we have our slums, that hundreds of thousands die from preventable disease, that men walk the streets jobless, that education is denied to many, and that some of our tenant farmers and laborers live under conditions no better than the peasantry of the Old World.

"Under the compulsion of clear thinking, of honest self-scrutiny and under the surge of human hopes and aspirations which today are being unshackled and unchained, I believe in my enthusiasm for the democratic way that our democracy has just reached the first rung of its upward climb to a better and a brighter world.

"Tomorrow may see the door to the dark ages opened again by the bloody hand of Hitler, and mankind begin its solemn procession to the dark chambers of spiritual, mental and physical death.

"I deplore our relative indifference to this struggle, but I hope that the tender memories of the beauties of the life we have loved will kiss our brow into a new consciousness of what is at stake and that America shall speak out from the deep recesses of her heart. The America of the Pilgrims; the America of the Cavaliers; the America of New England, of the South, of the West; the America that God has saved maybe for just such moments as this.

"America, I believe, will speak out and speak out with such force and clearness and righteousness that all faltering and doubting men and women and children, everywhere, who love liberty, shall take heart and begin anew the struggle that they won a thousand times, always to win again."

Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, the president, presided. Other guests of honor at the dinner were Mrs. Pepper, Mrs. Hazel Reavis and Claude Lee.

Antiaircraft Canteen Committee for Paris Increases Efforts to Supply Help to Poilus

THE ANTIAIRCRAFT Canteen Committee for Paris is increasing its efforts to establish more canteens for the poilus occupying the air defense posts around Paris.

Mrs. Larz Anderson, of Washington and Boston, is chairman of the American Foundation for Canteens for Isolated French Air Defenses, and Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, chairman of the Washington committee. Washington Canteen, No. 1 and No. 2, have been established in France and a third, which will also be designated as a Washington canteen, is being formed.

These provide radios, magazines, cards, hot drinks, cigarettes, candy and games for the men who guard the isolated outposts.

The regular canteens cost $250 each and there are also rolling canteens that cost $1,000. Contributions go from here to Mrs. Anderson, at 123 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and, through her are cabled to France for immediate use.

FATHER'S DAY—Members of the junior camp committee of the Girl Scouts will be accompanied to Camp May Flather by their fathers today. The trip to the Girl Scout camp in the Shenandoah Mountains, near Harrisonburg, Va., is the annual inspection preparatory to the opening, July 1.

The committee will go over the camp with the caretaker and submit a list of necessary improvements to Scout headquarters on their return. The fathers will make such repairs as they can over the week-end. There will be an outing at Reddish Knob, 14 miles from camp.

Miss Catherine Riggleman is chairman of the committee. Others who will take the trip include Florence Crawford, Betty Rogers, Connie Campbell, Barbara Kurz, Mary Lou Aiello, Martha Alexander, Nancy Montgomery, Bing Lind, Jane Warren and Jane Kullberg.

Miss Eleanor J. Durrett, local director of the Girl Scouts, and Miss Anne McLean, who will direct Camp May Flather, will be members of the party.

HONOR WRITER—Nancy Byrd Turner, Virginia writer and lecturer, will be guest of honor and speaker at a garden party tomorrow afternoon, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Clarence John Koontz, 1100 Grace Church road, Silver Spring, sponsored by the Woodside Writers Club.

Mrs. Richard Pretz and Miss Madeline Barrett will pour, assisted by Mrs. Kay Elliott Chapman, Miss Theodore King, Miss Ruth Elliott, and Miss Margery Cooper.

Mrs. Donald Vergne Potter will play several piano selections.

RECITAL—Edward Henneberry, concert pianist and teacher, graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, selected the following pupils for presentation in his final spring recital at the Arts Club, 2017 I street, Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock: Paul Altman, Betty Hyer, Stephen Brown, Josephine Kerr, Mary Patricia Smith, Mary Alice Baden, Herbert Penske, Virginia Brown, Virginia McCrillis, Molly Kramer, Alan Brown, Opal Robinson and James Copeland. The program will include compositions by MacDowell, Grieg, Beethoven, Rachmanioff, Schubert, Bach and Schumann.

Mrs. Kirby Wins Poetry Prize

Mrs. Inez Kirby, of Bethesda, was awarded first prize, $10, last night on her poem, "Sleepless Children," in the French ballade contest, conducted by Blue Moon poetry magazine.

Announcement of this and other awards was made at the closing session of the annual poetry festival, held at the Arts Club, with Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, Blue Moon editor, and Dr. Charles Edward Russell, in charge.

Second prize went to Thelma Peters, of Miami, Fla., for her poem, "To a Fortune-Teller," and third to Corinne Chandlee Davis, of this city, for "Rainy Day." Honorable mention was given Beatrice Raw for "Fairy Pedlar" and Anna Priestley for "Secret of Life." Both are residents of the District.

All of the poems—entries from 23 States—were judged by Dr. Russell, noted critic and author. The prize-winning ballads were read last night by Maurice Jarvis, Esther Waldron and Mattie Richards Tyler, associate editor of Blue Moon.

In the afternoon an open forum was conducted at which many local poets read their verses. Wednesday evening there was a program also, including a talk on "The Lyrical Genius of Robert Burns" by Mrs. Tyler, who is State president for the District of the National League of American Pen Women, and a group of songs to Burns' lyrics, sung by Dorothy Rayner, accompanied by Claude Robeson.

Briton to Show Spoon Collection To Va. Society

Eric Underwood, of England, will be the chief speaker this afternoon at a meeting of the Association of Virginia Antiquities at the Willard Hotel at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Underwood has served for many years as a member of the council of the British National Trust for the Preservation of Places of Historic Interest or Natural Beauty. Lord Lothian is a member of this body and his historic house, Blickling Hall, is held by the trust.

Mr. Underwood's famous collection of old English silver spoons, dating from 1400 to 1660, including the oldest known domestic silver spoon, will be shown to the members of the Virginia association at their meeting.

A business session at 2:30 o'clock will precede the program with Mrs. Everard Robinson Todd, the director, presiding. Wilbur Burns will also describe his historic old home to which a pilgrimage will be made later in the season.

Defense and Funds For FBI Approved By Clubwomen

Milwaukee, May 23 (AP).—The council meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today adopted an emergency resolution approving development of a modernized and forward-looking program of national defense," but rejected another expressing opposition to American participation "in any foreign war."

The resolution adopted urged that sufficient funds be given the Federal Bureau of Investigation to enable continuation of its work of uncovering subversive and un-American activities.

The rejected resolution, presented by the Illinois State federation, urged adequate national defense but opposed American military participation in foreign conflicts. The vote was 202 to 74.

Chevy Chase Club Gives $130 Check To Aid Children

The Junior Woman's Club of Chevey Chase last night presented a check for $130 to Mrs. Dorothy M. Kurtz, head of public welfare in Montgomery County, at its annual banquet in the clubhouse on Connecticut avenue. The presentation to Mrs. Kurtz who, with Mrs. R. Seabury d'Espard, contact chairman to the senior club, was guest of honor, marked the climax of the Juniors' welfare project.

Miss Margaret Abbe, reelected to serve another year as president, presided at the dinner. A review of the season's work showed special philanthropic activities both at Christmas and Thanksgiving. The $130 will be used for glasses and dental care for needy children.

Other officers are. Elizabeth Dougherty, vice president; Violet Karchem, recording secretary; Louise Bebb, corresponding secretary, and Margaret Springer, treasurer.

Group Elects Mrs. Bakkie

Mrs. Melva Bakkie, nutritionist for the American Red Cross last night, was elected president of the District of Columbia Home Economics Association to succeed Mrs. R. N. Ellis. The election took place at the final dinner meeting of the year, held at the Dodge Hotel garden house, with Miss Mabel Flanley, of New York City, a representative of the Borden company, as speaker, on Home Economics and Public Relations."

Other officers are Mrs. Faith Rasmussen, vice president; Dr. Polly Kissinger Moore, of the University of Maryland, corresponding secretary; Miss Emma Byler, of Eliot Junior High School, recording secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth Whiteman, Department of Agriculture, treasurer, and Mrs. Ellis, counsellor.

Mrs. Ora Day Rush, home economics supervisor of District schools, announced the annual awards made by the association to representatives of high school home economic clubs. The winners: Harriet Reid, McKinley; Kathleen Davis, Central; Jane Poore, Woodrow Wilson; Ruth Weiksner, Anacostia; Margaret Smith, Eastern.

P. E. O. Chapter Will Be Entertained Tonight

Miss S. Elizabeth Reynolds, newly-elected president of the District Chapter, P. E. O. and her sister, Miss Myrta Reynolds, will be hostesses to Chapter D tonight at their home, 4507 Argyle Terrace northwest.

A musical program will be given by Mrs. Charlotte Watkins, Thomas Nelson Leef and Henry G. Leef, soloists at Mount Saint Alban's Church, accompanied by Miss Florence Reynolds. Miss Alice Applegate, a member of Chapter D, who is a concert pianist, will also be heard in a group of selections. Mrs. David Byron, president of Chapter D, will preside.

Two Schools For Crippled Advocated

Advisory Board Completes Survey; Units for Colored And White Urged

Two central schools, one white and one colored, for handicapped children were recommended last night by an advisory committee to the Board of Education.

The advisory committee on handicapped children at this meeting completed recommendations on the long-range program which it was organized to consider two years ago.

The committee, headed by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, who is also president of the Board of Education, recommended that crippled children, cardiac cases and sight conservation classes be housed in the central schools, along with such other children as the Health Department will refer there.

Blind and deaf children were omitted from specific mention for immediate inclusion in the central schools, after Mrs. Doyle pointed out that these children doubtless are receiving better instruction in the institutions, to which they are now sent, than the board probably will be equipped to give them for some time.

Seven-Point Program

The recommendations will go to the Board of Education within the next few weeks, Mrs. Doyle said, so it can consider steps on the urgent items.

The full program, which the committee recommended last night after havnig adopted portions of it at previous meetings, includes legislative provision for:

Special classes (for the blind) in Braille instruction with an appropriation for special equipment; special classes for partially deaf children with an appropriation for special equipment; classes for cardiac children with a supporting appropriation; instruction in lip reading with a supporting appropriation.

Authorization for two central schools for handicapped children with beginning appropriations for sites, plans and buildings.

Recommendation to the Health Department that an appropriation be sought for psychiatric srevice.

Recommendation to the Health Department that an appropriation be sought for an eye clinic headed by an ophthalmologist.

The program included also special instruction for handicapped shut-in children, which has already been launched.

No Free Lunches

The committee decided it would not be necessary to locate the two central schools adjacent to Children's Hospital and Freedmen's Hospital, but that sites with recreation facilities and in keeping with economy in transportation would be sought.

The committee decided that cafeterias should be located in the two central schools, but did not recommend free lunches for all children.

Three board members, Robert A. Maurer, Grait E. Dunkum and Charles D. Drayton, attended the advisory committee meeting, along with Dr. Joseph A. Murphy of the Health Department, chief medical inspector for schools; Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of maternal and child welfare, Health Department; Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of District schools; Robert L. Haycock, first assistant superintendent; A. K. Savoy and H. H. Long, assistant superintendents; Miss Betty C. Wright, executive director, American Society for the Hard of Hearing; Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of educational research; Dr. William J. Howard.

Big D. C. Estates Are Open Today For Garden Tour

The garden tour for the benefit of the Montgomery County General Hospital, 11 a. m. today, affords flower lovers the opportunity to visit some of Washington's largest estates.

The tour, sponsored by the Chevy Chase Garden Club, has 15 gardens on its itinerary. Tea will be served in two gardens, those belonging to Mrs. Chester Wells, "Woodend," on the Jones Mill road, and "Woodacre," owned by Mrs. John A. Selby, at 601 Glenbrook road, Edgemoor.

In the event of rain, the tour will be postponed to Saturday. Committee chairmen are Mrs. Philip E. Bradley, Mrs. Robert Ash, cochairman; Mrs. Karl D. Loos, tea; Mrs. J. Gilmer Korner, tickets; Mrs. E. Percival Wilson, hostesses; Mrs. Frederick Stohlman, information; Mrs. Ridley McLean, art posters; Mrs. Egbert Clark, flower arrangements; Mrs. Hartley Jackson and Mrs. James Murphy, posters, and Mrs. Richard B. Winder, publicity.

Barlow Sets New Bomb Test For Tomorrow

The Senate Military Affairs Committee will return to Aberdeen, Md., tomorrow to observe what Lester P. Barlow says will be "a terrifying, earth-quaking answer" to critics of his "death wave" bomb.

The inventor declared yesterday that he had made provision against a mixup similar to the one 10 days ago when he refused to detonate a 1,000-pound charge of the explosive, called gimite, because a delay caused evaporation of much of the charge's liquid air power.

The blast, he said, will be tested by meters and 84 live goats at the Army's Aberdeen proving grounds.

Sen. Walsh to Speak At Color Massing Today

Memorial services and massing of the colors by Jewish war veterans and District patriotic organizations will be held at 8 p. m. today, at the temple of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, Eighth and H streets northwest.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, will be the guest speaker, and the Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld will officiate.

Dentists Told of Cocktail Gas; Savant Proves Soup Is Week Old

Janet Biddle, Norine Cummings, Joan Dugan and Whortley Boland were four of the girls in the Little Farmer number in yesterday's dance recital at Roosevelt High School. The Roosevelt-Macfarland Community Center presented the dance classes of the Barnard, West, Takoma and Petworth schools in the recital

Patient Is Put Happily to Sleep

Talking cheerfully about "electric knives," and "condensations by automatic mallet," the five State post graduate dentists concluded their five-day meeting at the Hotel Willard yesterday amid the wheezings of an anesthetized man with a toothache going under gas.

It was a nice clinical party and the public stayed away. But there is nothing to it anymore—according to the dentists, who fell to talking about nitrous oxide-oxygen analgesia and how ten whiffs of it is equivalent to two cocktails.

The machine was demonstrated, at the concluding table clinic, by Dr. Louis R. Schilling, of Oradell, N. J. The patient smells of the analgesia, is completely conscious of his surroundings but doesn't feel the drill.

"It is like the cocktail," said the clinician. "It gives a feeling of exhilaration" that, according to the claim, might be attended by a sprig of mint to lend the illusory effect of dating on a wide veranda with Scarlett O'Hara. The patient feels no pain.

Down the hall, Dr. Milton Lubash, of Hoboken, N. J., played a phonograph recording of respiratory sounds during nitrous oxide-oxygen anesthesia. The exhalations, amplified by loudspeaker, showed the patient retreating from his toothache with a sound like a locomotive blowing off steam.

His huffings and puffings described the whole process until the forceps seized his tooth and then the wheezing huffed and puffed more loudly. The clinician observed that the patient knew nothing of it after awakening.

Again, another clinician demonstrated how a girl with a hare-lip and cleft palate was given nice teeth, and a fair facility for speech, after nine months' treatment.

Dr. John T. Lusardi, of Jersey City, called sulfanilamide "a godsend to the dental profession." He used it against infection, for impactions, extractions and pesteomyolitis. He emphasized that in these connections it should be used locally, not internally.

The Park View School, of Washington, showed with an exhibit how Snow White helped the five sad dwarfs to get good teeth, and the Thomson School exhibited a "poor health house" with its sides made of hot dogs and cookies. Their "good health" house had a milk bottle for a chimney.

No Secret Safe From Isotopes

And then there was the scientist who utilized his knowledge of artificial radioactive isotopes to prove a deficiency in freshness of the soup served in his boardinghouse.

The chemist in question placed a radioactive element that was imperceptible to the cook in the soup cauldron on a Monday. He observed the substance still in the soup when it was served at the end of the week.

This scientific side-discoverey was revealed yesterday by Dr. A. Keith Brewer, of the fertilizer research division, of the Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering. Brewer, not the experimenter in question, spoke in one of a series of lectures sponsored by the United States Patent Office in the Commerce Department Auditorium.

"We know, of course, the mobility of the molecules varies inversely with the square root of the mass," Dr. Brewer said, in his address on "The Appilcation of the Isotope Technique in Tracing Plant Food Absorption."

The lecturer continued. The age of the universe (i.e., matter) has been set by certain chemists at 10,000,000,000 years through the radioactive change of certain elements, he explained.

A man of 160 pounds is constantly being "shot full of holes" by the disintegration of 10,000 or more beta rays, he said. It appeared, however, this did not present a serious threat to the man in question, since there are many more than 10,000 cells in the human body.

Dr. Brewer used only a few slides of such devices as the mass spectograph and the beta ray Geizer counter during his lecture.

"I try to use as few slides as possible . . . slides seem to put an audience to sleep" he told The Post.

Help the Blind—Get Rich or Arrested

A gang of five professional panhandlers—who between them had collected $132 in less than a week, were found guilty of soliciting alms in Police Court yesterday after a policeman stopped their operations.

Patrolling his beat along downtown F street Monday, Policeman George Weaver saw a blind woman being led by a young boy. She was selling pencils, stopping people along the street and asking for money, Weaver testified.

Subsequent questioning of the woman and boy revealed they were members of a group who recently came here from West Point, Ga., Weaver said. He located the others—two men and two women—at a place they had agreed to meet at the end of the day's "business." When arrested, one of the men—also blind—had $55 in his pocket, the court was told. The other admitted sending a money order for $77 to friends in West Point, said Weaver.

Each of the others had varying amounts of money and one ever boasted they made about $16 a day on Washington streets. They drove here in a new-make automobile owned by one of the women, Weaver reported.

Police Court Judge George Neilson found the group guilty of soliciting alms, but deferred sentence pending a report from Georgia authorities on the 13-year-old boy and how he happened to be with them.

Maximum fine for the offense is $25.

Car Tag 'Egypt' Carries Gag 'Too Far'

Motorists with a funny-bone, beware of putting gags over the side or front of your automobile.

You may think such bulletins as "Four Wheels—No Brakes," "If You Can Read This, You Are—etc.," "One Hit Plus One Run Makes Two Errors," are clever. But the District traffic regulations are not amused. The corporation counsel was reported yesterday to have drafted legislation about it, and the Commissioners will take a look at it today.

The story goes back to one day in the near past when a local traffic official saw a District car with spectacular tags marked "Egypt." He investigated, and found the plates were fake—they were being peddled by a novelty store here.

The officer, who has enough trouble as it is looking out for vehicles marked for Government bureaus, the military and diplomats thought there ought to be a law, and he drafted legislation. It would require official approval before any insignia, tag, emblem or plate could be used on any car in Washington.

When more experienced law makers looked over the original draft, they decided it "went too far." In its effort to keep spurious names and wisecracks off cars, the regulation would even prohibit automobile manufacturers from attaching their own insignia or emblem on the car. The legislation was rewritten.

Ruhland Asks Health Code Be Reformed

Stricter Regulation Is Recommended To Commissioners

Reform of the District code regulating control of communicable diseases including wider powers for the health officer was submitted yesterday to the District Commissioners by Dr. George C. Ruhland.

Under the provisions of the revised code, Health Officer Ruhland could compel a person suffering from any one of nine communicable diseases to be removed to a hospital should his home facilities prove to be "inadequate" for proper isolation.

The new measures, which must be approved by the Commissioners, have been indorsed by the District Medical Society, according to a Health Department official.

Reports Required

Hospital authorities and persons in charge of private and public laboratories must submit a report within 24 hours after discovery of positive evidences of communicable diseases in persons under their care, the code proposes. In cases where no physician has attended a patient afflicted with one of the diseases, "it shall be the duty of every person having knowledge" to report at once to the Health Department "all facts in relationship to the illness of any such person."

One section of the proposed code makes possible fines up to $500 and 30 days in jail, or both, for violation.

22 Others Listed

In addition to these nine diseases the new code adds 22 diseases which must be reported to the health officer. These are: Hookworm diseases, botulism, amebiasis, chicken pox, conjunctivitis, diarrhea in infants under three weeks, encephalitis, food infection outbreak, German measles, parrot fever, rabies (human), acute rheumatism, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, septicemia, tularemia, undulant fever, streptococcus sore throat, trachoma and trichinosis.

One section of the code empowers the health officer to compel persons "suspected" of having a communicable disease to submit to the department for an examination to determine existence of the disease or of being a carrier of the disease.

Dr. Ruhland has included a section which makes all information confidential.

5 Washingtonians Lose Cash, Gems Valued at $1,500

Five Washingtonians last night reported to police the loss of nearly $1,500 in money or valuables.

Saburo Katsura, of 5201 Thirty-fifth street northwest, a translator in the Department of Agriculture, reported the loss of $250 in cash near his home. A diamond ring valued at $250 was lost between Union Station and the Y. W. C. A. by Margaret A. Garrity, of Higganum, Conn.

Mrs. Margaret Keshishian, of 3935 Morrison street northwest, valued at $400 a diamond-studded watch she lost near the Corcoran Gallery of Art or near her home, and a watch valued at $150 was lost between her home and the Department of Justice by Ruth Campbell, of 3446 Connecticut avenue northwest. Mrs. Mary A. Coleby, of 2320 Tracy place northwest, lost a silver and diamond pendant earring near her home.

Two Princeton professors, Dr. Earl Baldwin Smith and Howard Crosby Butler, and former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, will speak at the annual banquet of the Princeton Club of Washington tonight at 8 o'clock in the Chevy Chase Club.

New officers of the club, announced yesterday, include: President, Huston Thompson, '97; vice president, J. Edgar Murdock, '16; second vice president, Lee D. Butler, '22; secretary, Charles A. McKenney, jr., '32; assistant secretary, A. H. Jackman, '31, and treasurer, Millard F. West, jr., '32.

New members of the board of directors are Thomas Riggs, '94; Neville Miller, '16, and Gibbs L. Baker, '31.

Woman Soars Above 200 Men and Takes Top Honors in Columbus U.'s Flying Course

Mrs. Mary Scarnecchia knows just a little more about aeronautics than her brother, Joseph Friday. She took top honors in the Junior Board of Commerce's four-month ground school course at Columbus University and her brother received the second highest grade on an examination which followed the course. A 50-hour flying course is their reward

Report Scores Lodge, ABC Chairman

House Investigators Assert His Rulings Are 'Arbitrary'

Sharp criticism of the conduct of Thomas E. Lodge, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, is contained in a preliminary draft of a report on the District liquor investigation, it was learned yesterday following a meeting of the House subcommittee.

Chairman Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, gave each member of the subcommittee a copy of his 20-page report, parts of which were discussed in executive session.

Members agreed to read the report and to offer suggestions for changes or additions before meeting again tomorrow or early next week.

Criticism of Lodge, one member said, was directed at his handling of liquor cases. The report was said to charge him with being "arbitrary" and to be lacking in "judicial temperament."

The ABC board chairman was the principal target of most of the complaints heard by the subcommittee. It was his vote against renewal of the license of Leo Rossiter, Georgia avenue cafe proprietor, that precipitated the investigation.

The report is understood to recommend several amendments in the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, especially with regard to safeguards against the sale of liquor to minors.

White Friars Hall Dedicated

White Friars Hall, theological college in charge of the Carmelite Fathers at Catholic University, was dedicated yesterday.

After a morning mass celebrated by the Very Rev. Mathew O'Neill, superior of Chicago Province, a Corpus Christi procession was held at 3 p. m. This was followed immediately by dedication ceremonies performed by Bishop Joseph Corrigan, D. D., rector of Catholic University, assisted by 30 resident superiors of colleges in the university and the same number of Carmelite superiors from other cities.

A reception for visitors and guests was held at the hall.

Gets CAA Scholarship With Eight Others After Ground Course

A young woman learned more about airplanes than 200 men and took top honors in the Junior Board of Commerce's four-month ground school course at Columbus University.

She is Mrs. Mary Scarnecchia, 25, of 3805 W street northwest. With eight young men who made next highest grades on an examination which followed the course, she received a scholarship from the Civil Aeronautics Authority yesterday for a 50-hour flying course at some nearby airport.

The scholarships were awarded at a Junior Board of Commerce luncheon at the Annapolis Hotel. Other winners were Joseph Friday, Mrs. Scarnecchia's brother, who took second honors; Paul A. Lunde, Carlyle M. Gray, Thomas J. Markham, David Bandel, Albert J. Sziarto, Thomas A. Goldman and Paul G. Santos.

Approximately 300 took the ground school course, which was sponsored by the Junior Board of Commerce and open to both men and women. Approximately one-third of the class was feminine.

"Women," said a board official, explaining how the sex may fit into the CAA's program to train pilots for war service, "may not be allowed to pilot combat planes. However, they can fly transports, just as they drive ambulances."

Fire Record

Alarms sounded between midnight and 10 p. m. yesterday included:

12:09 a. m.—Canal and Ivy streets southeast; auto.

9:07 a. m.—2922 Sherman avenue northwest; food on stove.

Sidewalk Is Asked For Texas Avenue

A sidewalk in the 3500 block of Texas avenue southeast was asked last night at the final meeting of the season of the Fort Davis Citizens Association at the Branch Library, Seventh and L streets southeast.

An insanitary ditch on Texas avenue in the vicinity of Carpenter street was brought to the attention of the District Board of Health. It was announced that following the request of the association a fire box has been installed at S street and Texas avenue southeast.

Va. Parkway Land Buying Starts Soon

Arlington County's $45,000 Check Clears Project's Last Obstacle

After long delay, land acquisition along the Virginia side of the Potomac for development of George Washington Memorial Parkway is ready to be started.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, yesterday announced a $45,000 check from Arlington County has been deposited in the Treasury, dissolving the last obstacle confronting the project.

Work will proceed at once, Settle said, on closing deals for $70,000 in waterfront property for which contracts had been drawn but signatures held up pending receipt of Arlington's contribution. Previously the State of Virginia had contributed $45,000 and the Federal Government $90,000.

Land acquisition on the Maryland side, between the District line and Great Falls, has been under way for several months under a $300,000 appropriation shared equally by Montgomery County and the United States.

$70,000 to Buy Up Land

The contracts aggregating $70,000, which will soon be closed, comprise land parcels between Arlington Memorial Bridge and Spout Run, most of them above Key Bridge, according to Settle.

Norman C. Brown, associate land purchasing officer, reported to the planning body the purchase of several recration sites, including a mansion erected by the late Mrs. John B. Henderson, which probably will be converted into a field house for Columbia Heights Recreation Center.

Mrs. Henderson, for years the chatelaine of the famed Henderson Castle at Sixteenth street and Florida avenue northwest, hoped the mansion at Sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest would serve as an embassy when she built it. The building has 24 rooms and 10 baths.

Miller Heads New Traffic Safety Group

Promoted Officer Will Investigate Fatal Accidents

Capt. Arthur E. Miller, promoted to police inspector yesterday by the Commissioners, will head a new Traffic Investigation Bureau, Police Chief Brown announced last night.

MILLER

Capt. Miller will be in charge of investigating each fatal accident, formulating measures to improve Washington's serious traffic situation.

Inspector William E. Holmes will continue as supervisor, Maj. Brown said.

Recently graduated from Northwestern University Traffic Institute, Capt. Miller is an expert in traffic safety control work. He fills the vacancy created by the death last Thursday of Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb.

Capt. Miller will stress education, enforcement and engineering in his new position. He plans to instruct his men in safety measures and, in turn, have them address various associations and civic groups.

Surveys on traffic bottlenecks and study of engineering matters are also on his program.

Acting Capt. Walter Storm, of the Third Precinct, is slated for promotion as captain to fill Capt. Miller's vacancy. His name, along with two others, are now before the Board of Surgeons of the Police Department. Sergt. James E. Silvea is first on the list for promotion to lieutenant and Private Howard Covell, assistant to Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, is first on the list for promotion to sergeant.

Capt. Miller was appointed to the force in 1919, at the age of 22. He is now 43. On May 1, 1928, he was promoted to the rank of sergeant, and three years later was made a lieutenant. On August 1, 1935, he became a captain and was assigned to the Third Precinct. His last assignment was as captain at the First Precent.

Plight of Jews In Holland Told at Rally

Rabbi Breslau Cites Relief Difficulties In Spread of War

New difficulties beset the Jewish relief administration abroad with the threatened spread of the war to southeastern Europe, Rabbi Isadore Breslau, cochairman of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees and Overseas Needs, told Washington workers in the organization's drive for funds last night.

Addressing a rally of the appeal's youth division at the Jewish Community House as the three-week campaign reached the halfway mark, he added:

"The German occupation of Holland has placed in jeopardy 150,000 Dutch Jews as well as 21,000 German refugees who had found temporary haven in the Netherlands." He said also that large numbers of refugees in Norway and Denmark had been arrested.

Campaign workers reported approximately 1,800 contributions had been received toward the goal of 7,500.

Educators Told To Guard New School Methods

"Parents interested in progressive education have a different job before them. They must challenge those who glibly classify every innovation in school practice, however sound it may be, as 'fads and frills' in order to justify its elimination from the budget," Dr. Ernesto Galarza, of the Pan American Union staff, said in a speech last night.

He addressed the Washington branch of the Progressive Education Association at a meeting in the Women's City Club.

Mrs. Mary McKenchnie, of the Landon School for Boys, was re-elected president; Albert Rogers, of Friends School, was named vice president; Miss Margaret Gaskill, Remedial Reading Center, recording secretary; Miss Marion DuBois, WPA Adult Education Project, corresponding secretary, and Miss Julia Morse, Cathedral School, treasurer.

Nurses Killed, Embassy Claims

Copyright by New York Times

The German Embassy countered yesterday what it said were "atrocity stories of the Allied propaganda machine" about German bombers "deliberately machine-gunning fleeing civilians" in Belgium and France by charging that British aviators had bombed residential districts in Germany and killed Red Cross nurses and their own soldiers in German prison camps.

The embassy did not refer specifically to President Roosevelt's allusion to the German machine-gunning of civilians during his press conference Tuesday. It has been reported from Berlin that the German government was requesting the embassy to report on what the President said.

Charles Rapee, House Official, Dies at 62

Property Custodian Noted as Designer Of Furniture

Charles A. Rapee, 62, property custodian of the House Office Building and a furniture designer for Government buildings for many years, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after a long illness.

MR. RAPEE

Mr. Rapee was a native of Washington and was educated in the public schools here. He apprenticed himself to a cabinetmaker here in 1890, and in 1908 entered business for himself in the firm of Berckman and Rapee at 308 Thirteenth street northwest, on the present Federal Triangle.

He designed the counterforts on the biers of the Unknown Soldier, President Wilson and President Harding. Among numerous pieces of furniture he designed for the Government were tables in House and Senate committee rooms. In 1928 he was made assistant property custodian of the House Office Building, becoming head custodian in 1937. In that capacity he aided in the designing of furniture for the press gallery and other offices. His home was at 1340 Harvard street northwest.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mollie V. Rapee; a son, Dr. Lawrence A. Rapee; a daughter, Mrs. Earl C. Sharits; two brothers, Elmer and Frank Rapee, and two sisters, Mrs. Edwin Watts and Mrs. J. J. Waters, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be at 1:30 a. m. tomorrow at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

D. C. Pharmacists Install Goldstein As President

Dr. Morris G. Goldstein will be installed as president of the D. C. Pharmaceutical Association tonight at a Wardman Park Hotel banquet meeting, closing event of the organization's two-day convention.

With nearly 500 members registered, the meeting was opened yesterday by Dr. William Henry Whittlesey, retiring president. In his address he reported the appointment of a special committee to cooperate with medical and dental societies on observance of the amended food and drugs law.

The Women's Auxiliary and Travelers' Auxiliary are meeting in conjunction with the pharmacists, the former headed by Mrs. W. H. Whittlesey and the latter by S. J. Waddell. Social events yesterday included a card party, luncheon and party at night.

2 in 'Murder, Inc.,' Of Brooklyn, Found Guilty, Face Chair

New York, May 23 (AP).—Harry (Happy) Maione and Frank (the Dasher) Abbandando, first of Brooklyn's Murder, Inc., members to go to trial, were convicted of murder in the first degree late today in the slaying of George Rudnick, police informer.

The Rudnick killing, in 1937, was one of more than 50 which Brooklyn's new district attorney, William O'Dwyer, has traced to the murder-for-profit organization which he has sought to break up.

Rudnick was strangled, punctured 63 times with an ice pick and hacked by a cleaver.

The jury deliberated about 2½ hours. The mandatory penalty is death in the electric chair.

Memorial services for seven members of the Cosmopolitan Club who have died since the club's inception in 1922 were held yesterday at the Carlton Hotel. The address was delivered by the club chaplain, Dr. Oliver J. Hart, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Tiger Almost Gets the Lady Who Set Out to Shoot a Rug

Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw Describes Narrow Escape From Death as Elephant Bolts Charging Cat, Hurling Her From Seat

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, May 23.—It's the rich wot tykes the plysures; it's the poor wot tykes the blime. But it's also the rich wot goes tiger hunting in the jungles and almost falls off elephants into the jaws of dyspeptic tigers.

The marks of that tiger's hot breath are still on her shapely neck, Mrs. Lawrence Copley Thaw indicated today when the Park avenue matron and her husband returned from an 11-month safari which took them from Paris to the jungles on the edge of the border between India and China.

The Thaws, the most de luxe explorers of modern times, were in Assam on the Chinese border when "the lady or the tiger" suddenly ceased being a short story and turned into personal history.

"Too personal," murmured the petite and very pretty Mrs. Thaw on the decks of the incoming Italian liner, Conte di Savoia.

Seated on a three-passenger elephant, with a mahout in front of her to guide the beast, and a hunter in the rear to do any necessary sharp-shooting, Mrs. Thaw went into the jungle last winter to bag herself a tiger-skin rug.

All went merry as a wedding bell until the elephant stumbled on a big tiger. The jungle cat came up fighting, and made a leap for the elephant. Jumbo, who was no fool, whirled in his tracks like a dynamo and started high-tailing it out of the woods.

But the speed of the elephant's about face threw Mrs. Thaw off its back. As she fell, she caught desperately at the ropes which held the hunting howdow to the animal. At the same time, the mahout caught her left ankle.

For eight minutes—"or it may have been eight days or eight weeks"—the elephant careened along in high gear, with Mrs. Thaw never quite certain whether the lady or the tiger would win. But the elephant outran the tiger. And Mrs. Thaw lived to hunt another day and bring home that striped fur rug.

Civil Service Celebrates Its 20th Birthday

LaGuardia Calls on U. S. Workers to Rally Behind Defense Plans

"This is no time for quibbling . . . nor for partisan politics," Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York said here last night as he called the attention of government employes to greater responsibilities in the face of the "European mess."

The New York mayor spoke at the Departmental auditorium where the Civil Service Commission celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the Civil Service Retirement Act.

"Force is the only language understood today," declared the New York mayor as he called upon Uncle Sam's workers to rally their fullest efforts now that they are most needed in the cause of national defense. "We cannot be blind to the fact that the results in Europe will disturb our tranquility," he said, asserting that we must let the world know our strength by building modern weapons.

Would Extend Security

LaGuardia praised the Civil Service Retirement Act as the forerunner of much of our social security legislation. But he called for extension of our security program.

A shorter work week of 30 to 35 hours, declared the mayor, would almost double our employment and help solve our most pressing internal problem.

Introducing the speakers, Lewis H. Fisher, chief of the Retirement Division, pointed out how fortunate it is to live in a country where "we can enjoy our retirement."

Ramspeck Speaks

Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, outlined the progress of retirement legislation over the last 20 years and asserted "we still are not through." Ramspeck, who is chairman of the House Civil Service Committee, reiterated his opposition to any merger of civil service retirement with Social Security Act provisions.

Other speakers were Arthur S. Fleming and Lucille Foster McMillin, of the Civil Service Commission. Presiding over the celebration was Harry B. Mitchell, president of the commission.

Guests included former Congressmen Edward Keating and Addison T. Smith; Representative Frank Crowther (Republican), of New York; Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the Veterans' Administration, and Lewis H. Fisher, chief of the Civil Service Retirement Division.

Anzacs Fighting For Christianity, Envoy Declares

Chicago, May 23.—Richard G. Casey, Australian Minister to the United States, declared tonight that his country, though half the world removed from the war, is fighting with the Allies because "a German victory would mean a blackout of Christianity."

Speaking at International House, the envoy declared "a force has arisen which threatens the whole basis of world civilization and . . . that force has to be defeated so that you and we can get back to the job of making the world, each year, a better place to live in for the average man."

Allies Not Beaten, Red Soldiers Say

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, May 23.—Commenting on the Western Front situation, Col. Popoff in the newspaper Red Star says the new French command has taken a sufficiently resolute stand. P. A. Ivanoff in Pravda says the Allies have received a grave lesson, but the question of who will win the war has not yet been decided. Although the Maginot Line has been outflanked from the north, its strategic importance remains great and it may service as a shield to enable the Allies to organize a powerful counter-stroke, the paper says. The immediate future should reveal whether the Allies will decide to resort to open maneuver or a warfare of position.

V. Kruxhkoff in the Pravda believes that Italy is still hesitant, conscious of her military weakness, and would like to achieve her aims without fighting. On the other hand, she fears that her dilatoriness in entering the war may deprive her of present favorable opportunities.

Ukrainians Of U. S. Open Parley Today

Hopeful that an Allied victory will liberate their homeland, more than 1,000 Ukrainian-Americans convening here today will appeal for moral support to aid in establishing an independent and democratic Ukraine after the war.

Representing some 2,500 Ukrainian-American organizations, the congress is the first of its kind held in this country since the World War when a similar plea was made.

The delegates, mostly descendants of peasant Ukrainian stock, want it known they are Americans first. As liberty-loving Americans, they stressed, they want their homeland to escape the Soviet yoke and enjoy the fruits of democracy.

Scheduled speakers before the congress today will include Senators Joseph F. Guffey (Democrat), and James J. Davis (Republican), both of Pennsylvania, and Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York. Other Congressional leaders will be guests.

Registration will continue up until 9 a. m. today, when the congress opens with an invocation by the Rev. Vladimir Lotovych, of Jersey City.

Other Ukrainian-American delegates include: Dr. Alexander A. Granovsky, of the University of Minnesota; Luke Myshuha, of Jersey City, editor of Svoboda, Ukrainian daily newspaper in the United States; Miroslaw Sichynsky, of Scranton, Pa., president of the Ukrainian Working Men's Association; Dr. Vladimir Timoshenko, professor at Stanford University; Dr. Alexander Koshetz, of New York, conductor of the former Ukrainian National Chorus.

A colorful note yesterday was the presentation by two women delegates of several articles of Ukrainian handiwork to Ernest Swift, vice chairman of the American Red Cross.

Last Rites Today For Lt. Col. Hills

Funeral services for Lieut. Col. Ralph W. Hills, 65, who died Wednesday in Cumberland, Md., will be conducted at 11 a. m. today in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial, with military honors, will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Lieut. Col. Hills, a native of Cleveland, Ohio, had served in the United States Diplomatic Corps and was author of several works on economics. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mary Gorman Hills; two sons, Dr. Ralph G. Hills, of Baltimore, and Arthur Gorman Hills, of Johns Hopkins University, and two daughters, Mrs. Stuart H. Gillmore, of Alta Vista, Md., and Mrs. William J. Roome, of Wolfboro, N. H.

The honorary pallbearers will be Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, Col. J. Miller Kenyon, Charles Arthur Barnard, William Ham, Enoch Chase, G. Gould Lincoln, Walter Wilcox, Morgan Shuster and Frank Stetson.

Joint Action By U. S., Japan Urged in Indies

Joint intervention in the Dutch East Indies by the navies of the United States and Japan was suggested last night by Prof. William C. Johnstone, of George Washington University, as a possible solution to the problem caused by Germany's invasion of The Netherlands.

Since Japan and the United States both have expressed desire for maintenance of the status quo in the islands, an agreement might be reached whereby both would intervene if this status is threatened, he told an audience in the university's Hall of Government.

"If Japan says she should send three cruisers to the islands to protect the status quo, then we could say, 'all right, we'll send three also to help, and that makes six.'" He said such joint intervention, not previously proposed in the present instance, had been successful in Siberia and during China's Boxer rebellion.

Another apparently overlooked angle of the situation, he said, is the fact that under the Four-Power Treaty the United States, Japan, Great Britain and France are obligated to call a conference and effect a settlement in case of a controversy over their insular possessions in the Pacific.

Johnstone's talk on "Foreign Rights in the Far East," was the fifth in a series of weekly public lectures sponsored by George Washington University and the American Council, Institute of Pacific Relations.

Roosevelt Accepts Resignation Of Cromwell

President Roosevelt accepted yesterday the resignation of James H. R. Cromwell as Minister to Canada and wished him "the best of success in the large field of activity upon which you are entering."

Cromwell was nominated Tuesday by New Jersey Democrats as their candidate for United States Senator.

In a letter to Cromwell, Mr. Roosevelt remarked that these are serious days in the history of the world and "require the intelligent and loyal cooperation of all of our citizens in order that our country may be prepared to resist any challenge to the continuance of our form of government or to the prosecution of our political ideals."

The President said he realized Cromwell believes "in our political objectives" and would continue to strive for their attainment. In his letter of resignation, Cromwell voiced his appreciation for "your confidence in me and the honor you conferred upon me."

Unsafe Car Ban Includes Drivers

The Commissioners yesterday approved an amendment to the traffic regulations which will hold responsible the driver, as well as owner, of a motor vehicle found to be in unsafe mechanical condition.

Recommended by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, the new regulation was needed, he said, because there are some cases brought to court in which the owner and the operator should be charged jointly, or where the operator should be charged separately.

Baltimore Gets Attack Trial

Trial of Floyd Turner, of Kensington, Md., indicted by the Montgomery County, Md., grand jury for criminal attack upon Mrs. Blanche Hall, 16, of near Kensington, has been ordered removed to Baltimore.

F. Barnard Walsh, jr., Charles Prettyman and J. Guy Neal, counsel for the defense, moved for removal on grounds that the defendant could not get a fair trial in Montgomery County. Judges Charles W. Woodward and Stedman Prescott ordered the removal.

War Now Our Duty, Breckinridge Says

Copyright by New York Times

New York, May 23.—Col. Henry Breckinridge, who was Assistant Secretary of War under President Wilson from 1913 to 1916, declared today that the United States should declare war on Germany as "a moral enemy of mankind and a menace to our security."

Col. Breckinridge held that a victory for Germany over England and France would endanger the independence of this country, which would be forced to "face alone" the totalitarian conquerors of the world.

Col. Breckinridge contended that if Germany were victorious the United States would be cut off from supplies of rubber, tin, manganese and chromium, "without which neither armament can be fabricated nor industry maintained." He also said we would be closed out of world markets.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Unanimous Decision Brings New York Version of Crown To Washington

By Al Hailey
A Staff Correspondent

Madison Square Garden, New York, May 23.—Ken Overlin, the scourge of Washington's cocktail lounges, staged a drab 15-round exhibition of scientific boxing here tonight and won himself the New York-California version of the world's middleweight championship.

Kenneth won the title from a battle-scarred, copper-hued Filipino, name of Ceferino Garcia, who New York has been passing off on an unsuspecting public as the ruler of the 160-pound class.

Garcia's highly advertised bold punch which flattened 11 opponents in his last 13 fights didn't feaze Ken, who was determined that his supreme sacrifice—three weeks of hard training—was not to be in vain.

The 7,758 cash customers paid $15,710 to see the dethronement of the second "world champion" in two weeks at the Garden. Overlin, anywhere from an 8-to-10 to a 2-to-1 underdog, won an unanimous decision and should get some sort of trophy for the neat display of backward marching he unveiled while caressing Garcia's countenance with powder-puff slaps.

Gets Chance at Hostak

By his victory, Overlin earned the right to a shot at the National Boxing Association's world's middleweight champion, Al Hostak, of Seattle.

His victory put him at the top of a class ruled once by such real fighters as Harry Greb, Tiger Flowers, Mickey Walker and a host of others who had more to offer the spectators than a habit of staging mad-dashes to the rear. It was a sad spectacle—a scientifically inclined citizen making a monkey out of an aging lad who had nothing more to offer than a set of fierce grimaces.

There was one knockdown, but even that was tainted. Ken sent the "champion" to the canvas in the first round with a series of shoves and one or two real punches, left hand offerings to Ceferino's head. Garcia hit the canvas and bounced several times on his posterior while referee Arthur Donovan rallied around for the count.

But he didn't give Donovan a chance. He was up and about the business of chasing Kenneth again and rushing into various poses that gave slight hints he was about to throw a punch. Garcia, who has to have something like two weeks to get in position to throw his famous "killing" punch, the right uppercut that's known as a bolo, never had time.

Overlin Took 10 Rounds

Every time he wound up, Ken danced backward flicking his left into Garcia's face and coming right in to hang on the Filipino as though he were greeting a long-lost brother.

On The Post score sheet, Overlin won 10 rounds, Garcia took three, and two were even.

The effects of easy living, Overlin's favorite pastime, were easily discernible on his drawn face in the late rounds, but Garcia was no gazelle himself. The two 30-year-old punchers wheezed and puffed about the ring like wornout Model T's, and only briefly was there any real fighting.

They went at it in spurts—spurts that really saw fierce battling, but spurts that were all too rare, from the crowd's viewpoint.

Garcia, after dropping the first three rounds, shaved down Overlin's lead in the fourth and won the fifth and seventh rounds with a desperate attack that had Ken in trouble.

Womer Wins Prelim

Ken's left eyelid was gashed open, and his right ear was spurting blood in the seventh after Garcia caught him with a terrific right-hand punch that started out in the middle of Broadway, sailed harmlessly over ringside spectators and landed with a resounding thud on Ken's cranium.

Mutt Womer, 159½, of Charlottesville, Va., outpointed George Costulis, 161, of Pittsburgh, in the opening four-rounder on the card.

Round-by-Round As Ken Overlin Defeated Garcia

ROUND ONE—Overlin landed the first punch after the customary "feeling out" process, a light left into the midsection of Garcia. Three quick lefts, and Garcia went down on his posterior but refused to take a count. Ken swarmed over the Filipino with lefts and rights, shooting his left constantly into Garcia's head and midsection. Garcia was working for an opening but could find none as Overlin danced around and around. Overlin pumped in a looping right to the midsection, but Garcia kept moving forward. Overlin's round.

ROUND TWO—Garcia moved out first with a light tap on Overlin's face and took a terrific left to the head and a right to the heart in return. Garcia hooked one to Overlin's jaw and Ken danced away, flicking his left. Overlin moved in with a hard left hook to the midsection, and Garcia didn't change his expression but kept walking forward with that dead look on his face. Overlin darted in with a left hook to the midsection and sidestepped Garcia's looping left neatly. Ken moved in again with a left hook to the midsection and then danced away shooting lefts to the ever-advancing Filipino's head. Overlin's round.

ROUND THREE—Garcia landed the first punch again, a light left to Overlin's nose. The pace slowed down to a walk and both boys missing wildly from long range. Ken shot his left into Garcia's face again and backed away. Garcia had him backed up against the ropes but elected to move in only to lean on Ken. Overlin showed appreciation by tearing at Garcia with a hard left hook into the midsection and rushing in close to pepper Garcia with rights and lefts. Garcia unveiled his famous bolo punch for the first time and connected solidly with Overlin's chin as the bell ended the round. Overlin by a narrow margin.

ROUND FOUR—Garcia charged out after Overlin, shooting his left and cocking his right for that bolo blow again. But he couldn't catch up with the retreating Overlin. Ken flicked in two straight lefts to Garcia's face and then

33 Golfers Seek 5 Open Berths Here

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A surprisingly small field of 30 professionals and three amateurs from Virginia, Maryland and the District will play 36 holes at Manor Country Club Monday for five qualifying berths to the National Open Championship, according to pairings released yesterday by the U. S. G. A.

The Open will be played June 6-8 at the Canterbury Golf Club, Cleveland. Monday's sectional qualifying rounds will be under the direction of the Maryland State Golf Association, with the vice president, Dr. Robert A. Keilty, in charge.

By a ratio of 20 entries against 7 from Baltimore and 6 from the entire State of Virginia, the District players dominate the list. The only automatic qualifier from his section is Bobby Cruickshank, Country Club of Virginia professional in Richmond, who tied for twenty-ninth place last year at Philadelphia.

1908 Champ Entered

The only amateurs who thought enough of their time and chances to compete in the Open are Charles Malone, Congressional, George Miller, Columbia, and Nathan Kaufman, jr., of the Suburban Club, in Baltimore.

Outstanding among the District entries is the 1908 champion, Fred McLeod, of Columbia, and Congressional's Wiffy Cox, who has been within speaking distance of the golf classic on two occasions.

McLeod is paired with a real threat from the Old Dominion, Errie Ball, of Charlottesville; while Cox's partner over the 36-hole route will be William Schreiber, Mount Pleasant Club pro in Baltimore, who also played with Wiffy last year.

Baltimore's usual delegation finds Ralph Beach, Suburban; Andy Gibson, Bonnie View, and Johnny Bass the most likely to figure in the allotment of the five places.

Columbia is the only club represented by more than two players, McLeod, Miller and Stanley Collings all included in the entries.

Of the seven who qualified last year at Philadelphia, only Cox, Leo Walper and Al Houghton are en-

Carl R. Meininger was elected president of the District of Columbia Table Tennis Association in the annual meeting election last night at Argyle Country Club.

More than 60 table tennis enthusiasts were on hand and elected three vice presidents, Leroy Say, John Meininger and Eddie Yap; John Parker, secretary; Harry Wilson, treasurer, and J. Howard Flint, general counsel.

Stanley Fields defeated Elias Schuman in an exhibition, 21—15, 21—18, 20—22 and 21—15.

Betty Jameson Upset In Southern Golf Play

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, Tex., May 23.—Pudgy, good natured Kay Pearson sent National Champion Betty Jameson reeling from the Women's Southern Golf Association Tournament today with a cleancut, 2-and-1 triumph.

The 26-year-old former National Intercollegiate Tennis champion, playing her second year of major tournament golf, blew into the semifinals with a stunning show of icy courage, fine golf shots and steadiness that had Miss Jameson down from the first hole.

Tomorrow she plays Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth. Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., meets Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., defending her title for the third straight year.

Fine mist fell today and the course was a pool of water from a terrific early morning downpour. But the Houston girl, loser to Betty, 4 and 2, in the Texas Women's semifinals last year in the only match they had played until today, seemed oblivious to the elements and turned the first nine 2 up with a medal 40.

Betty won the eleventh—but that was her last gesture. On the final hole, 2 down and 2 to play, Betty sent her second shot spinning 8 feet from the hole but missed her birdie putt and conceded Miss Pearson a par from 18 inches.

Dorasavage and Green (C. U.) defeated Owens and Stanis, 6—4, 8—6; Zeldin and Gardner (W.) defeated Piorellino and Calabrese, 6—1, 6—2; Shuman and Fontanini (C. U.) tied Kerber and Russial, 7—7 (called).

Furr to Meet Mamakos Here, June 3

A tonic for the local boxing ills in the form of a Steve Mamakos-Phil Furr match was signed in the District Boxing Commission offices last night, the match to be held June 3 at Griffith Stadium. Joe Turner will promote the bout.

Furr will defend his District welterweight championship against his "grudge" opponent over the 12-round route. The District commission called the fighters and managers together to see why the bout could not be staged and the result was the definite signing.

Matt Twomey, manager of Mamakos, held out for a $1,000 guarantee, but finally settled for $750, or 22½ per cent of the gross gate. Furr, represented by Trainer Bob Hayden, signed on a percentage basis.

Furr will leave today for Mme. Bey's training camp in New Jersey, where he will be joined by his manager, Chris Dundee.

Signed and Sealed for the City Welter Championship

Sid Hudson Is Pounded; Errors Hurt

Bloodworth's Homer With Travis On Base Gives Nats Lead In 12th Inning

By Shirley Povich.

St. Louis, May 23.—The Nats went to great lengths, including three extra innings, to get themselves licked and bounced out of the first division today. They invited and received an 8-7 defeat by the Browns.

As late as the eighth inning they held a 4-2 lead and when the Browns tied the score, the Nats bounced into a 5-4 lead in the ninth only to give the ball game back to the Browns. For a brief bit in the twelfth Washington made a motion toward winning the ball game when Jimmy Bloodworth lifted a home run onto the right field roof with Cecil Travis on base. That blow fetched the Nats an 8-6 lead, but Sid Hudson couldn't hold it.

The young right hander, who had been betrayed by his mates in the ninth, pitched a home run to George McQuinn with one out in the twelfth. It was the first of three successive St. Louis hits. Rip Radcliff singled to center, Chet Laabs, boomed a three-bagger against the centerfield wall to tie the score, and after Clift was purposely passed Don Heffner produced a long fly to Case, that scored the winning run.

Three Nat. Errors in Ninth

Back in the ninth, Johnny Welaj singled, stole second and scored on Walker's single to put the Nats ahead, 5 to 4, and Hudson was entrusted with that slender lead. It wasn't his fault that the game went into extra innings. The Browns tied the score on three horrible misplays by the Nats' infield.

Heffner led off in the ninth with a cheap single that Travis muffed, and on Swift's attempted sacrifice, Hudson threw to Travis for a force play. Travis wild pitched the ball to first for a double-play attempt, Swift reaching second. He went to third on an infield out, and scored the tying run when Buddy Lewis muffed Gallagher's slow grounder with two out.

Travis singled in the twelfth with one away and rode home on Bloodworth's tremendous homer to the centerfield roof, putting the Senators in front, 7 to 5. Ferrell walked to continue the attack, but Hudson hit into a fast double play. The Browns came back in their half of the twelfth with George McQuinn and Chet Laabs punching out devastating blows. After Judnich had bounced out to Bonura, George McQuinn got his second homer of the afternoon, hitting to the rightfield roof. Rip Radcliff slapped a single to center and scored when Laabs tripled off the right centerfield wall. Clift was purposely passed to get at the weak-hitting Heffner, but the Browns second sacker drove a long fly to Case and Laabs strolled home with the winning run.

First Run on One Hit

Alan Strange, who used to work for the Nats, worked Masterson for a walk in the first inning and paved the way for the Browns to take a 1-0 lead, Judnich smashed a single off Bloodworth's glove and when the ball rolled into short center, Strange raced to third, from which point he scored while McQuinn was bouncing into a double play.

The Nats almost scored a run in

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

St. Louis, May 23.—Once upon a time there was a big league manager who won four consecutive American League pennants. He led his team, also, to four straight world series championships. But somehow the impression persisted that he was not a truly great manager.

POVICH

He had the ball players. He had guys who could knock balls over fences and he had the best pitching staff in the league. Moreover, he had the best defensive club and he was working with a firm that had millions to spend for new talent.

Whenever he wanted a ball player in those four pennant-winning years he had merely to dip into his boss' farm system and bring forth a young man who would fit the specifications. He had nothing to do, personally, with the development of his stars. They were ripened in the high minors and ready for his call. He had none of the worries of other managers who didn't know where their next .300 hitter or half-decent pitcher was coming from.

He didn't even have to bother about going to the coaching lines. At third base he had an assistant who used to be a big league manager in his own right and a smart baserunner in his day. He had to face none of the boos when a mistake was made in waving a runner home. At first base the manager could make no mistakes, because he delegated the coaching job there to another assistant.

Oh, it was pretty soft. There wasn't much margin for error in choosing his relief pitcher. He had so many nine-inning pitchers that he rarely required a relief hurler, but when he did he had simply to wave toward the bull pen and the best relief pitcher in the league came striding to the mound. Not much chance for a mistake there.

The 154-game season was just a pleasant sort of interlude between his six-month winter vacation. It wasn't much trouble to manage a club that habitually gave a good pitcher a nice lead in the proceedings. And if his club did happen to be trailing at the moment, it was no cause for undue alarm. One of his strong-arm boys would presently hit a home run or a long blow of some description and everything would be hotsy; either that, or the opposing pitcher would crack under the strain of pitching to his guys.

He was the envy of every other manager in the league. They'd stalk the dug-out in a cold sweat praying for a batting rally or a pitcher that could hold a slender lead, and at the finish, if they won, they'd be happy but limp. They'd think then about the fellow who didn't have to be worried about such trifles as a three-run deficit or a one-run lead and who could relax almost safe in the knowledge that he could scarcely lose.

Well, things are different this season. Folks are going to find out things about Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees. He's on the spot, like a Nazi agent in England. We'll know presently whether Joe McCarthy is a great manager or just a lucky guy who happened along as boss of the Yankees at a time when your Aunt Kate could have managed the club to four straight world championships.

His Yankee team is threatening to collapse beneath him. As late as today they were in last place, 8½ games out of the league. All of a sudden they became the worst hitting club in the lead. And their fielding went to pot. Old Reliable Lefty Gomez is useless to the pitching staff and no longer are McCarthy's Yanks inspiring any awe in the opposition. That used to be an item in Yankees successes, but the Yanks aren't scaring anybody this season.

This is the time for Joe McCarthy to bring to bear his managerial genius, if any. The Yanks are fast running out of farm talent. When they needed an outfielder a couple of weeks ago, the best man they could bring up was Buster Mills, a two-time failure in the majors. McCarthy now is facing some of the problems of his managerial contemporaries. How'll he do?

Well, if he can win the pennant with that gang he now has working for him, even if he wins it by the smallest margin by which a Yankee team ever won, it will be his greatest feat. And it will establish his managerial talent beyond the shred of a doubt. As a game guy, he ought to welcome the test. We think he does. Because we think he's a swell manager whose genius has been executive if not creative and who through four success-filled years did a whale of a job in maintaining his champions' zest for the battle. That has been important.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, May 23.—It may be the world of tomorrow, out there in Flushing, but they're still "seeing Nellie Holm."

Five million fair-minded persons saw Eleanor and the other attractions of the aquacade last year. This year's show is better. And Mme. Rose, with a new rhinestone suit that covers darn near one-sixteenth of her, is her old self, which is enough said.

CONSIDINE

Sport never produced anything like Eleanor Holm Jarrett Rose, the Brooklyn-born daughter of a New York fire captain. First she was one of those fresh skinny kids you see around the swimming meets, performing for a bad bronze medal. Then, because it was her worst stroke, she began concentrating on the backstroke and then became the greatest thing the world ever saw in that line.

At the peak of her swimming ability, Nell developed into one of those dream kids whose pictures paper thousands of fraternity house walls. She was photogenic before they had a word for it. She knew how to stand to show off her knockout lines and her grin had both sex and health and animation in it. She has been around for ten years now, looking out of sport pages, rotogravures and magazine covers. But she's still No. 1.

All the muscle molls who bloomed and brandished their legs across the sport pages of a decade ago are safely ensconced now in their suburban homes, slugging it out toe to toe with those crow's feet and the bulges that are woman's cross. Nell gave as much to her art as any of them . . . with hundreds of title swims, a couple of Olympics and a lot of national championships. But today when she stands poised and grinning on the edge of the aquacade pool (particularly in that suit she had cut down from an airmail stamp) she looks 17.

Before you get the idea that she swam the Hellespont with Byron, Eleanor is 26. She was born December 6, 1913, the year before Billy Rose, then a student stenographer, won the New York interscholastic 60-yard dash at the Old Garden.

Eleanor was a swimming champ of national prominence when she was 14, and of the many records she subsequently set she still holds 19. When 15 she took third place in the Amsterdam Olympics. When she was 16 Ziegfeld gave her a job in the follies. She could turn on the heat when it counted most, for she broke not only the Olympic but also the world's record for the 100-meter backstroke in the 1932 Olympics. She was 18 then. She married Art Jarrett when she was 19, divorced him and married the Bantam Barnum—after he had starred her in the first and second of his dazzling water shows.

She turned the worst break of her life into the stepping stone on which she leaped to her present estate. She got a little high on the trip to the Berlin Olympics—though not as high as some of the wintry officials who later gave testimony against her—and got chucked off the team. She had a $1,000-a-week contract to sing (she has long since broken herself of that regrettable habit) in a string of movie theaters. It was contingent upon her winning the Olympic backstroke championship, which she would have been able to do about as easily as taking a shower. She moaned for a day over the loss, like any good amateur would have moaned. Then she was hit right between the eyes by a $3,500 contract from Loew's State.

Barbara Simons and Mrs. Davies Win Women's Golf Cups

Mrs. Meckley, Mrs. Shaffer Take Gross

Barbara Simons Wins Class A Cup At Congressional; Dispute at Capital

Manor Club produced the third winner in as many District women's tournaments this season as 20-year-old Barbara Simons won the Star Cup Class A competition yesterday at Congressional Country Club with a net 75. Miss Simons scored 91 and deducted a 16 handicap.

Capital Club members ran one, two, in the Class B competition over their own course, Mrs. H. E. Davies winning the new trophy put into play this year with 103, 31—72, holding a stroke margin over clubmate Mrs. F. J. Hanrahan, who scored 102, 29—73.

Low gross in the Class A play went to Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Kenwood, who came back in 39 after an outgoing 43 for an 82. Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, Manor, and Mrs. Myron Davy, of the host club, also improved their scores on the back nine to trail Mrs. Meckley's score by two shots with 84's.

Low Gross to Mrs. Shaffer

Two players among the 18 and over handicapped entries at Capital were under the 100 mark and Mrs. H. M. Shaffer, of Army and Navy, won low gross with a 96, from nines of 45 and 51. Mrs. M. Gradstein, of Woodmont, was two strokes higher, adding a stroke to Mrs. Shaffer's score on each nine.

The B Class Cup was decided after considerable discussion over the eligibility of Mrs. L. B. Sharp, Kenwood, who was an easy winner until it was finally decided that her handicap had not cleared the proper channels. Mrs. Sharp, who entered the tournament with a 36 handicap, scored 101 for a net 65, lowest in the history of the association. Her club handicap was 36 but she did not have a sufficient number of scores on ouside courses to have a District handicap. The presentation was held up an hour or more until the matter was decided.

Miss Simons, who succeeds Mrs. Richard Kreuzburg as the Star Cup champion, played the outgoing nine in 48, but after driving in the lake on the tenth and taking seven she

Bengoechea To Get Trial With Detroit

Terp Second Baseman To Report Next Month; May Be Farmed Out

Adam Bengoechea, University of Maryland second baseman, will report to the Detroit Tigers early in June for a trial that promises to place him with one of the Tiger farm teams for the remainder of the season, it was learned at College Park yesterday.

Bengoechea has three years of varsity baseball and basketball to his credit at Maryland and he also played football his freshman and sophomore years.

On the stocky side, Bengoechea weighs 172 pounds and is extremely speedy. His base-running has made him the standout of the Southern Conference in this department and Tiger scouts claim that his arm is one of the best in collegiate circles. Adam is a right-handed hitter with a .362 average for the season that placed him second to Outfielder Hugh Keller among the Terrapin regulars. In a game against Washington and Lee at Lexington last week, Bengoechea clouted the longest home run ever recorded on the Generals' diamond.

Adam hails from Ogden, Utah, where he was an all-around scholastic star. He has majored in engineering at Maryland and plans to return to College Park in the fall to complete a few hours needed for a degree.

His studies suffered a setback his freshman year, the better part of which the sparky youngster spent in the university infirmary, nursing, in swift succession, a broken collarbone, both arms broken simultaneously, three broken ribs, a broken toe and a broken finger—all incurred at different times and in various manners.

Montrose Ten Wins

Tigers Score In 9th, Beat Yankees, 3-2

Buck Newsom Beats Ruffing as York Scores With 2 Out

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 23.—The comeback campaign of the world champion New York Yankees struck another snag today when the Detroit Tigers pushed across a run in the ninth inning to win a pitching duel between Buck Newsom and Red Ruffing, 3 to 2.

The struggle got away to a blustery, home run beginning with Joe DiMaggio and Hank Greenberg each hitting a four-bagger with a man on base. But then the two veteran right-handers tightened the screws for a scoreless stretch until the last of the ninth.

After Greenberg raised a fly to open the final frame, Rudy York singled, Bruce Campbell doubled and Pinky Higgins was purposely passed to fill the bases. Then Catcher Billy Sullivan slammed a fly into center to score York with the winning run.

This was only the third time the Tigers had been able to beat Ruffing since the 1936 season and was as efficient if not as spectacular as Newsom today.

The "Showboat" struck out seven of the Yankees and gave up hits to just three—three to Charley Keller, two to Red Rolfe and one to DiMaggio, whose homer came after a single by Rolfe. It was Newsom's fourth victory against one defeat.

Ruffing, in absorbing his fourth loss against two wins, fanned three and gave three walks, one of them to Charley Gehringer ahead of Greenberg's circuit clout.

Taft Wright's Homer, Four Errors Aid Sox in Fourth Victory

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 23.—The Chicago White Sox operated on the "one big inning" system today to come from behind and overwhelm the Philadelphia Athletics, 13 to 4, for their fourth straight victory.

In the eighth inning the Sox scored ten runs, getting seven hits, including Taft Wright's homer with one on, while Philadelphia made four errors before Johnny Babich and Ed Heusser finally got the side out. Until then, the Athletics had a 4-to-3 lead.

The A's made 16 hits off Southpaw Thornton Lee, but left 12 men stranded on the bases.

Krewson and Kneessi Win Columbia's Scotch Foursome

More than 250 golfing members of Columbia Country Club officially opened the tournament season yesterday with an "old-fashioned" Scotch foursome tournament where the members each took three clubs and a putter and played alternate shots. The caddies carried the clubs in hand, as golf bags were taboo.

The teams were allowed half-handicap allowances but the biggest handicaps were the beer stations on the course and the cup on the eighteenth green, that was placed in the side of a hill. It took some of the foursomes between five or ten minutes to finally get the ball in the hole.

Lunch, dinner, pictures of each foursome as the players completed the round and opening of the new "nineteenth hole" were all added features of the big day.

The team of Don Kneessi and E. E. (Gene) Krewson easily won the Scotch foursome play with a fine score of 76, despite a quartet of three-putt greens. The two seldom score that low individually but as a team they played almost perfect golf and won the low net by deducting an eight handicap for a net of 68.

Other prize winners figured out by the scoring committee of Chairman W. E. Furey, and Pros Fred McLeod and D'Arcy Banagan included W. D. Goodman and H. G. Nichols, low net on the out nine with 34, and G. W. Baisley and W. G. Hoyt, low net in the in-coming nine, 33.

A net of 33 by Commander C. B. Hatch and Karl Reimer won the even holes prize, while Guy Mann and Paul D. Sleeper won the odd holes net with 35, over C. H. Slater, jr., and W. E. Shannon 2d, Elmer Flather and A. C. Frick; William E. Kingswell and Ward Stringham and George R. Miller and Martin R. West.

The only team to better 30 putts was Commander C. B. Platt and Col. Alan R. Kimball, who got down in two putts on the eighteenth and had 29 putts for the round to win the putting prize.

One of the teams was Pro Fred McLeod and W. W. Hinshaw, but they finished well back with an 85-4, 81.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., May 23.—Al Houghton, Washington golf professional and Middle Atlantic champion, and Charles Malone, star end of the Washington Redskins, will attempt to shatter the course record of the Catoctin Country Club here Sunday afternoon. Houghton and Malone will meet Robert (Hunce) Grove, Catoctin professional, and Carl W. Shook, local star, in a special match.

Northwestern Netmen Hold Conference Lead

Evanston, Ill., May 23 (AP).—Northwestern's strong tennis team, winning six singles and three doubles matches, took a one-point lead over Chicago today in the opening program of the Western Conference net championships.

Northwestern's sweep of every match gave the Wildcats a total of nine points. Chicago, the defending team champion, tallied eight points, missing a perfect day as Northwestern's Gene Richards downed Jimmy Atkins, of the Maroons, 6—2, 6—3, in a fourth division singles match.

Levena Scores Length Victory in Charles Town Feature

Washington-Owned Filly Hard-Ridden

Bullet B. Second In Feature; Good Wine Third in Six-Horse Field

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., May 22.—Levena, a fleet 3-year-old, drove to a length victory today in the Greenbrier Purse, featuring the Thursday program at this turf plant. Racing in the silks of H. R. Dulany and trained by Dion K. Kerr, both Washingtonians, the daughter of Happy Argo was vigorously handled by Jockey Joe Hernandez to win by a length over J. E. Crider's Bullet B. A length and a half farther back came Mrs. Thomas Lewis' Good Wine, to be third in the field of six.

Levena, off her races on the big tracks, was installed a $5.20 favorite and was clocked for the 6½ furlongs in 1:20 3-5, while carrying 108 pounds.

Roman Boy, sprint champion hereabouts, all but had his wings clipped in the Kanawha Purse, secondary feature on the eight-race program. The Ha Ha colt, in charge of Jockey Sammy Palumbo, came in front, but only after a hard struggle and a photo finish. Butterman, in the colors of Mrs. M. Reis, came through on the inside rail turning for the final drive, and just failed to get up under a strong ride by Jockey Joe O'Malley. R. George's Royal Dot was third in the field of eight going 4½ furlongs.

Roman Boy's time was 0:49 3-5, only a fraction over the track record, and raced in the colors of P. H. Faulconer. The backers of the heavily played favorite breathed a sigh of relief as they lined up for a $2.80 mutuel. Roman Boy dropped 7 pounds for today's sprint and made it two in a row. The program brought a small payoff of $12.20 in the daily double. Bud On, a paddock tip, came through with a hard earned victory over Secreta in the second race, while Kitty's Rival made the favorite players smile by leading all the way in the third race, to pay $4.20.

Trainer Edward Cook, of Washington, added another winner to his string when E. Samaha's Counora turned in her second victory of the meeting in the sixth race. Jockey Buddy Root kept the filly to a drive and won by two lengths over My Grand, a long shot which slipped through on the rail turning for home. Seplin was third in the field of eight. Counora was a $5 favorite.

MISS SOOT	(O'Malley)	112	7	2	5½	6h	7h	17.90
TOTTY	(W. Kirk)	112	2	7	8	8	8	8.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUD-ON, $5.40, $3.60, $2.60; SECRETA, $6.20, $3.40; DANZIG, $2.20.

BUD-ON, closest to leader from start, came to outside in stretch and just got up in a hard drive. SECRETA had speed to outrun the ultimate winner and held on well when placed to a drive, but could not last. DANZIG improved her position throughout and closed full of run. UNA H. was outrun in early stages, but made up a lot of ground in stretch. CLEAR SPRING had speed, but tired gradually. VALAINE could not threaten. MISS SOOT was through early. TOTTY could not threaten.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:39. Off 3:39½. Winner, R. P. Gillette's br. m. (6), by Seth's Rival—Kitty Cheatham. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 1:26⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KITTY'S RIVAL, $4.20, $3.20, $2.40; WANDER BIRD, $6.60, $3.20; HAPPY MIRACLE, $3.20.

KITTY'S RIVAL, much the best, opened lead going to first turn while under a strong hold and was never menaced. WANDER BIRD, a trailer for a half, went to extreme outside in making bid and closed full of run. HAPPY MIRACLE saved ground throughout, but could not reach leader. LERNANA chased the winner to stretch and tired badly thereafter. ANA X was in close quarters at first turn and could not threaten thereafter. TEPIN was not good enough. DON'T DOUBT tired gradually.

Daily Double, BUD-ON and KITTY'S RIVAL, Paid $12.20

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:10½. Off 4:12. Winner, P. H. Faulconer's ch. c. (4), by Ha Ha—Roman Girl. Trained by C. H. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:49⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROMAN BOY, $2.80, $2.60, $2.40; BUTTERMAN, $14.80, $8.80; ROYAL DOT, $6.20.

ROMAN BOY came through on rail soon after start to take command, drifted out slightly entering stretch and just lasted. BUTTERMAN broke well from outside position, went to rail to reach leader, came through on inside at stretch turn and just missed. ROYAL DOT was in close quarters in early stages and closed well. CUT EMERALD broke on top, but tired gradually. RED IDOL could not threaten the top ones. RAVENHURST showed nothing. PRINCE TURLEY had some speed. BROMIDE trailed.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:40½. Off 4:41. Winner, H. R. Dulaney's ch. f. (3), by Happy Argo—Much Ado. Trained by D. K. Kerr, jr. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:20⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEVENA, $5.30, $3.20, $3.00; BULLET B, $4.40, $3.00; GOODWINE, $3.40.

LEVENA, hard hustled to get to front, opened commanding lead leaving backstretch, but was hard ridden to stave off bid of BULLET B. The latter, off slowly, raced on outside while improving position and closed full of run. GOODWINE moved up boldly on backstretch, but tired in stretch and appeared to have bothered BULLET B slightly in stretch. BOB JUNIOR could not seriously threaten. MISS MAKER caught a tired horse. TIM EHER had good early speed, but tired gradually.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:07. Off 5:07½. Winner, E. Samaha's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNORA, $5.00, $3.40, $2.40; MY GRAND, $10.20, $4.20; SEPLIN, $3.00.

COUNORA, hard ridden to get to front approaching first turn, was well rated while setting pace, responded when placed to pressure and was kept to a mild drive in final stages. MY GRAND, in close quarters at first heat, sailed around on rail entering stretch and closed well. SEPLIN, first out of gate, was outrun to turn and could not better her position thereafter. LYDE ran evenly throughout. MORVIM ran well in late stages.

SEVENTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:31½. Off at once. Winner, T. J. Collins' blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUATERNARY, $8.20, $5.40, $3.80; LACEY MISS, $20.00, $6.40; MARGIE WRACK, $3.00.

QUATERNARY, in close quarters in early stages, took command on backstretch while under a strong hold, was put to pressure in stretch and won under a drive. LACEY MISS moved up after a quarter, was shuffled back and came again in late stages on the extreme outside. MARGIE WRACK took command at first turn, but tired. MISS DAMARA closed well. EARLY BROOM moved up on stretch turn, but flattened out. STAR ON had speed for an eighth of a mile and stopped badly. MERIDIAN TIME showed nothing. WELSH STAR was used up chasing pace.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:59. Off 5:59½. Winner, Mrs. H. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUILL, $10.80, $5.20, $3.80; AUPOIN, $3.20, $2.80; PENCADER, $2.80.

QUILL, closest to pace from start, took command when called upon, saved ground throughout and was kept to a drive in late stages. AUPOIN was in close quarters throughout and chased winner for last half mile. PENCADER ran well in late stages while losing ground. HUPPY ran evenly throughout. MACHILLA ran well in stretch. SYLACAUGA moved up on stretch turn, but tired thereafter. UNLAWFUL had good early foot, but stopped. FLEET WIND showed nothing.

Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

The most missed man around this race track is Harry Tarpe, who went to his reward last winter. Harry was listed as track superintendent but that was only one of many duties, the majority taken on at his own choice. Henry Erickson, incidentally, is doing excellently in taking care of the running surface as recent track record time indicates. The Press Box Pests found time between notes to dash out on the infield diamond and slap a 6-3 baseball defeat on the Stevens Hot Dogs who used a "ringer" named Riely. The field over on the backstretch with the new board fence is sown in blue grass and will add greatly to the beauty o. the track. President Al J. Boyle is going to make the spot a home for several of his brood mares. Plans for the infield here call for a steeplechase course around the inside of the main track bordered by hedges. The terrain wil slant toward the middle of the infield where flowers will be planted. What, no lake and no flamingoes? This column is getting to be the backslapping department but I must say something about the Bahr gate in use here. It has performed in fine style. True, a few horses have been left but not because of mechanical difficulties. The rascals just refused to run. There are two things about this gate that give it an edge, at least in my book over the one used at Pimlico. The horses can be seen when they are in it and cases where assistant starters have to climb in the superstructure for the break are few and far between. Speaking of assistant starters, one would believe the closed-in gate would help them. On the contrary, it makes their work more dangerous than ever. They must protect the jockeys. They have to get right in there on the ground with the worst actors and in some cases it's like being locked in a trunk with a panther. But these fellows are used to taking chances and being kicked or stepped on a couple of times a week, hasn't caused any of them to turn in their resignations. Still backslapping, the assistant starters here are a likable crew. To tell the truth, I probably wouldn't say anything bad about those big, hardy guys if I knew it. I can't run fast enough for that.

BILL.

First Race—Miss Warning galloped off with a short sprint first out here. Gets in light and may take the measure of Chief Hollis. The latter is as good as that last and will be close. Canrock is far down the list but will be due respect if sent postward.

Second Race—Hi Blaze appears the best suited of those gathered for this event. Needs only the right handling. Crusand is good now and an off track will help. Pomary for the minor award.

Third Race—Chief Evergreen, representing the Bennings Stable, may be the right one. Likes the seven furlongs, can carry the weight and I'm going to be right in there rooting. Trixie Lass looms as the one to beat and is real fit. Bubbleworth has speed and is dangerous.

Fourth Race—Wayriel jogged in front of fair company last out and Trainer Edward Cook may add another winner to his growing string. So Fong was all over the track last out. Will be close with clear sailing. Congo Prince for the show end.

Fifth Race—Brain Child's last was encouraging and I'm going to string along with this one today. Lena Girl is a doubtful starter but has speed. Espino Gold is fit and will move up in off going.

Sixth Race—Green Water deserves the call in this field. Needs only the right handling. Hurdy Gurdy is rounding into form and should be prominent in company of this sort. Dixie S. has speed and deserves attention.

Seventh Race—Best Policy gets 5 pounds from the Bennings stable's Clymene and I believe they will finish in this order. However, it's a close fit as both have favorable inside post positions. Caffeine overcame poor early racing luck to win recently and is a dangerous contender.

Eighth Race—I'm going to take a chance on Real Money in this field. Has worked well. Silvery Way and Red Foot for the place and show.

SCOTTISH TERRIER

There have been and probably always will be many heated arguments concerning the origin of this popular Scotsman. He originated in his present form slightly more than 65 years ago and has been gaining in popularity ever since. He is all terrier, independent as they come but with a delightful sense of humor.

23 Central Trackmen Qualify for Interhigh Meet

Tech Places 22; Eastern Gains Eleven

Finals Listed Today At Central Stadium; Eddie Barham Stars In Opening Trials

Central High's track representatives took the first step yesterday toward regaining the championship it lost last year to Eastern by qualifying 23 men for today's forty-third annual renewal of the interhigh meet at Central Stadium.

Close behind with 22 qualifiers was Tech's maroon-clad aggregation, while Eastern will be represented by 11 men. Roosevelt and Woodrow Widson each have four men eligible for today's competition.

Central's main strength lies in the 220-yard dash in which it qualified four men in a five-man race. The Vikings are also heavily represented in the field events.

Individual star of yesterday's trial heats was young Eddie Barham who qualified for point-getting in five events, four of which are in the field.

Culin Breaks Record

In the 120-yard high hurdles Frank Culin, of Woodrow Wilson, negotiated the route in 15.4 seconds, six-tenths of a second below the interhigh mark, but considering the fact that he accomplished the feat in a trial heat his mark is unlikely to stand. Track officials refused to comment on its validity pending a meeting.

The three track events not run off yesterday, namely, the 880-yard dash, mile run and mile relay, may well be the deciding factor in determining today's winner, if the closeness of competition yesterday is any indication.

The trial heats proved Central and Tech's power are centered in certain events. The Vikings are particularly strong in the 220 and 440-yard dashes while Tech is omnipotent in the hurdle events.

440 Dash Feature

Feature event of the day will be the 440-yard dash in which the performance of blond Al Hayden, Central, will be scrutinized closely. Hayden holds the interhigh record in this event in 51.5 seconds, but has bettered this mark this season.

Of scarcely less importance is the 120-yard high hurdles. Frank Culin showed yesterday he is capable of record-breaking performances, and, if he can duplicate his feat today, the record will be his.

Pawnees Beat Aztec Skaters At Riverside

The Washington Pawnees skated to victory over the Chicago Aztecs in the third game of their Roller Derby series at Riverside Stadium last night, 11 to 8, before 3,100 spectators.

The Pawnees gained a 2 to 1 game lead in this 27-night series and also a 33 to 28 lead in total points scored. The series continues tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

The largest crowd yet to see a Roller Derby game locally applauded the swift skating and hard blocking of both teams. Late in the game Capts. Jim McCaskey, of Chicago, and Roy Gowin, of Washington, each were fined $5 following a fist fight that threatened to develop into a free-for-all.

McCaskey, guilty of repeated infractions of the rules, protested vigorously this penalization, but was overruled. Gowin also complained but calmed down when Ernest Kaiser, his teammate, skated away with the final two points.

Martinelli Wins Long Mat Bout at Arena

Tosses Carol Krauser In 1 Hour 28 Minutes; Sailor Franer Wins

Gino Martinelli defeated Carol Krauser, Polish idol, in last night's feature wrestling match at Turner's arena. About 1,000 fans witnessed the bout, one of the cleanest fought of the season here. The end came after 1 hour and 28 minutes with a flying tackle and back drop.

In the semi-windup, Sailor Ed Franer, formerly of the U. S. S. Tennessee, pinned Andy Meixner in 13 minutes. Many of the sailor's pals from the Naval Hospital cheered him on.

In other bouts, Felix Slovikowski, 260-pounder, beat Louis Baciguilipi, 240, in 14 minutes with a body press. Pat Corrigan took a flying tackle to subdue Al Norcus in 23 minutes. Warren Juan Olaguigul downed Lou Farino in the opener with a crotch hold and body press in 13½ minutes.

Dr. H. A. Wood Heads Bridle Trails Body

By Anne Hagner

Unanimity was the keynote as more than 75 horse-lovers last night voted Dr. H. A. Wood, of Chevy Chase, president of the newly formed Washington Bridle Trails Association, in a meeting at the Willard Hotel.

Also receiving 100 per cent decisions were Ralph E. Jones, vice president; Mrs. Dorothy R. Smith, secretary, and A. L. Sauls, treasurer.

Directors are Claude W. Owen, who headed early plans for the association; S. J. Gass, Howard Casey, Dr. Karl H. Wood, Norman Clarke, Richard D. Daniels, O. W. Catlett, Mrs. A. J. Cummings and Angelina Carrabelli. Honorary director is Albert Clyde-Burton.

According to Wood and Owen, the group has organized to "encourage interest in riding, to extend the bridle paths, and to improve the care and treatment of horses in the stables in which they are kept."

"We don't care about the exterior of the stables," Owen said; "what concerns us is how the animals are cared for. The buildings can be built of tin cans, if the inside is clean and the horses receive proper treatment."

To reach this end, the executives will appoint a committee to pass on all stables which apply for membership in the association. Individual members, Owen said, will be urged to patronize riding academies which belong to the trails group, thus assuring that mounts will not be plagued with sore backs, bad feet, lack of food, or overwork.

Association heads will also strive to keep Washington's extensive bridle paths in good condition and to add to the trails already in use. In addition, the club will sponsor the spring and fall horse shows at the equitation field in Rock Creek Park.

Bill Ackerman On Fishing

Maryland stream anglers have not been taking the size creels conditions would seem to warrant. The unseasonable weather is about the only thing that this discrepancy can be pinned upon, for, and these figures are right up to date, 51,000 legal-sized trout have been stocked this season in Maryland waters.

ACKERMAN

Subtracting the unusually small number already taken by anglers from this total, it looks as though there will be more than the normal amount of sport for June dry-fly fishermen.

In the Potomac above Washington, this week looks as though it is just in between the perch and herring runs and the first run of rockfish. Some few stripers have been caught but the real run should get under way in another week.

During the interim there are always channel-cats ready to give any angler a bang-up battle. In these waters as game a fish as swims, and with the right kind of tackle—exceptional going.

The run of hardheads in bay waters has not reached the proportions many have been led to believe. It is true they are in every hole and corner of the Chesapeake, and the Potomac, too, but they are still a little hookshy. The big catches are being made by the boats fishing Eastern Shore waters where the season is always earlier by several weeks than most sections of the western shore and southern Maryland.

The one exception to this is the Patuxent River, and again this week-end, we believe it will supply the hot fishing—from Solomons to Benedict. Boats at the latter place are hard to get unless you engage them ahead. Lest you do not know, the usual charge for power boats is five persons for $5 for half a day. Rowboats for a full day are the usual buck.

Good catches are being made at Wachaprague, Cape Charles and Ocean City. At the latter place they are taking them on the wrecks along with great numbers of seabass. The offshore boats are hitting mackerel, and most surprising, the number of anglers going for this early-season fishing.

At Peconic the weakfish or trout are running good and larger than normally. Already the 12-pound Florida trout that has been leading the Ruppert contest for so many months has been topped by an entry a full half-pound heavier. There is little doubt in our mind but what this present top entry will be displaced before the season is over by a fish weighing from 2 to 3 pounds more.

Spanish mackerel in large schools below Cape Hatteras on the North Carolina coast—laying offshore. At Oregon Inlet the picture continues about the same. Stripers inside and channel bass off the inlet. They have been so thick that many have been taken during this past week by snagging.

Washington-Lee High Downs George Washington Nine, 3-1

Ed Johnson Only Allows Three Singles

All Runs Scored In Tenth Inning; Murnane's Wild Pitches Hurts Team

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, May 23.—Behind the three hit hurling of Eddie Johnson, Washington and Lee's Little Generals romped home to a 3-to-1 victory over George Washington Presidents here today in a tight ball game lasting ten innings.

Until the final frame it had been a pitching duel between the Generals' ace twirler, and Johnny Murnane, who already boasts a no-hitter this season over Tech. Murnane was credited with nine strikeouts, while the winning pitcher fanned six.

Two of the Generals' runs were scored on wild pitches thrown by Murnane. In the final inning, Sonny Payne walked, and advanced to third on the next two plays, with Johnson reaching first on an error by second baseman Matty Denitto.

Courtney Owens, of the Generals dropped a well placed bunt toward the mound, and was safe at first when Murnane whipped a wild peg to third in an effort to catch Owen, who chose to return rather than attempt to beat the ball at home. Under heavy pressure constantly and on the verge of breaking, Murnane let Johnston slip in when he threw into the dirt out of catcher Johnny Shelton's reach. A third run was chalked up by Owens as Luther Tapp was tagged out at first on a drive to short.

George Washington came back in the last half of the inning to score its lone run. Johnston hit three straight men, and Marvin Campbell trotted home when Catcher 'Shanty' Shepherd tossed a wild ball to the pitcher.

Pitcher Johnny Murnane's overthrow to third base allowed Sonny Payne to score from third with Washington-Lee's first run against George Washington yesterday in Alexandria. Murnane backs up Catcher Johnny Shelton as Payne slides home. G. W. lost, 3-1 ducked a flurry of wild swings. Garcia cut Overlin's left eye lid with a whistling left hook, then he missed and spun halfway around as Overlin shot in two looping lefts and a right to the side of the head. Overlin's left eye looked nasty, and Garcia was driving to widen the gash. Overlin came in with another left hook to the midsection, and then the two boys flailed away in midring with both hands in the best bar-room fashion. Overlin had the best of it to start with, but ended up getting more than he dished out. Even.

Round-by-Round of Overlin-Garcia Battle

ROUND FIVE—Garcia shot a long left under Ken's right and landed a smacking blow to the solar plexus that hurt Ken. Overlin moved away on the receiving end of a series of lefts and rights by Garcia. Overlin just missed serious trouble when he managed to dodge the full force of a terrific right to the jaw by Garcia, and then he tore in shooting both hands to Garcia's body. The referee parted them, and Ken stepped back in to shoot a hard left hook to the midsection. Garcia appeared unperturbed by Overlin's offerings and moved constantly forward, but Ken kept feinting him off balance. Overlin took a hard right over the left kidney shortly before the bell. Garcia's round by a shade.

ROUND EIGHT—The tide appeared to be changing as Garcia moved out like a snake stalking a bird, shooting his left to Ken's wounded face and driving his right to Overlin's left kidney. Overlin was bleeding from the nose, the left eye and a steady stream was pouring from an ugly cut in his right ear. He appeared to be tiring badly, and his punches lacked what little steam they had had in the early rounds. Garcia kept trying for the knockout blow—his bolo to the chin, but Ken was still too cute. Garcia tried to get set time after time, but Overlin kept worrying him with that left. Garcia pumped in a short right uppercut to the chin that jarred Overlin. Garcia's round.

ROUND NINE—Garcia came out with a left into Overlin's midsection and a quick succession of lefts and rights to Overlin's head that snapped the challenger's head back and drove him into a corner. Ken fought his way out nicely, flicking that long left to Garcia's face. He landed, once, twice, three times and then worked his arms piston fashion into Garcia's face. Overlin appeared to gain new confidence by his spurt and began carrying the fight to Garcia. He drove a hard left hook to Garcia's midsection and he took three rights to the kidney and a left to the face in return. Garcia came in wide open again, and Ken hooked his left to the stomach. Overlin drove a right uppercut to Garcia's heart, shot a left and then crossed his right to Garcia's jaw. They fell into a clinch at the bell, and it was Overlin's round.

ROUND TEN—Ken moved out first, jabbing with his left. He pumped in half a dozen lefts and then took three hard rights to the midsection that brought pain to his face. Under Garcia's drive he failed to let up. He shot a left and then crossed with a hard right that knocked Garcia's mouthpiece out. Ken danced away jabbing, jabbing and crossing his right to Garcia's jaw. Garcia couldn't catch him. Garcia didn't have a chance to get set. Every time he went into a pose Ken jabbed him dizzy. Garcia almost wept in sheer despair as Overlin constantly danced out of harm's way. Overlin's round.

ROUND TWELVE—Garcia rushed out determined to put an end to the business, but his bolo punch only whistled through space. Ken danced out of danger and peppered Garcia with left jabs to the face. He brought up a hard right uppercut on Garcia's chin, and the champion was shaken. Overlin fell in close working on Garcia's body and taking lefts and rights on the kidney. He pumped a left hook into Garcia's midsection, then shot it to Garcia's nose and brought it back down to Garcia's stomach again. Ken missed with his fiercest blow of the night, a wild left uppercut, but he came in to catch Garcia with a hard right cross and win the round.

ROUND THIRTEEN—Garcia's eyes were badly puffed from Ken's constant jabbing as he tore out of his corner, only to run into more lefts from Overlin. Ken backed away flicking his left, and then Garcia caught Overlin with a straight left flush on the jaw. Garcia had the best of it in close, and then he drove in a left and crossed with his right to Ken's jaw. Overlin shot a left hook to the midsection and clinched. Overlin shot two lightning-like lefts that tore open Garcia's right eye. A terrific right Garcia landed in this wild flurry of punching staggered Ken, and he wandered around the ring briefly on wobbly legs. Then he came back to stagger Garcia with a left hook and a right cross in a fierce display that left both boys slugging toe to toe at the bell. The round was all even.

ROUND FOURTEEN—Garcia backed Ken into the ropes with a body attack, but Ken kept slamming that left home, and Garcia couldn't do a thing. Ken took a light right on the chin and then pumped in a terrific left hook to the body. Garcia caught Ken with a right cross on the chin, and Ken hung on. In close, Garcia caught Ken on the wounded ear and Ken charged forward with a slashing attack that spun Garcia into the ropes. Garcia came in and caught a left hook to the midsection that brought his right knee up. Garcia caught Ken with a left hook that looked low, and Ken winced in righteous pain. Ken drove a hard left hook to Garcia's bleeding right eye and worked on his body in close. Garcia's eyes were hardly more than slits. Overlin's round.

ROUND FIFTEEN—Garcia came out with desperation written on his face. He was carrying both hands cocked for the kill, but he couldn't catch Ken. Overlin backed away, shooting lefts, and tied Garcia up effectively when the Filipino came in close to try to shoot that bolo. Ken pumped lefts and rights to the midsection and took a left and right to the head in return. Then he made Garcia miss with a hard right, and as Garcia swung around Overlin peppered him with lefts and rights. Garcia was a tiring and fading champion and Overlin was surprisingly fresh after appearing to tire. Garcia caught Overlin with a series of lefts and rights and then Ken opened up with a piston-fisted attack that drove the Filipino all over the ring and put a thrilling climax to what had been more an exhibition of boxing science than anything else. It was Overlin's round.

Hudson Falters After Wild Game Is Apparently Won

the second inning. Bloodworth doubled against the rightfield wall with two out and after Ferrell walked, Masterson surprised all and sundry with a looping single to right. Bloodworth was nipped at the plate by Radcliff's throw to Swift and when he crashed into the Brown's catcher standing up, he was unceremoniously dumped on his ear.

Zeke Bonura produced the tying run for the Nats in the third. They went to considerable trouble to get it. Case walked and went to second on Lewis' infield out. On Welaj's grounder to Clift, Case was trapped between the bases but regained second and both runners were safe. Walker forced Welaj at second and then Bonura lashed a single through the box to score Case.

Take Lead in Fourth

With two out in the fourth the Nats touched up Coffman for two more runs that fetched them a 3-to-1 lead. Ferrell singled to right between strikeouts by Bloodworth and Masterson, and George Case then delivered a single to right. Case stole second and Lewis walked to fill the bases, whereupon Welaj sent a third single to right to score two of his pals.

The game rocked along at 3-to-1 until the fifth, when George McQuinn blasted a run off the Nats' lead. He did it with two out, swatting a well-kissed home run into the right center stands.

With Masterson doing a clever job of it against the Browns and Coffman exceedingly tough to hit, the Nats came up with what appeared to be an important run in the eighth. Zeke Bonura inspired it with a vicious double off the right center screen. He scored when Cecil Travis' grounder took a freak hop over McQuinn's head for a single.

Masterson, who had yielded only five hits in the first seven innings, surrendered his two-run lead in the eighth. He walked Judnich and then pitched a two-bagger to McQuinn before getting anybody out. Judnich scored from third on Radcliff's infield out and Masterson then wild-pitched the tying run home, McQuinn scoring from third when one of the rookie's pitches dipped into the dirt and eluded Rick Ferrell.

That sour turn of events made the score 4 to 4, and you know what happened after that.

Cameos Defeat Russells, Take League Lead

Adair Hurls Mates To 7-1 Triumph in Post-Industrial Loop

Cameo Furniture nine rode into first place in The Washington Post-Industrial League yesterday via the sturdy right arm of Pitcher Edgar Adair, who hurled his mates to a 7-1 triumph over Russell Motor Co. on the East Ellipse.

The victory gave Cameo a record of five victories and one defeat, a half game ahead of Heurich Brewers.

Metropolitan Golf Tourney Starts Today

Picard, '39 Champion, Missing; 73 in Field For 72-Hole Event

By the Associated Press

Bloomfield, N. J., May 23.—The 1939 champion, Henry Picard, is missing, but otherwise the field of 73 golfers in the 72-hole Metropolitan Open Golf Tournament, starting tomorrow at the Forest Field Club, has the usual sprinkling of "name" players which has made it one of the Nation's outstanding events.

Jimmy Thomson, Horton Smith, Ben Hogan, Craig Wood, Jimmy Hines and the Argentine triumvirate of Martin Pose, Aurelio Castanon and Enrique Bertolino are included in the list of professional shot makers, as well as the two players who tied with Picard for the title last year, only to lose in the playoffs—Paul Runyan and Vic Ghezzi.

The amateur field includes Frank Strafaci and Ray Billows, two of the best in the simon-pure ranks.

The players will tee off in threesomes, starting at 10 a. m. The second 18 holes will be played Saturday and the final 36 holes Sunday.

Hines will be seeking his third championship in the event, and his chances are enhanced by the fact he will be playing over the same course on which he won in 1937. That year he turned in a score of 279, to edge out Picard by 1 stroke. In 1938, Hines repeated, winning at Fresh Meadow with 287.

He is not the only former champion in the field, however. Runyan won the event at the Echo Lake Club in 1934, and the veteran Willie Macfarlane won in 1930 and again in 1933. He will tee off in the first threesome tomorrow.

The event dates back to 1905, when Eleck Smith won with a score of 300. It has been held annually since with the exception of the war years of 1917 and 1918, and the list of champions includes such famed golf names as Walter Hagen, Mas Smith, Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell and Olin Dutra.

Five Open Berths For 33 Players

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Jimmy Bloodworth was the standout performer among the Nats in the defeat at St. Louis yesterday and thus earns the largest award of points in the Man of the Month contest.

To Bloodworth, seven points, because his home run with a man on base and the score tied in the twelfth was a gallant attempt to win the ball game.

To Zeke Bonura, three points, because he singled home the first run and scored after his double in the eighth.

To George Case, three points, because he singled twice and stole two bases.

To Gerald Walker, three points, because his single put the Nats in the lead in the ninth.

To Johnny Welaj, three points, because his fourth inning single scored two runs and because he later singled and scored in the ninth after stealing a base.

To Walter Masterson, two points, because he held the Browns to five hits and four runs in the eight innings he pitched.

The totals:

Gerald Walker	55	Johnny Welaj	17
Jimmy Bloodworth	43	Syd Hudson	12
George Case	36	Joe Haynes	7
Cecil Travis	35	Jimmy Pofahl	6
Zeke Bonura	33	Al Evans	4

Cubs Defeat Phillies, 4-3, In Thirteenth

Pair of Doubles Win Season's First Night Ball Game

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 23.—Doubles by Bill Nicholson and Al Todd and a single by Bob Mattick gave the Chicago Cubs two runs and a 4-to-3 victory over the fighting Phillies in a 13-inning game at Shibe Park tonight.

A crowd of 7,801 that braved a drizzle and chilly weather saw the Phils almost pull the game out of the fire in their last time at bat, scoring one run and having the bases full when Pinch-hitter Herman Schulte grounded to Mattick for the final out.

Hugh Mulcahy, of the Phils, seeking his fifth straight victory, and veteran Charlie Root, of the Cubs, had a pitching duel for ten innings. Root went out for a pinch-hitter in the eleventh, but Mulcahy went the route.

The Cubs threatened in the tenth and eleventh, but failed to score. In the thirteenth Nicholson doubled with one out. After Glenn Russell popped out, Morrie Arnovich stumbled going after Todd's fly and it went for another two-bagger. Mattick then singled, and when Klein fumbled, Todd came home.

Art Mahan singled to open for the Phils in the thirteenth. Arnovich and Pinch Hitter Wally Berger flied out, but Merrill May walked. Mueller singled, scoring Mahan. Vance Page replaced Vern Olsen, who had taken Root's place. Ben Warren beat out an infield hit to fill the bases, but Scnulte, batting for Mulcahy, grounded to Mattick to end the game.

Roper Gives Creditmen 1940 Award

Carter Glass Won Business Trophy For Last Year

Special Dispatch to The Post

Toronto, May 23.—The National Association of Credit Men was honored this afternoon at the First International Credit Congress in the Royal York Hotel here when it was awarded the American credit awards' bronze statuette for 1940, in recognition of its "outstanding contributions to American business." The presentation was made by the Hon. Daniel C. Roper, former United States Minister to Canada and former United States Secretary of Commerce.

First given in 1939, when it was awarded to Senator Carter Glass, today's presentation was accepted by the association's president, Charles A. Wells, president, John S. Brittain Dry Goods Co., St. Joseph, Mo. The jury for the 1940 award was headed by William H. Pouch, president, Concrete Steel Co., New York.

Choice Unanimous

In making the presentation Roper pointed out that "the National Association of Credit Men, by virtue of its 44 years of service to American trade and industry, is the unanimous choice of the 1940 jury of American Credit Awards to receive the bronze casting of the original sculptured group, symbolizing "Credit—Man's Confidence in Man."

"Founded in 1896, at the beginning of a new industrial order, the National Association of Credit Men has been an important factor in the development of sound commercial credit. During this period of service, it has at all times maintained its individual concept of credit as the instrumentality contributing greatly to the progress of the Nation's growth and to the development of a higher standard of living.

"The record of the National Association of Credit Men is rich in achievement. It has carried on a continuous and relentless campaign against the fraudulent seeker of credit. It has fought to maintain the highest ethical standards in credit practices.

Sought Creditor Protection

"It has devoted its energy and given of its counsel in the framing of our national bankruptcy acts. It has at all times endeavored to protect the creditor against the dishonest debtor. It has insured to the honest debtor equitable and fair treatment.

"It has promoted a cooperative attitude and exchange of information and views within the credit profession. It has established a Nation-wide service to eliminate the waste of assets in liquidations. It has sponsored and developed an educational program to provide a basic commercial and financial training for credit personnel. It has constantly encouraged the principles of commercial arbitration."

Capital Transit Orders Dividend, Builds Up Reserve

The directors of the Capital Transit Co. at their meeting today directed the setting aside of a special cash reserve fund in the amount of $60,000 for the retirement of funded debt, and declared a dividend of 25 cents per share, amounting to $60,000, on the 240,000 shares of capital stock of the company payable July 1, 1940, to stockholders of record at the close of business June 15, 1940.

The directors had before them the consolidated income statement showing net income for the first four months of 1940 of $181,585, and also took into consideration that a substantial part of the funded debt of the company matures in about seven years and the remainder within about 11 years, so that it seemed advisable in protection of the stockholders' interest to continue, as in connection with the payment of the dividend in December, 1939, the accumulation of reserves for retirement of debt.

Brokers' Loans Off $55,000,000

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting members banks in New York City totaled $403,000,000. The week ended yesterday and the total represented a decrease of $55,000,000 when compared with the previous week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $565,000,000.

Retail Car Sales Show Increase

Detroit, May 23 (AP).—The Automobile Manufacturers' Association reported today that retail sales of new passenger cars and trucks in the United States in April totaled 410,921 units compared with 398,658 in March and 311,480 in April a year ago.

Retail sales for the four months ended April 30 were placed at 1,379,030, of which 1,167,485 were passenger cars and 211,545 were commercial vehicles. These figures compare with a total of 1,061,884 of which 888,913 were passenger cars and 172,971 commercial units during the first four months of 1939.

RFC Rail Loan Sought

The Norfolk Southern Railroad asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for authority to sell $136,000 of 2½ per cent equipment trust certificates to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to help finance the purchase of 40 steel flat cars and 12 cabooses costing $170,000.

Wheat Wavers In Recovery, Closes Lower

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 23.—The wheat market tried today to extend its recovery of the week but when securities prices weakened grain slumped.

Wheat was up as much as a cent in the first hour, but this was lost quickly. Thereafter, the market was extremely nervous and at times quotations were as much as 1½ cents below yesterday's close. Final figures were ½@1⅛ lower than yesterday, with July at 82⅛@82⅜ and September 82⅜@82½, or around 4 cents above the fixed minimums.

Corn closed ⅛@½ lower, July, 62; September, 61⅛@¼; oats, ¼@⅜; rye, 1⅛@1¼ lower; soy beans, ⅛ off to ¼ up, and lard 15@20 lower.

War Opens Export Coal Markets, Ickes Discloses

Special Dispatch to The Post

Secretary Ickes said yesterday that the war was providing the first sizable foreign market in years for bituminous coal.

In 1938, he said, this country exported only about 833 gross tons a month to France. There were no exports in 1939 until the war started in September. By March, 1940, exports rose to 112,338 gross tons a month and went to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, Russia and Iceland.

American mines shipped 148,441 gross tons to South America, compared with 18,494 in March, 1938.

Bar Silver Price Raised ⅛ of a Cent

New York, May 23 (AP).—Handy & Harman, bullion brokers, today announced an increase of ⅛ of a cent in the price of imported bar silver to 35½ cents a fine ounce. A continuation of foreign buying, mainly from India, of the metal was believed responsible for this second price advance of the week. On Monday an increase of ¼ of a cent to 35 cents marked the first change in the metal's price since last December.

Nazis Hold French Agricultural Area

The Agricultural Department said yesterday the German-held position of northern France, said to include five of the nation's 90 provinces, represented one of the most important agricultural sections of that country.

The provinces were said to comprise France's largest sugar, wheat and flax producing sections.

Giles Miller Tells Bankers Of Confidence

Virginia Association Opens 3-Day Meeting At Hotel Roanoke

By the Associated Press

Roanoke, Va., May 23.—In spite of clouds of war, debt and Government competition, Giles H. Miller, of Lynchburg, president of the Virginia Bankers' Association, today reaffirmed his confidence in "the energy, inventive genius and resourcefulness of the American people."

In his address at the opening of the three-day forty-seventh annual convention of the association at Hotel Roanoke, Miller declared "it is impossible to view banking or the business situation without taking cognizance of black and ominous clouds hanging over the horizon," but, notwithstanding, added, "I am still an optimist."

Need for Trained Bankers

"To my mind there has never been a time when there was more need for trained and seasoned bankers," he continued. "It is the duty of the association to promote banking education, bank management and proper public relations."

The V. B. A. president said the European war, dwarfing all others and causing misery and destruction," is several thousand miles from our shores but no nation on earth can feel safe."

"We realize that we are spending billions, and must spend billions more for equipment to be used for destruction only," he emphasized. "Yet, we must provide these things we dare not do otherwise."

"National Debt Cloud"

"Another cloud is the national debt cloud, with no immediate prospect of a clearing in the skies. The banks are bulging with money, but borrowers are scarce because they are unwilling to make long-time plans on account of uncertainties as to what will be done in Washington. Still another cloud hanging over banks, particularly, is Government competition. With a multiplicity of lending agencies, exempt from the heavy taxes imposed upon banks, we are drifting toward paternalism, a thing abhorrent to thinking Americans."

In his report the bankers' head pointed to "distinct accomplishment" in the past year. He called attention to promotion of better farming by the agriculture committee, growth of trust business in Virginia, establishment of the Virginia Bankers Conference at Charlottesville—"a real study course"—and other activities.

Cotton Irregular, Final Quotation 5 Lower to 4 Up

New York, May 23 (AP).—Early firmness in cotton futures gave way to irregularity when outside liquidation and hedge selling overbalanced trade and Wall Street support today.

Final quotations were 5 points lower to 4 higher. At the best, prices were up as much as 9 to 11, influenced by advances at Bombay and support by the trade.

Cottonseed Oil

A setback in bleachable cottonseed oil futures today carried nearby positions under the 6-cent mark and the general list to within striking distance of the season's lowest levels, or 21 to 24 points net lower at the close. Sales totaled 233 contracts. July finished at 5.94; September, 5.99B; October, 6.01; December, 6.07; January, 6.09B. Crude oil buyers withdrew earlier bids as futures receded. Markets reverted to a nominal basis with southeast and valley quoted 5½ cents a pound and Texas 5 cents.

Wool Top Market Halted by War News

New York, May 23.—The serious turn taken by war developments brought trading in wool piece goods markets here during last week almost to a complete stop, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Buyers confined purchases to pressing needs and sellers showed no disposition to force business. It was obvious that all sections of the trade were awaiting more favorable news as to the progress of hostilities before resuming preparations for the coming fall season.

Foreign Markets

London, May 23 (AP).—Shares improved their ground today despite general uneasiness over the war situation. Today's best advances were only slightly whittled down toward the close and gilt-edged issues finished with gains of around two points. Industrials were firm and home rails advanced on the prospect that labor troubles would be prevented under the war emergency act.

Paris—Dealings on the bourse, although light, sent prices slightly higher today as traders placed a favorable interpretation on French military activities. Ordinary rentes lifted 5 to 30 centimes; bank and utility shares advanced 1 per cent and gains of from 3 to 7 per cent were made in steels, motors, chemicals and coals—all recently weak.

Liverpool—Closed.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, May 23 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The tone of the Boston wool market was somewhat calmer today than late Tuesday and early Wednesday. The situation had not clarified, however, and trading to build up inventories has not been resumed. A few purchases of very moderate volume were made in the Boston market to cover emergency needs. These transactions included graded combing quarter-blood bright fleece wools at 37@38 cents in the grease, low quarter-blood territory wools at 70@73 cents, scoured basis, and 12-months' Texas wools at 80@85 cents, scoured basis.

First Scheduled Train Trip Began 110 Years Ago Today

One hundred and ten years ago today, on May 24, 1830, the first regularly scheduled railroad passenger service in America began with the running of a "brigade" of horse-drawn cars on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The Baltimore newspaper announcement was as follows:

Office of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad
20th May, 1830

"Notice is hereby given, That the railroad between Baltimore and Ellicotts' Mills will be opened for the transportation of passengers, on Monday, the 24th instant.

"A brigade, or train of coaches, will leave the company's depot on Pratt street, and return, making three trips each day—starting at the following hours precisely, viz:

Leave Baltimore at 7 a. m. and Ellicotts at 9 a. m.

Leave Baltimore at 11 a. m. and Ellicotts at 1 p. m.

Leave Baltimore at 4 p. m. and Ellicotts at 6 p. m.

"The price for the trip of 26 miles, will be 75 cents for each person. Tickets to be had at the depot. Should the demand be found to exceed the present means of accommodation, passengers will be under the necessity of going and returning in the same coach, until a sufficient additional number of carriages can be furnished. As soon as this can be effected, of which due notice will be given, provision will be made for traveling a shorted distance than the whole trip.

"P. E. Thomas, president, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co."

The 13-mile stretch from Baltimore to Ellicotts Mills was the first public railroad built in America on a track of wooden ties across which were laid long wooden stringers which carried the thin metal rail strips on which the cars ran. Horses hauled the cars until August 20.

Stocks Gyrate on War News, Ending Down As Aviations, Metals, Equipment, Steels Sag on Fears of Allies Losing Conflict

New York, May 23.—A severe sinking spell in the final hour of trading today canceled early progress and in both moves the market gyrated in accordance with the news from the battle front of France. Reports in the morning hours of success of the Allied counter-attacks brought more confidence to American security and commodity markets but when the news of the battle took a more serious turn in the afternoon, there was a reaction.

The result on the stock exchange was that securities were at virtually the same level as at the close of the previous day, trading was relatively small, a total of 1,642,450 shares changing hands.

In the late decline the war issues featured, the weakest department being the aviations, followed in order by the metals, equipments and steels. The better grade rails, stores, utilities and oils managed to average slightly higher, but the general market closed with a weak tone.

War Shapes the Prices

The war, to the virtual exclusion of all other factors, is shaping the course of all prices in the United States and other neutral countries. The business index shows a slight upward tendency, being aided by war orders, but the possibility of a collapse of the Allied cause voided domestic good news.

With German troops pounding away anew at the Allied positions in France and Belgium and apparently meeting with some success, sterling was depressed, the rate falling back 4½ cents to $3.18¾. French francs, however, broke loose from sterling and bettered their standing by 3½ points net, closing at .0189¼. Canadian dollars closed at a discount of 22 per cent.

Steel shares were relatively the hardest hit, Bethlehem reacting from above 70 to close at 66⅝. Steel common was down to 42¼ but recovered to close at 44 for a fractional net rise. Aircrafts broke precipitately from their highs. Douglas touched 79, up 2⅝ and then dropped about 5. Boeing made a new low and so did United Aircraft.

Copper issues, like other war stocks, while strong in the early trading, relinquished all of their gains. The motors were down with the exception of General Motors preferred which held an advance. Allied Chemical lost 4½. Cuban-American sugar preferred, on the other hand, jumped 11 points on announcement of its recapitalization plan and held most of the gain.

New Lows for 138

New lows for the year or longer were recorded by 138 stocks, including American Car & Foundry, J. I. Case, Hercules Powder, Ingersoll Rand, Interchemical preferred, Sloss-Sheffield, International Shoe, Vanadium and Sun Oil.

There were several developments adverse to the buying side. One was a contra-seasonal decline in car loadings; another that the Bombay Stock Exchange will remain closed today; weakness in wheat and estimates that the new national defense program will pyramid taxation steeply.

Bonds Reflect Perplexity

Listed bond dealings continued to reflect the perplexity felt in financial circles with respect to the European war. Losses predominated, and in numerous instances the declines were sizable, ranging to 5 and 6 points. Foreign dollar issues were hardest hit as a group. High grade investment bonds of the domestic section were fairly steady, while speculative bonds ruled irregular. Turnover was $8,490,000.

German bonds tumbled. Issues of the Allied countries proved more resistant. Belgians rallied and Scandinavians held around former levels.

Building Dips Below Last Year, Previous Week

By the Associated Press

New York, May 23 (AP).—Heavy engineering awards declined during the week ended Tuesday to $43,857,000, a drop of 6 per cent from the previous week and 39 per cent below a year ago, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private contracts failed to exceed their respective 1939 values for the first time in eight weeks, totaling 27 per cent less than the week before and 30 per cent less than a year ago. Public construction awards showed a gain of 11 per cent over the previous week, but were 42 per cent smaller than the corresponding week last year.

Comparisons follow:

	Latest week	Previous week

Car Loadings Drop .2% in Week

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 678,971 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 1,686 cars, or .2 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 66,083, or 10.8 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 133,182, or 24.4 per cent, compared with 1938.

Hudson Reports 63% Sales Gain

Detroit, May 23.—Continuing the record spring sales upturn previously reported, domestic retail sales of Hudson cars for the three weeks ended May 18 gained 63 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago, according to G. H. Pratt, general sales manager of the company. Pratt reported total retail sales of 6,302 cars for the three weeks.

Presbyterians Name Ex-Miner As Moderator

Dr. R. H. Miller, D. C. Pastor Urges Merger Of Baptist Churches

Rochester, N. Y., May 23 (INS).—The Rev. Dr. William L. Young, who rose from a coal miner to a college presidency in a comparatively few years, was elected moderator at the 152nd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which convened here today.

The 47-year-old president of Park College, Parkville, Mo., who still proudly displays an active card in the miners' union, defeated five candidates, but the assembly later made his choice unanimous. In the balloting he polled 475 votes against 230 for the Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Machie, of Philadelphia, his nearest rival.

Dr. Young succeeds the Rev. Dr. Sam Higginbottom, of Allahabad, India.

Baptists Ask Safeguard

Atlantic City, N. J., May 23 (AP).—Three thousand delegates to the Northern Baptist Convention today asked the Federal Council of Churches to "safeguard the Protestant position on the separation of Church and State."

"We view with apprehension," their statement read, "the appointment of Myron C. Taylor as Ambassador to the Vatican, and, at the first, the seeming all too readiness of the Federal Council to fit into the plans of the President of the United States in the appointment of Mr. Taylor."

It added, "this convention looks with grave concern on any possible and subtle attack" on the principle of separation of Church and State.

Delegates greeted with loud applause a proposal that the 1,415,000 "Northern" Baptists and 1,700,000 members of the Disciples of Christ in America be brought together in a single church organization.

Dr. R. H. Miller, Washington, D. C., official fraternal delegate to the Baptists from the Disciples, broached the merger proposal.

D. C. Man Elected

Boston, May 23 (AP).—The American Unitarian Association in its 115th annual meeting appointed a new service committee today as part of an extensive program to do refugee work for more than 50,000 Czecho-Slovakians in France and other parts of Europe.

Dr. William Emerson, dean of the school of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was named chairman of the committee, whose members include Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Merger Plan Approved

Atlantic City, N. J., May 23 (AP).—Delegates to the Northern Baptist Convention shouted approval today of a proposal that their 7,400 churches combine into a single organization with the 6,000 churches of the Disciples of Christ in America.

This consolidation proposal came from Dr. R. M. Miller, pastor of the National City Christian Church in Washington, D. C., who was sent as "fraternal delegate" to the Baptist convention from the "Disciples."

"Both denominations are American, and already we have appointed a joint commission to devise a hymn book and give our churches a common form of devotions," Dr. Miller said.

There are 1,415,000 members in the Northern Baptist Churches, and about 1,700,000 members in the Disciples Churches.

Rev. Edw. Gabler Addresses Forum Of Church Group

Personal consecration to Jesus Christ brings one a new conception of human values, the Rev. Edward Gabler said last night at Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, 756 Eleventh street southwest.

Addressing the third monthly fellowship forum of the Southeast Inter-Church Council, the rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard, told worshipers of six denominations from 10 congregations how Christ transforms one's life.

Consecration, he said, will mean discarding the attitude of "might makes right" and "do to others before they do you," replacing it with a new sense of balanced values, of Christian love, brotherhood and tolerance.

More Than 2,300 Planes Sent Allies Since War Started

New York, May 23 (AP).—Great Britain and France, responsible sources said today, have received more than 2,300 combat and training planes purchased in this country shortly before and since war was declared.

Statistics of Allied purchases were reported to include orders for 6,100 planes since last August, including 3,000 by France, and 3,100 by Great Britain, and negotiations were said to be in progress for acquisition of 4,000 more.

The Allied purchasing commission said that deliveries were being made on time and American manufacturers said in many cases deliveries had been made ahead of schedule.

Conte Di Savoia Lands 1,065 at N. L.

United Front Urged to Keep Democracy

Mrs. Millard Tydings Addresses Democratic Women of Maryland

Importance of a united front to preserve Democracy and Christianity was emphasized yesterday by speakers at the annual luncheon meeting of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland at the University of Maryland.

Speaking before more than 500 delegates from every section of the State, Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, wife of Maryland's senior Senator, struck the keynote of the meeting when she declared:

"We must keep ourselves informed. We must do away with factional disputes and all petty feelings."

Gives Views on War

Mrs. Tydings described the war in Europe as "a gigantic struggle for survival of democratic government in the world.

"Can the world survive with a democratic and Christian form of government," she asked, "or must the world be ruled by tyrants? This year will decide that question."

Declaring that observers believe only a miracle will save Great Britain and France from defeat, Mrs. Tydings urged "everyone in America to cooperate to develop a defense which will make war impossible here."

Congressmen Absent

Mrs. Tydings spoke in place of her husband, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Senators Tydings and his colleague, George L. Radcliffe, were scheduled to speak, but were unable to attend because of defense legislation at the Capitol. A number of Representatives also were absent because of WPA legislation in the House.

Francis Petrott, secretary of State for Maryland, declared that "America can have peace only if we stand as one." He spoke in behalf of Gov. O'Conor, who was unable to attend because of official business at Annapolis.

William C. Walsh, attorney general of Maryland, reiterated the sentiments of the other speakers, declaring that "we cannot stress unity too much."

Mrs. Frances McFadden, of Mount Rainier, chairman of the Democratic Women's Clubs, presided.

The address of welcome at the church will be by the Right Rev. Mnsgr. F. Joseph Margi, D. D., V. F., the pastor.

The opening session of the two-day convention will be held at the Knights of Columbus Home.

5-Way Telephone Talk Links Four Ships to Shore

Richmond, Va., May 23 (AP).—Members of the U. S. Coast Guard Reserve Flotilla, No. 4, listened tonight to a five-way telephone conversation among officers on four ships in Chesapeake Bay and the vicinity of Norfolk and E. D. Peterson, Norfolk manager of the C. & P. Telephone Co.

Peterson talked from 15 North Seventh street during a demonstration of ship-to-shore telephone service.

He talked with persons on the State of Maryland near the mouth of the Potomac, headed for Baltimore; the Del Marva Ferry, halfway between Cape Charles and Little Creek, the Virginia pilot boat and trawler Miss Carrie in Hampton Harbor.

The Coast Guard Reserve is composed of small boat owners who meet regularly for instruction on services they may render in emergencies.

Mexico Has No Fifth Column, Ambassador Says

"There are no so-called "fifth column activities in Mexico," the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Francisco Castillo Najera, asserted in a statement last night in reply to allegations that subversive elements were active in that country on behalf of both Nazi Germany and Communist Russia.

"The Mexican government," said the ambassador, "has taken all precautions to prevent any alien activities tending to disturb the public peace. The Mexican government is determined to keep its neutrality in the present European conflict, in accordance with the agreement of the Pan-American conference in Panama.

"It must be true that in the last weeks, as usual, foreign tourists have entered Mexico. However, this is not alarming if we take into consideration the number and quality of those coming from North, Central or South America. Of course, tourists traveling from Europe not only have not increased, but have almost disappeared, since the outbreak of the European war."

U. S. Urged to Bare Bomb Sight Secret

Copyright by New York Times

Toronto (Friday), May 24.—In a new appeal to the United States for specific assistance before it is too late, the Toronto Globe and Mail, in a front-page editorial today, asks the United States to give to the Allies the closely guarded secret of the American bombing sight.

"Ten planes equipped with this vitally important invention would score more direct hits than 100 enemy planes not similarly equipped," the newspaper says. "The moral effect on the German people, who through their spies have repeatedly tried to steal this bombsight, would be of equal if not greater value."

Bookkeeper Hangs Self From Bedroom Door

Paul W. H. Ontrich, 35, was found hanged by a belt from a door of his third-story bedroom at 1719 Varnum street northwest last night by his father-in-law, Theo L. Edminston. Ontrich was bookkeepe..

Deputy Coroner Christopher Murphy issued a certificate of suicide.

Contract Bridge

It is not enough to bid slams correctly, but a declarer must develop his playing skill to match. Today's hand, sent by a contributor, illustrates the fine technique which is necessary to fulfill high contracts.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
NORTH DEALER

	♠ 9 ♡ A 4 3 ◇ A J 10 8 ♣ K J 9 6 4
♠ 5 3 2 ♡ 9 7 5 2 ◇ 7 3 2 ♣ 8 7 5	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 7 6 ♡ K Q J 10 6 ◇ K 6 ♣ A 10 3 2
	♠ A K Q J 10 8 4 ♡ 8 ◇ Q 9 5 4 ♣ Q

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♡	3 ♠	Pass
3NT	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass	—	—

Opening lead: 2 ♡.

South's problem was to make six spades; the previous bidding had told him that East probably held the missing honors, and so it was necessary to find a way to avoid taking the diamond finesse. He accomplished it by establishing the club suit for discards, like this:

The opening lead was won by the ace of hearts, and a low club was led toward the queen. East rushed in with the ace and played the king of hearts, which declarer trumped. He next led the ace of spades, overtaking with dummy's nine. Now the six of clubs was played and South trumped, establishing the suit. Declarer drew trumps, entered dummy with the diamond ace and threw off his losing diamonds on the three high clubs. He made six spades, losing one club trick.

E. F. Hannan Dies After Long Illness

Edward F. Hannan died yesterday at his home, 1839 Mintwood place northwest, after an illness of two years. He was 48.

Born in Washington, Mr. Hannan was educated here and in 1917 entered the Army as a field clerk. He served overseas a year and after his return was employed in the auditing department of the Washington Terminal Co. He was a member of the Reciprocity Club.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Mary Hannan, and a sister, Miss Blanche Hannan. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m., at St. Paul's Catholic Church, followed by private burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Cecil B. DeMille begins his fifth year as producer of the "Lux Radio Theater" dramas, with the Monday, June 3, broadcast over WJSV at 8 p. m.

Under this famous radio and motion picture producer's directorial hand, the dramatic show has presented such consistently sterling performances that it has been awarded many "firsts" by both critics and listeners.

To name several, it was judged the "best dramatic program" by radio editors throughout the country in all five annual polls of the New York World-Telegram. It won the Motion Picture Daily Radio Poll of Radio Editors four times, and the Radio Guide Poll four years in a row. The Hearst Radio Editors cited the program in each of their surveys, and the Women's National Radio Committee has given the program honorable mention on three occasions.

The "Theater," which was first presented from New York in 1934, moved to Hollywood the following year.

Some of the outstanding films adapted for this program and produced by DeMille this season were Claudette Colbert and Cary Grant in "The Awful Truth;" Barbara Stanwyck and Brian Aherne in "Wuthering Heights;" Loretta Young and Miriam Hopkins in "The Old Maid;" Laurence Olivier and Edna Best in "Goodby Mr. Chips;" Brian Aherne and Jean Arthur in "Pygmilion;" Walt Disney's second full-length animated cartoon film, "Pinocchio."

DeMille draws from four decades of entertainment experience in staging the "Theater" broadcasts. Born to a talented theatrical family, he learned the groundwork of his profession as a boy. He became a triple-threat factor in the theater as a nactor, playwright and director.

SYNOPSIS

Ellen Carlan, a stenographer, has loved Peter Storm since both were children. While picnicking they take refuge in the old Tucker house and notice the resemblance of Jonathan Tucker to Peter. As the result of a tenement fire, Peter is heroized and the papers connect him with the Tucker house. Attorney John Abbott and his wife, who manage the Tucker estate, fear their deception many years ago when they abandoned the only heir at the orphanage, will be discovered. Abbott offers Peter a job. Ellen is hurt when Peter says Millicent Abbott is the most beautiful girl he has ever seen. Mother Rosa at the Orphanage helps Ellen by sending her to Rosalind, a famous designer, for a job as seamstress, but Rosalind hires her as a model. Peter calls for Ellen to celebrate and is astounded by her new glamour. Ellen is gloriously happy as Peter presents orchids and they drive off in a limousine to the Rainbow Room, having decided to dine there.

Chapter 18

Peter nodded casually. "I guess so. What about you, Ellen?"

She tried not to make her hesitation noticeable. Never in all her 20 years had she tasted a cocktail; neither, as far as she knew, had Peter. But tonight——

"A glass of wine, I think, Peter. Sherry, perhaps?"

Good Idea

The waiter bowed, his pencil poised in mid-air. "If I might suggest," he offered, "the champagne cocktail is our specialty. If monsieur would like to try it?"

PETER grinned. "A good suggestion; Will you forsake the sherry, Ellen?"

"Yes, indeed. Champagne sounds more exciting . . ."

"Two cocktails, then. And you might bring a bottle of champagne with our dinner."

She leaned back aginst the red velvet and watched him proudly. How easily, she thought, he assumed his new self-assurance.

This was an entirely different Peter from the young man who had sat at the foot of Tucker's Hill a few short weeks ago and struggled against the forces which held him captive. He accepted this new world easily: his manner showed no uncertainty nor hesitation as he stepped upward to this new plane.

Like a turbulent, restless mountain stream, he had found his own level at last and finding it, he found contentment too.

Even the waiter, trained in the perception of pretenders, recognized the quality. His bow was a perfunctory gesture, but the expression in his voice was Old-World tribute.

Table Is Ready

As he left them, Peter leaned back, drew a long, deep breath of absolute enjoyment.

"Having a good time?"

Her eyes, bright with enchantment, answered the question. "So much so that I can't enjoy it completely . . . if you know what I'm trying to say."

"No, I don't. Say it again, in plain English."

"I'm having such a glorious time that I want to stand up and clap hands. The very restraint I am imposing upon myself will surely stifle me."

Need Champagne

He laughed. "That proves we need the champagne. Perhaps after it we'll both stand up and shout."

"I don't dare, Peter!"

"You must. Here it comes now."

The cocktails, still bubbling with the promise of gayety unleashed, were placed on the low table before them.

Ellen looked down at them, vaguely uncertain. Peter smiled at the question in her eyes, reached forward and handed her one. Then he raised his own glass.

"My first drink, Ellen. To you!"

Holds Glass

He hesitated, holding the glass in front of him. Then, with a grin like that of a small boy who knows he must never again admit his belief in Santa Clauss, he suggested: "Let's drink to him who brought our good fortune, then. To Jonathan Tucker!"

Ellen touched her glass to his. "To Jonathan Tucker!" she repeated. "May his spirit always guide——"

"Why, Peter!"

Ellen looked up at the girl who stood before them and caught her breath. The glass in her hand became as heavy as lead; she raised the other hand to steady it. She stared, stupidly, as Peter jumped to his feet.

"Imagine finding you here, Peter!" The girl's voice held a quality of infectious delight. "I'm so glad we decided to drop in . . ."

Dimly, Ellen acknowledged the introduction. Miss Carlan . . . Miss Abbott." She did not need to be told that this was Millicent Abbott.

No other girl could so surely have filled the picture which her own imagination had painted. She understood, in an instant of acute and agonizing despair, how naturally Peter had been overwhelmed.

Wore Cap

Millicent Abbott was ethereal in her loveliness. Her blond hair, capped now in childishly lovely Juliet cap of pearls, was a radiant halo which held all eyes in focus.

A moment before the lounge was an assembly of charming, desirable women: now only one girl held the spotlight as the others slowly faded into obscurity.

Ellen stiffened against the icy shiver which shook her inwardly: she felt herself dwindling into chilling, realistic insignificance.

Millicent was presenting her friends, and she inclined her head mechanically, a frozen smile on her lips. She clung to her glass, so that she need not offer her cold, damp hand in friendship, "Miss Savage, Miss Carlan . . . Mr. Thorne . . . And Mr. Harrison . . ."

Peter bowed formally to Miss Savage, shook hands with two men, murmured some trivial phrase about the world being a small place and how pleasant it is to see you, Millicent . . .

"A delightful surprise, Peter. Particularly since we've just been talking about you, haven't we, Lita?"

"Jut a moment ago," Miss Savage agreed. "Millicent was explaining how much I had missed in not knowing you, Mr. Storm."

She smiled engagingly, and the young man behind her looked vaguely distressed at being so obviously overshadowed.

Glance About

Millicent glanced about brightly. "You don't mind if we join you?" Her smile included Ellen as well, but left no need for a reply. "There's another chair, Roger . . ."

She dropped, gracefully and casually, beside Ellen on the red divan. No polite phrase about "Are we intruding," or "Were you expecting someone else?" Nothing like that.

She took it for granted, apparently, that wherever she chose to be, her presence was a magnificent condescension.

Peter placed his untouched cocktail upon the table and assisted the young men in drawing up chairs.

Now that the first surprise was over, Ellen knew that he was not displeased at this interruption of their special celebration. Rather, he was flattered at Millicent Abbott's eagerness to present him to her friends.

"You'll join us in a cocktail?" he asked Miss Savage cordially.

"I'd love to . . . What have you there?"

"Specially recommended champagne cocktails."

She screwed up her face. "Oh, those! Henri insists on trying them out on all newcomers . . . I'll have a sidecar, please."

Peter winced at her shrewd inference, but only Ellen noticed. Miss Savage threw off her long cape of luxurious silver fox with careless unconcern, then turned to regard Peter with unconcealed curiosity.

"Millicent has been telling me so much about her conquering hero, Mr. Storm," she told him brightly. "I've been simply consumed with curiosity!" She turned to Millicent. "Aren't you glad now, my dear, that we decided to stop home and get dressed instead of stopping at that horrible roadhouse?"

Milicent Smiles

"Indeed I am." Milicent smiled up into Peter's eyes. "We've just driven down from the game in New Haven," she explained.

"Is that so? Was it a good game?"

"Oh, Harvey!" Miss Savage spoke scornfully. "They're no good at all! Have you seen them play this year, Mr. Storm?"

Peter shook his head.

"Then you must, Peter!" Millicent insisted.

Precedents Cited Tu Support Price's Budget Vetoes

Richmond, Va., May 23 (AP).—Precedents for Gov. Price's budget provision vetoes which Attorney General A. P. Staples has ruled invalid were cited by Leon M. Bazile today in a supplemental answer filed with the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Bazile, attorney for Col. E. Griffith Dodson, clerk of the House of Delegates and keeper of the rolls, in the attorney general's petition for a writ of mandamus to compel restoration of the vetoed provisions to the appropriation act, said both Gov. William Hodges Mann and Gov. George C. Peery vetoed items similar to those disapproved by Gov. Price. Their action was never challenged.
